HURLEY ORDERS REVERE CLEANUP BY HUB POLICE

Strike Ties Greyhound Line Here

Greyhound bus service was at a standstill in and out of Boston today as a conference of company representatives and of its striking employes was being arranged in Cleveland.

No buses left or arrived at the company terminal in Park square, and, although there were a dozen pickets at the terminal, there was no disorder.

At the Greyhound bus garage in South Boston it was also quiet, the garage being under guard of police.

Neither side would make any comment today, pending word from Cleveland, where the negotiations are expected to be centered.

FIND 5 GUILTY

Meanwhile five men arrested early today after a West-bound express bus, via Worcester, had been halted on the Worcester turnpike in Brookline and badly damaged, were all found not guilty in Brookline court, where they had been charged with malicious destruction of property.

One of the five, however, was fined $5 on a charge of drunkenness. He claimed he had a bus ticket for Chicago and had chased the bus in a taxicab in order to get aboard.

The other four men, all taxicab drivers, testified they had heard the bus was to be stopped by strikers and sympathizers and had gone out in their cabs to pick up the bus riders as fares.

TELLS OF SABOTAGE

Charles Schrader of New York, the imported driver of the bus, admitted that wrecking of the bus motor, breaking of a window and letting of air out of the tires was done by men who arrived in private cars, the taxicabs arriving later.

As a result of the sabotage, the three bus passengers, including Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Tristram of Abbottsford street, Roxbury, married only yesterday, were forced to continue their journeys by train.

Hunter Bags Deer On His 27th Trip

Bondville, Vt., Nov. 26 (AP)—Arthur White, Granville, N. Y., hunter, was rewarded today for 27 years of patience.

He went into the woods every year over that period hoping to bag a deer, but friends always came out with the prizes. His 27th trip brought success. It was an eight point buck, weighing 150-pounds.

Labor, Capital Must Join To Save Nation, Says Lewis

Co-operation Vital to Rectify Errors Of Deal, He Reveals in Talk With Eleanor Patterson

ELEANOR PATTERSON

The following amazing interview in which John L. Lewis, fiery chieftain of the CIO, urges "labor and capital to cooperate in pulling the country out of its troubles," was obtained by Eleanor M. Patterson, editor and publisher of the Washington Herald and the Washington Times, and is presented herewith by International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Today I asked John L. Lewis if he would object to being interviewed on some of the problems facing the country during the present economic situation.

It seemed to me that a man who had attracted 4,000,000 workers to his leadership during three brief years should have some ideas on our current problems very much worth listening to. But I confess that I was a little dubious as to whether Mr. Lewis would care to discuss them with me.

He not only did so, however, but has permitted me to set forth here, quite frankly, what he had to say.

In my opinion, Mr. Lewis' most important observation can be summarized in these words:

Now that the Roosevelt administration is not doing so well, it is up to labor and capital to cooperate in pulling the country out of its troubles.

The above is my phraseology, though Mr. Lewis' thought. He would have used more refined English, because his vocabulary and diction, though he never went to college, might have been cultivated in the finest of them.

Mr. Lewis discussed many other things—the need of a really large-scale housing program which he believes will both relieve unemployment and fulfill the greatest national need, housing.

He also expressed some fear that the country might be drifting into international difficulties, and after reaffirming his admiration for President Roosevelt's aims, rather vigorously took to task some of the New Deal's political pettifogging.

But to me the most important point, coming from a man who has been pictured as the bete noire, the hard-fisted, uncompromising enemy of business, was Mr. Lewis' ideas on the necessity of cooperation between business and labor. Here, in his own

Business Aid Pushed by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—President Roosevelt declared today that his administration wants revision of "inequitable" taxes just as soon as Congress gets ready to do it.

Moving further to reassure business and stimulate lagging industry, the President disclosed he was directing Admiral C. J. Peoples, director of the procurement bureau, to buy heavily and immediately of $245,000,000 worth of supplies needed by the government departments.

He also revealed that on Monday he would send to Congress a message suggesting revisions of the federal housing act designed to induce a privately capitalized building boom.

On Tuesday, said the President, he will communicate with Congress on the subject of federal highway aid. The government's contribution has grown to more than $200,000,000 a year from the $80,000,000 or $90,000,000 back in 1929-30, and the President said the time had come to cut these appropriations back to the pre-1929 level.

BACK AT OFFICE

President Roosevelt came to his office today for the first time since he was laid up last week with an infected jaw. He held a press conference with more than 100 reporters present and appeared to be in the best of health and spirits.

On the score of tax revision, the President twitted those who questioned him about it, asserting they "must have been reading the newspapers."

The message he sent to Congress on the opening day of the special session, according to the President, was very clear on the subject that the administration wants tax revision as soon as Congress can enact it.

Admiral Peoples has submitted to the President a report detailing all government supplies that will be needed between now and next June 30 to the amount of $245,000,000.

The President sent this report to the heads of departments and agencies, with instructions to do as much purchasing through the winter months as possible with a view of stimulating industry and slowing up in the late spring.

DISCUSSES ROAD AID

Discussing the question of federal highway aid and his impending message, the President pointed out that not only had Congress gradually boosted the government's obligations through authorizations, but that there was a "catch" clause in the law whereby if a state makes a tender on the government, it has a virtual contract.

The President indicated he would ask Congress to hold future highway appropriations under $100,000,000 and revise the system of making tenders.

A reporter called the President's

Middleboro Youths Accused of Holdup

Three bandits who held up a Middleboro cafe last Tuesday and escaped with $30 were held in bail totaling $7500 by Judge Elmer Briggs in Middleboro court today.

The young men, Frank Adams, 19; Harry Pike, 21, and Preston Bacon, 20, all of Middleboro, were charged with armed robbery. They were captured yesterday in that town.

Yule Clubs Distribute $13,281,000

317,000 Get Checks For Holiday Spending

Mutual savings banks in Massachusetts are preparing to distribute the largest Christmas club total in their history, it was announced today by Dana S. Sylvester, executive manager of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts.

Some 317,000 depositors will receive the record sum of $13,281,000. A number of banks have already sent out checks, but the majority will make payments on Wednesday, December 1.

Christmas club savings this year exceeded the 1936 figure by approximately $1,750,000, and when the figures for national banks and trust companies are available it is expected that an even greater gain will be shown.

Mutual savings banks in the Boston metropolitan shopping area will distribute $8,252,680 to 187,359 depositors, nearly $1,250,000 more than last year.

Hunt 11 Missing In Canada Plane

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., Nov. 26 (INS)—The Canadian wilds held secret today the fate of 11 persons aboard an airplane two days overdue here from Pickle Crow, a mining town 125 miles to the northeast.

Officials of Starratt Airways, owner of the plane, believe heavy fog forced Pilot Ken Smith to land at Root Portage, about midway, where a cabin and supplies are maintained.

Fog and low ceiling have prevented search planes from taking off.

Wheeler's Brother Goes Under Knife

MARLBORO, Nov. 26 (AP)—Surgeons in Marlboro Hospital today removed the gangrenous left leg of Oscar C. Wheeler, 73, brother of Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana.

The Senator waited in the hospital during the operation. The patient's condition was reported "good."

12 Babies Rescued In Hospital Fire

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26 (AP)—Nurses hurriedly moved 14 mothers and 12 wailing new-born babies—one only 12 hours old—to safety today as fire swept a wood and brick annex of St. Ann's maternity hospital. There were no casualties and the fire was soon brought under control.

Italian Invasion of Corsica Charged

ROME, Nov. 26 (INS) — French charges Italy is planning an invasion of Corsica were blazoned in the Italian press today. The reports said France had made an "official accusation" and added that Franco-Italian relations were "severely strained" as a result.

Picks Capt. Sheehan As Crime War Chief

Wholesale cleanup of Revere by Boston police, led by Captain James T. Sheehan, former head of the Boston police "untouchables and racket-busting squad," was ordered by Governor Hurley today.

The governor's unprecedented action followed a secret meeting at the State House, called at the request of District Attorney William J. Foley and attended also by Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty and Public Safety Commissioner Paul G. Kirk, head of the state police.

District Attorney Foley asked Governor Hurley to call the conference to discuss racket conditions again brought to light in the North Shore city following the gangland slaying of Louis Gaeta, Revere "gambling king," last Tuesday.

GETS HIS PICK OF POLICE

Captain Sheehan, now head of the Fields Corner station, was notified by teletype of his new command and given "dictatorial power."

He was told he could have any number of men he desired and the "pick of the Boston police department."

The selection of Captain Sheehan was unanimous and District Attorney Foley told the governor that Captain Sheehan was "the one police officer in the City of Boston that everyone concerned could depend upon to do a thorough job."

Captain Sheehan will be assigned to the district attorney's office and will be given as many assistants from the prosecutor's office as he wishes.

Captain Sheehan, according to the district attorney, will be given three months to clean up the city.

With many indictments expected, District Attorney Foley declared that the grand jury would be "open to Captain Sheehan any time he's ready to present evidence."

"NO KILLERS' HAVEN"

"There are no definite plans right at this minute concerning the 'taking over' of the city," District Attorney Foley declared just before he went into conference with Police Commissioner Timilty and Captain Sheehan.

"Captain Sheehan will be given wide latitude.

"Boston is not going to be made a haven for racketeers. I have received information that many New York gangsters have come into Revere from New York where they were driven out by Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey who was recently elected district attorney.

"I'm going to use every effort to remedy the situation in Revere.

"We want the killer of Gaeta. We must protect the good citizens who live in Revere."

As soon as he was notified of his new assignment and that he would be relieved of duties at

75 Police Guard Ford Workers In Strike

474 Go to Work in St. Louis; One Man Is Stabbed in Fight

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26 (INS)—Guarded by 75 policemen, a cavalcade of 137 automobiles this morning carried approximately 474 workmen into the Ford Motor Company plant here, where a strike had been called by the United Automobile Workers Union, a CIO affiliate. There was no disorder.

The count of loyal employes was made by newspapermen as the cars passed through a picket line which CIO leader, Delmont Garst said numbered 700 men. About 600 men are ordinarily employed in the plant, according to Ford officials.

WORKER STABBED

The strike was called Wednesday morning, and following the one day layoff for Thanksgiving, the plant was quietly reopened under the supervision of Assistant Police Chief Andrew Aylward, in personal charge of the squad outside the company gates.

Tension over the strike increased yesterday, when an anti-union worker was stabbed in a tavern brawl.

Another Ford employe was less seriously injured in the fight, reported to have broken out when two union men tried to argue fellow workers against going back to the plant.

TWO MEN ARRESTED

The man stabbed, and reported in a critical condition today with wounds in his abdomen and arm, is Roy Wilson, 31. Adrian Keene sustained a minor head injury.

Donald Potter, 30, and Les McGuire, 33, said by police to be members of the CIO auto union, were seized as the assailants and held on open charges.

2000 Resume Jobs In Pontiac Plant

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—Work was resumed today at the Pontiac plant of the Fisher Body division of General Motors Corporation, with 2000 employes going back to their jobs. The plant was closed by a "sit-down" strike November 17, the strikers holding the building five days.

The remainder of the plant's 5000 workers will report for duty Monday.

The Pontiac Motor Car factory, which was forced to close when the flow of bodies from the Fisher unit ceased, is expected to reopen early next week. The Pontiac plant employs 10,000 men.

Gen. Johnson Says:

Basis for Thanks Is Intact in U.S.

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—The productiveness of this country both in industry and agriculture is potentially at its highest point. There is plenty of money. There is a starved need for almost everything that we seek and wish we had. Even at the depths of this new Roosevelt depression it is a marvel that only the so-called lords of creation should alone be in great distress.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

Our fields are just as green as they ever have been. The skies are just as blue, the birds as happy, the "little deer that run among the trees" do not know that there is anything wrong. The beasts that man has domesticated perhaps feel it to some extent—but not a very great extent. The whole compact of misery and uncertainty is in the minds of men.

Perhaps in 1929 there was some reason for that kind of thing. Prices were too high for stocks and consumers goods, if not for commodities.

People were gambling on a new miracle of the "abolition of poverty" based on lending our money to "backward and crippled nations" as a basis of maintaining activity in our own markets. There were many things that a carping critic could have criticized regarding the fundamentals of our so-called prosperity. But not now. There is absolutely nothing of a fundamental nature that can be so criticized today.

We have new problems of wider distribution of all the goods of life. We would like to make our condition better than it is. It is amazing that, looking at all the facilities for doing this, we find them paralyzed. Just one reason. We are afraid of our own system.

It was not first said by Mr. Roosevelt that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself—but that doesn't detract from its truth. We have only fear to deal with today.

* * *

A little over five years ago, the fear we had was of the workability of the system that our forefathers had created. It depended on the activity of what was then about 125,000,000 people, each operating more or less in his own orbit.

To correct that in the last 4½ years we have substituted another system in which many of these individuals are ordained to move in a collective path. But the difference is so slight that no individual feels it.

Does it make a great deal of difference what artificial system is imposed on so many scores of millions of people located in the midst of resources so rich, imbued with a tradition of activity and productiveness?

Can anything stop or repress that potential activity? Will anybody sell America short?

What we have to be thankful for is boundless natural resources and a people of boundless resourcefulness. No New Dealers, Old Dealers, Economic Royalists—no governmental combination under the sun can for long stop that combination. Let us thank God for it.

Report $32,147 Tax Shortage In Tewksbury

State Probes Find 786 Items Unpaid By Barron

A $32,147.14 shortage in the accounts of Tax Collector Robert W. Barron of Tewksbury, who resigned when an audit of his books was made, was disclosed today by Theodore N. Waddell, director of the state division of accounts.

The shortage, Waddell stated in a letter to Irving F. French, chairman of the Tewksbury selectmen, is as of August 23 last, and represents 786 items, tax payments by citizens for 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936 and 1937, received by the collector but not accounted for or turned over to the town treasury.

PROBE OTHER CLAIMS

"The aggregate of these items, amounting to $36,144.15, is reduced by $3997.01, the sum of an unclassified payment to the town treasurer and the available cash in the collector's hands subsequently paid to the town, leaving a net cash shortage of $32,147.14 as of August 23, 1937," Director Waddell's letter stated.

However, additional claims of tax payments made, but which claims have not been allowed pending further proofs of payment, may increase this net amount of the cash shortage, Waddell pointed out.

"While the town fixes the rate of compensation of the tax collector at a certain percentage, it does not clearly state whether the commission should be paid on cash collections only, or also on credits allowed the collector," Director Waddell stated.

"Thus it was found that the collector received one and one-quarter per cent commission on the tax collection, and on the amount of tax sales and subsequent additions to tax titles."

FIXED SALARY URGED

Barron, Waddell said, also received compensation for preparing disclaimers on tax titles after he already had received compensation for the tax titles.

Waddell recommended to Chairman French that the Tewksbury selectmen abolish the custom of paying commissions to the town collector, and substitute provision for a fixed salary instead, with a further provision that all fees be turned into the town treasury.

The audit of Barron's books, Waddell said, showed Barron failed to make the weekly payments to the town treasurer required by law. Tax refunds, it further was disclosed, were charged to the collector's appropriation account.

"Sundry departmental records," Waddell stated, "were found to be very inadequate and incomplete."

Filmland Wars On Gangsters

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (INS)—Bad news for vacationing New York bad men was on the way to the West coast today.

It consisted of pictures and police records of 100 of the city's leading public enemies suspected of having sought refuge in the vicinity of Hollywood following election of Thomas E. Dewey as district attorney of New York county.

The underworld data was requested by Los Angeles District Attorney Buron Fitts in his current crusade to rid his bailiwick of New York gangsters.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26 (INS)—Plans to question 12 film extras were made today in the investigation by the district attorney's office into reported "shakedowns" of Hollywood screen performers.

John Klein, chief investigator for District Attorney Buron Fitts, said Mike Lally, a "bit" player, had given him "highly important" information, and probably would be questioned again.

Bill Asks Garage Under Common

State Representative Francis X. Coyne, of Boston, today again filed a bill with the House clerk here, calling for the construction of a $5,000,000 "subway garage" under historic Boston Common.

The bill would authorize parking charges of not less than 15 cents nor more than 30 cents, which, Coyne asserts, would liquidate the entire cost of the garage within 10 years.

Another bill, which he will file soon, Coyne said, will call for the construction of ramps in Boston Common to speed traffic.

Coyne had his "subway garage" bill before the Legislature last session. It was defeated.

Admits Beer, Says Wife Drinks Liquor

SALEM, Nov. 26—Yes, he drinks beer, Leo Martin, Marblehead mail carrier, told Judge Harry R. Dow in probate court today, but his wife Lillian, he said, drinks hard liquor—and anyway, said Martin, that isn't the real trouble.

The real trouble, he said, is that Mrs. Martin insisted upon opening a children's store and neglecting her own children. Mrs. Martin told the court Leo spends all his Sundays and holidays beer drinking. Judge Dow took her petition for separate support under advisement.

Lewis Asks Huge Housing Plan to Solve Job Problem

words, are his views:

"We are making tremendous strides in the realm of economic science, inventions, radio. Our most successful industries employ a highly-paid staff of scientists to do nothing but work out and patent new inventions. But the greatest task of mankind is to learn to enjoy rational relationship with each other.

"What we have learned long ago, in the United Mine Workers, is that the miners cannot make money unless the mine owners are making money. And I think that a very large percentage of the mine owners now not only share that view, but will testify to our willingness, in fact, anxiety, to cooperate with them.

"The Guffey Coal Act was the outgrowth of this common aim, an aim to give a fair return to the mine owner, the miner, and to produce at a fair and stabilized price for the consumer. That is why the bituminous coal commission is made up of representatives of miners, mine operators and the consuming public.

"Unfortunately, that commission, due to the inefficiency of some of its members, so far has done nothing."

At this point I interrupted Mr. Lewis to ask him about his attitude toward the Roosevelt administration. I knew that he had been one of the President's most active supporters, but I had heard rumors that he had cooled. So I asked him point blank.

ADMINISTRATION CRITIC

"I am a critic of Roosevelt's administration," Mr. Lewis shot back with the same bluntness that I had used. "But I shall always be an admirer of his aims and ideals.

"When I said 'administration,'" he continued, "I meant 'administration' with a small 'A.' In other words, his ability to administrate, to carry out the ideals which he has set for himself and for the country.

"The bituminous coal commission is a case in point. Here is a great industry marking time because the commission has been allowed to drift with no supervision or check-up.

"The other day I was in New York conferring with the anthracite coal operators and I got a call from Marvin McIntyre saying that the President wanted to see me. But he didn't say when. He said there was no hurry—any time in two or three days.

"Well, usually the White House is specific and in a hurry regarding appointments, and I couldn't understand all the vagueness.

NEBULOUS INVITATION

"Then I got it. Bill Green had visited the White House, and McIntyre had given me this nebulous invitation for fear I would be displeased.

"Now that illustrates what I think is one of the serious defects of this administration. There is too much time given to balancing political personalities and not enough given to applying the seat-of-the-pants to the seat-of-the-chair. I don't care whether or not Bill Green goes to the White House, and if he can get some things there for the general welfare of labor I'm for him.

"When the history of the Roosevelt administration is written, it will go down as one of the most idealistic of all time—one which has tried to do most for the average man.

"For this I give my support to Roosevelt, and he still has my support. But one of the prerogatives of a supporter is to give constructive criticism.

HEROIC BATTLES

"And I want to point out that the greatest tragedy of the New Deal is that it has waged such heroic battles, conquered reactionary forces, fought off old guard saboteurs in Congress, forced the acquiescence of the Supreme Court, and then, having won that victory in such agonizing struggles, has declined in prestige because of just one thing—lack of competent and coordinated manpower.

"That has been the story of everything from the NRA down to Nathan Straus' 'star-gazing' at the housing problem."

Mr. Lewis had been talking in that well-modulated voice of his, talking neither rapidly nor slowly, choosing his words carefully, but without a pause. He talked like a man who knew exactly what he wanted to say and didn't hesitate to say it—not the least excited, but very, very firm.

"Mr. Lewis, what do you think we should do to pull ourselves out of the present recession?"

"In addition to closer cooperation between business and labor," he replied, giving me no rest at all, "I believe our best remedy is a housing program of genuine breadth and dimension. England used housing to pull herself out of the slump and did it with tremendous success.

"We, on the other hand, are behind every other country in Europe. Today we are 2,000,000 houses short of what the country needs. In other words, 2,000,000 families are subnormally housed."

"What's the matter with the present housing program?" I asked.

"In the first place, it's a badly diluted program which doesn't begin to attack the problem at its root. It still goes at the problem through the old-fashioned medium of mortgages and real estate operators, who in the past have tacked so many inflated charges on housing that people couldn't afford to build.

"By the time the mortgage company gets its 6 per cent and the real estate man gets back the high value he paid for the land during boom days, there's nothing left with which to build.

"Much as I dislike Nazism, I think we can take a page from its book regarding housing. Over there they have given the worker small but comfortable homes on which he makes a modest payment, and after a certain number of years can look forward to owning that home for himself."

"How would you pay for this tremendous housing program?"

"I would use social security reserves. It is unsound economics to allow this money to accumulate in a sterile fund. No bank hoards money when it can keep it out working."

"How do you feel about balancing the budget?"

"It cannot be balanced now. The time for that is past. Even some of the President's most vigorous critics in the business world now realize that it would only heighten the slump to balance the budget now."

What Mr. Lewis had first told me about co-operation between business and labor interested me very much, and at this point I asked him to tell me more about it.

CITES CLOTHING WORKERS

He cited the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, a CIO union, which, he said, had lent money to many clothing manufacturers when they found themselves in financial difficulties. This union, he said, had been functioning long before the New Deal, and had helped to iron out the cut-throat competition between the clothing manufacturers.

In the anthracite fields, he said, the United Mine Workers were trying to aid the operators to get loans from the RFC. United States Steel, he also pointed out, had been following a co-operative policy with labor, and labor, in turn, had been doing its best to work for the best interests of the company.

TALK ON NAVY PROGRAM

We next got to talking about recent reports that the President would advocate a tremendous naval building program, and Mr. Lewis made the point that this would not give the country employment in the same widespread manner as housing, first because armor plate steel was a practical monopoly held by two companies, Bethlehem and Carnegie, second because there were so few shipyards, and third because the shipyards were already working to capacity and could employ very few additional men.

This led to a point which I thought was important and significant.

"When it comes to building ships," Mr. Lewis said, "the administration will scrap the entire code of labor protection which has been set up for private industry.

"Time and time again the Walsh-Healy act has been trampled upon by the Navy and the procurement division of the Treasury. The Electric Boat Corporation, of New London, which has a practical monopoly on submarine patents, has been allowed to throw the Wagner act in the ash-can. Labor doesn't have a show where warship construction is concerned.

WHY ALL THE RUSH?

"There are two things that worry me about this," Mr. Lewis continued. "One is that if an administration won't enforce its own labor rules for its own work, how can it expect to enforce them on private industry?

"But more important still, I can't help wonder: Why all the rush about war preparations? Are we perhaps headed into another war? If enough people in high places adopt the war psychology, eventually they can get the rest of the country thinking that way.

"This is something which very much concerns me, because if there is a war, it is labor which has to do most of the dying."

6000 in Pittsfield To Get G. E. Bonus

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 26 (AP)—Approximately 6000 employes of the General Electric Company will share about $300,000 under a profit sharing plan, Manager Louis E. Underwood announced today. Distribution will be on or about December 20.

Of the 7500 on the payroll, only those employed for a year or more are eligible to share in the plan. According to service, employes will receive a percentage of their earnings for the past six months of 1937.

10,000 Get First 1938 Auto Plates

The first 10,000 automobile numbers for 1938, white figures on a red background, today were in hands of their owners.

Officials at the registry pointed out a change in the interest of clearness. This year the customary comma between the two sets of numbers has been substituted for a white square. First of the over-the-counter plates will begin to be distributed Wednesday.

Bishop Startles Flock by Auto Discourse

Says He Knows What Is Going on in Parked Cars at Night

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Anglican Bishop of Saint Albans, Dr. M. B. Furse, startled a Biggleswade, Bedfordshire, audience last night with the declaration he knew "what's going on" in parked cars around London at night.

Dr. Furse, speaking at Biggleswade, said the clergy was being accused of being out of touch with life. But he added:

"I have to be out late at night, going back to my home. And on bypass roads in the neighborhood of London, and, I suppose it's the same on most other roads, I know what's going on in motor cars which I pass.

"What do we do? We pass by and say we cannot help it. The increase in birth control is enormous, and, don't you make any mistake, a great deal is outside the married state.

"I know it is an unsavory subject, but I have to face up to these things, as we are being constantly accused of being out of touch with life."

Xmas Reunion At White House

Roosevelts to Gather Despite Absentees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt do not expect to have all members of their family with them at the White House this Christmas season. Elliott Roosevelt and his wife will remain at their Texas home, and Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger will not come from Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt and their small daughters will be with his parents for the day, and John Roosevelt will come from his studies at Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., will spend part of the holiday season here and part in Wilmington with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont.

The First Lady has practically completed her Christmas shopping.

English Film Star Puzzled By Boston Theater-Goers

Heather Angel, Here In Stage Play, Is After New Fame

By ANN MARSTERS

Heather Angel is a small, dark-eyed English girl with fair hair and dainty features, and a great desire to have the play she is in succeed on Broadway.

The play is "Love of Women" at the Wilbur theater, and Boston audiences are keeping Miss Angel guessing as to the degree of their enthusiasm.

"They seem to like it," she said, after last evening's performance, "but this is the first time I've appeared in Boston, and I find the audiences here rather difficult to understand. It's hard to sense the true tempo of their enthusiasm."

For the past five years, Heather Angel has been in Hollywood where, most recently, she has been making pictures for Republic studios. She is married to a handsome young man named Ralph Forbes. They have, in fact, been married for three years.

HEATHER IS REAL NAME

We think we should tell you the rather astonishing truth that "Heather Angel" is her real name. The family name was Angel, and when the baby girl was born in Scotland, the romantic young mother decided to name her after the heather which grows so profusely there.

So Heather Angel she became—and surely, with such a name, she couldn't have escaped becoming a movie actress.

Her acting career began on the English stage, and her film debut was made in an English picture. She appeared in several English and German pictures, and finally Fox studios offered her a contract in Hollywood. One of her first assignments was the role opposite Leslie Howard in "Berkeley Square."

"When I left England five years ago," she said, "there was no comparison between the English studios and the Hollywood studios. But English pictures have improved so much since then, and the studios are becoming more and more like those in Hollywood."

STAGE SUCCESS HELPS

Heather realizes that if a motion picture player can appear in a successful stage play, it's a tremendous boost for his or her popularity. On the other hand, it can be decidedly harmful to them if the play is a flop.

"We go back to Hollywood either in disgrace or glory," she said, "but the chance is worth taking.

"Of course, if the play is a failure, our friends will understand that we did our best with poor material. But the public, as a rule, forgets to blame the playwright."

If Miss Angel's play settles down to a nice long run on Broadway, her husband will join her in New York. Forbes has just finished working with Kay Francis in a picture tentatively entitled "Return from Limbo."

"I don't know when we'll be taking the play to New York" she said. "We're going to Toronto next week, and then to Cleveland. It needs some re-writing and more rehearsing, but I think, eventually, it will have a chance of being a hit in New York."

LIKE HOLLYWOOD

Although they are both English, Heather Angel and Ralph Forbes have grown to like Hollywood so much that even if they didn't work in pictures, they would continue to live there.

"Hollywood is our home, now," said Heather, "and I wouldn't want to leave it—even for England."

Wife No. 2 Sees Victim Buried

WORCESTER, Nov. 26—With one of his two wives present and nearly in collapse, but with the other absent and ignoring the whole affair, burial services were held privately today for Marcus Hunter, 38, of Pleasant street.

Police believe Hunter, whose body was found Saturday night on the Providence road in Grafton, was the victim of a hit-and-run driver, but the wife with whom he was living under the name of Dervan charges he was slain.

This wife, Mrs. Mary Rose Green Dervan, whom he married, police assert, under the Dervan alias, attended the services in a Main street funeral home and the burial in Hope Cemetery.

In East Brookfield, however, Mrs. Frances E. Hunter, who married him in New York in 1935, not knowing of his previous marriage in 1929, remained at home.

"I'm not interested," she said.

Camp Incident Probed In Fist Slaying Inquiry

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26 (INS)—Despite his own previous assertions, Mayor S. Davis Wilson this afternoon declared "definitely no warrants will be sworn out today" against Mary Keenan O'Connor, accused child slayer, and her friend, Mrs. Marie Phillips, 1936 Olympic gymnast.

The mayor was reluctant to discuss the sensational case, which has the city split into hostile camps, but it was reported he planned to confer with detectives who spent all Thanksgiving day checking affidavits made by John J. Tunney, a stevedore and former inmate of the House of Correction.

It was on the basis of Tunney's voluntary statement that the mayor announced he would confront Miss O'Connor, co-ed athlete, and her honey-haired friend, Mrs. Phillips, with an incident alleged to have involved the two young women last summer at Camp Happy for underprivileged children.

Tunney worked at Camp Happy, where the two girl friends were counsellors last summer, while serving a three month sentence for disorderly conduct.

"I hope they can prove the new motive theory," said Joseph C. Glenn, father of the five-year-old victim, Nancy, whom Miss O'Connor purportedly admitted slaying in a fit of temper.

Glenn declared he would vigorously oppose exhumation of his daughter's body.

That Tunney's accusations had no connection with the slaying of the child was reiterated by Mayor Wilson.

Mrs. Phillips and her husband bitterly denounced the intimations as "vicious and untrue."

"When the truth comes out, those who started this thing will be sorry," declared Phillips, himself a former Olympic gymnast. "The charges in themselves are so absurd I won't even dignify them with a denial."

Lily Pons to Wed Kostelanetz--Later

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26 (AP)—Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz talked of love at their Thanksgiving dinner here last night and announced they would be married within a year.

"We must find a time when we have two months away from work before Lily and I can get married," the radio symphony director said.

Then he and his opera singer fiancee said good-bye. He had to catch a train for Chicago.

Jobs for Wives Approved by First Lady

Tells How to Find Happiness With Double Duties

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (INS)—How wives may be happily married while holding outside jobs is discussed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the December Good Housekeeping Magazine, published today.

Writing under the caption, "Should Wives Work?" the First Lady relates how she had dinner with a young couple, each of whom was employed and earned $25 a week.

HUBBY HELPED

What made the marriage a success, she said, was that the husband, after dinner, put on an apron and helped wash the dishes.

Mrs. Roosevelt urges that wives keep up after marriage any skill they may possess that would make them employable outside the home. She points out that they never know when they may need it.

"In the last few years I have been getting many letters from women whose husbands have fallen ill or died or left them alone with dependents," she writes. "Those who have had no training are the most pathetic, but those who once worked and then gave up altogether are in almost as difficult a position.

"I doubt that it is ever wise for a woman who has once had skill to allow herself to lose it entirely, for, granting that she makes of marriage a career, there may come a time when she will need work, and there will certainly come a time when her children are grown.

MAY WANT TO BE BUSY

"If the demands on her time are fewer, and she is well, she may feel the necessity of taking up some kind of regular work again, particularly if in her youth she was trained to keep busy.

"This may not be a financial necessity, but merely something to take the place of the duties that were hers when marriage was her only job."

Rare Foods Wait Fussy Palates

Probably the fussiest palates ever assembled around a festive board in Boston will be in simultaneous action Monday night in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel when the boys of Les Amis d'Escoffier sit down for a bit of serious scoffing.

Les Amis d'Escoffier (The Friends of Escoffier) is an organization of chefs from the leading clubs, hotels and restaurants in the city and is dedicated in honor of Maitre Auguste Escoffier, accepted as the greatest epicure of his time.

This society is one of two in the country and Monday's munching will be the first by the local branch.

One object of the society is to stress the importance of proper blending of foods and wines, and a perfect lesson is expected on Monday.

However, the banquet is strictly invitation and only the invited may attend.

All diners must tuck their napkins in their collars under the rules of the epicureans, there must be no smoking until the dessert is served, the course wine must be taken with that course and not allowed to stand over until the next—and there are many other strict rules of epicurean conduct which will be in force.

A committee known as the "Bonne Bouche" will have charge of the banquet. In this case, Charles Banino, of extensive European training and the Ritz chef for five years, is chairman and the banquet is prepared under his expert direction.

Her Love's a Wreck

Mrs. William Wilkerson, beautiful former Billie Seward of the Follies, who has parted again from the Hollywood night club owner. They were married two years ago

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26—William Wilkerson, night club owner, and his beautiful wife, the former Billie Seward of the Ziegfeld Follies, have separated after sparring at marriage since May, it was revealed here today.

Quietly last week, it was learned, property and cash settlements were agreed upon and Mrs. Wilkerson is expected to seek a divorce shortly.

Married nearly two years, the couple's marital troubles began last May when they separated—for the first time. Since that time, however, they were reconciled but soon parted again—and this happened on three different occasions.

Wilwerson is publisher of the Hollywood Reporter, a movie trade paper, and owner of the fashionable Trocadero and Vendome cafes.

Wilkerson married Miss Seward shortly after a Mexican divorce.

Arlington Man Charges Threat By Tax Aide

Tells Goldman He Was Warned to See Deputy Or "Get the Works"

"You either come up to see me or I'll get you, and when I do I'll give you the works."

That, Daniel E. Shea, 29, Dartmouth street, Arlington, stated under questioning by Assistant Attorney-General Maurice M. Goldman today, is what John M. Loud, a deputy tax-collector in Arlington told him.

Loud is one of the tax deputies named by Goldman in his charges that excessive fees are being squeezed out of the public in the collection of delinquent excise taxes.

Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long opened a hearing and investigation of Goldman's charges this afternoon. Goldman had 25 witnesses present, summoned by telegraph. Shea was the first questioned.

OVER $11.16 TAX

Commissioner Long's office and the corridors outside were jammed.

Shea explained his "trouble" with Loud over a claim for $11.16 excise taxes.

"My wife told me she had paid them by money order, and I believed she did, but I was willing to pay them again to avoid trouble," he stated.

His wife, he said, told him she'd called Loud's home several times, but had been told Loud wasn't in. Then, Shea stated—

"I called him myself. He told me to call back later.

"I went over to his home. I asked him to please tell me what was due, and for what, and to whom did I owe it? He wouldn't tell me.

"I went away, and later I called Loud on the telephone and told him I didn't want anything to do with him—that if I owed anything I owed it to the town. He said:

"'You either come up to see me or I'll get you, and when I do I'll give you the works.'

"I went up to see him—to his home—within the hour.

"I said, 'will you please tell me what all the mystery is about?'

"He said, 'never mind the mystery; you're under arrest!'"

$120 FOR ONE ARREST

The deputies are charged with conducting a "racket" by piling up excessive charges on delinquent taxes and arresting delinquents before making a demand required by law.

Among the latest cases placed before the attorney-general is that of a man from the western part of the state, who says he was ordered to pay $120 on 13 tax bills, each of which contained 13 fees of $6 each for arrest charges, although only one arrest was necessary.

Camera Studies of 'Fist Death' Witness

These camera "shots" give interesting facial reactions of Mrs. Marie Phillips, former Olympic gymnastic star, held as a material witness in the slaying of 5-year-old Nancy Glenn of Philadelphia, confessed by Mary O'Connor, 19-year-old college co-ed. Mrs. Phillips told police the O'Connor girl had confessed the crime to her a day after the body was found in a mud puddle, declaring she had struck Nancy with her fist in a fit of anger. The attractive athlete today branded charges arising from a new line of investigation in the case as "lies."

Foreigners Fear Japan Will Take Settlement

Nipponese Troops Crush Foes; Fall Of Nanking Near

SHANGHAI, Nov. 26 (INS)—Japanese threats to "take over" Shanghai's international settlement caused apprehension among American, British and other foreigners today, while Japanese troops fought to new triumphs on the Western front.

Nipponese army authorities pressed vigorously for recognition of the "right" of their troops to enter the settlement south of Soochow Creek—ostensibly to provide a short cut for troops and supplies en route to Mantao.

While officials argued over this claim, a detachment of Japanese suddenly seized a British-owned pontoon south of the creek and hoisted the Japanese flag.

AREA TO BE TAKEN DEC. 1

Apprehension of foreigners was increased by an unconfirmed rumor, widely circulated, that the Japanese intend to occupy the entire International Settlement, including the American defense sector, December 1.

Meanwhile, advancing north and south of Lake Tai, Japan's legions gained new victories as they smashed toward Nanking through crumbling Chinese defenses.

North of the lake, Nippon's forces advanced nearly 15 miles west of captured Wusih, after cracking the Wusih-Kiangyin fortifications.

DECISIVE BATTLE

South of the lake, the Japanese captured Changhsing, strategically important center, a few miles beyond fallen Huchow.

Nipponese commanders here said their troops have now completed occupation of all key points on the northern, southern and eastern shores of Lake Tai.

They added that a decisive battle is expected shortly along the road to Nanking running west from Wusih.

Britain Again Protests To Japan Government

LONDON, Nov. 26 (INS)—Britain again has lodged representations with the Japanese government with respect to foreign rights in Shanghai, Viscount Cranborne, parliamentary under secretary of state for foreign affairs, revealed in the House of Commons today.

Answering questions regarding protection of British rights and interests in the Chinese metropolis, Cranborne said the renewed representations were made yesterday.

The questions were occasioned by nervousness over reports the Japanese planned to assume control of the International Settlement and the Chinese customs administration in Shanghai.

Nazi Drive Ousts 3000 Jews

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (AP)—Three thousand Jews have been ousted from the German theater, motion pictures and newspaper businesses since 1933, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels announced today at the meeting of the Reich culture chamber of "the strength through joy organization."

Chancellor Hitler attended the meeting.

Goebbels announced a pension scheme for theatrical employes would start January 1.

Trade Union Commissioner Robert Ley disclosed 600,000,000 marks (about $240,000,000) had been spent to date on "beautifying labor."

Of this sum, Ley said, one-third went to improving crew quarters on 324 ships. He said more vessels were under construction, two in the Danzig yards, to carry workers on vacation cruises which will be extended next year to American resorts.

Police Lieutenant James J. Henchey of the Dudley street station was injured today and a Roxbury man was arrested as a result of a collision on Hancock street, Dorchester.

According to police, a car driven by Angus McIntyre of Sherman street, Roxbury, collided with Lieutenant Henchey's machine and kept on going.

In spite of an injured knee, Henchey reported that he chased the McIntyre machine to Dorchester avenue and Hancock street, where it collided with a machine driven by Miss Dorothy Gropesinger of Brook street, Weymouth.

Lodge to Bolster Neutrality Act

By U. S. SENATOR
HENRY CABOT LODGE, JR.

SENATOR LODGE

I intend to introduce a joint resolution with the purpose of preventing the United States from becoming involved in foreign wars.

The resolution seeks to approach this goal by radically amending the present so-called neutrality act, which was passed last winter as a panacea for peace.

Actually it is not neutral at all and tends to get us into war instead of keeping us out of it. It is undoubtedly for this reason that the President is refusing to invoke it at the present time in spite of the fact that the administration was strongly in favor of it last year.

My resolution does five things:

1—It eliminates the vast discretion reposed in the President, which virtually gives him the awesome power of peace and war. This is too big a power for any one man to have or to want.

2—It reduces greatly the need now imposed on the United States government of committing itself in advance of a foreign war and thus restores our freedom of action to act as the interests of peace shall dictate.

3—It strikes out the cash and carry provisions of the present law, which automatically puts the United States on the side of the strongest nation regardless of right or wrong, which endangers the lives and property of persons living in our coastal communities, and which at present would put us on the side of Japan. I believe we do not want to be the allies of Japan or of any other foreign power.

4. It retains those beneficial provisions of the present law which prohibit foreign war-time financing, travel of Americans on belligerent ships, and the use of American ports as a base of supply.

5. It strengthens American peace policy by providing that in case of foreign war all American shipping with belligerent nations shall be at the shipper's own risk.

The law as it now stands is a real threat to the peace of the United States.

I hope that my resolution will be promptly adopted so that our beloved country may continue to have that abiding peace without which none of our internal reforms can succeed.

Text of Lodge Resolve On U. S. Neutrality Act

Following is the text of the joint resolution to be introduced by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., for the purpose of preventing the United States from becoming involved in foreign wars:

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States:

That the first section of the joint resolution entitled "Joint resolution providing for the prohibition of the export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to belligerent countries; the prohibition of the transportation of arms, ammunition, and implements of war by vessels of the United States for the use of belligerent states; for the registration and licensing of persons engaged in the business of manufacturing, exporting, or importing arms, ammunition, or implements of war; and restricting travel by American citizens on belligerent ships during war."

Section 1. Whenever the President has reason to believe that there exists a state of war between, or among, two or more foreign states, or that there exists in a foreign state civil strife which is of such a magnitude or is being conducted under such conditions that the peace of the United States is threatened or endangered, he shall inform the Congress of his belief.

If the Congress shall by concurrent resolution express its concurrence in the belief of the President, the President shall by proclamation declare the existence of such state of war or civil strife and shall in such proclamation name the belligerent states or the state wherein such civil strife exists.

Whenever the President has reason to believe that the conditions which have caused him to issue any proclamation under the authority of this section no longer exists, he shall inform the Congress of his belief. If the Congress shall by concurrent resolution express its concurrence in the belief of the President, he shall revoke any such proclamation.

Sec. 2. Section 2 and subsection (g) of section 5 of such joint resolution of August 31, 1935, as amended, are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. Section 6 of such joint resolution of August 31, 1935, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

Sec. 6. Whenever the President shall have issued a proclamation under the authority of section 1 of this Act, any American vessel which thereafter transports any cargo whatsoever to any belligerent state, or to any state wherein civil strife exists, named in such proclamations, or for the use of any such belligerent state or any such state wherein civil strife exists, shall be deemed to transport such cargo at its own risk and shall not be entitled to such protection from interference by foreign powers as is customarily given to American vessels by the United States.

Sect. 4. Section 8 of such joint resolution of August 31, 1935, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

Sec. 8. Whenever, during any war in which the United States is neutral, the President shall have reason to believe that the placing of special restrictions on the use by the submarines or armed merchant vessels of a foreign state of the ports and territorial waters of the United States will serve to maintain peace between the United States and foreign states, or to protect the commercial interests of the United States and its citizens, or to promote the security of the United States, he shall inform the Congress of the special restrictions which he believes to be desirable.

If the Congress shall by concurrent resolution express its concurrence in the belief of the President, the President shall proclaim such special restrictions and it shall thereafter be unlawful for any such submarine or armed merchant vessel to enter a port of the territorial waters of the United States or to depart therefrom, except under special restrictions.

Whenever the President has reason to believe that the conditions which have necessitated such special restrictions no longer exist, he shall inform the Congress of his belief.

If the Congress shall by concurrent resolution express its concurrence in the belief of the President, such special restrictions shall cease to apply.

Paris Ministry Guarded From Revolt Plot

Surete Seizes More Notables in Probe; Guns Captured

PARIS, Nov. 26 (AP)—The cordon of mobile guards which authorities threw about the Ministry of the Interior with unearthing of a gigantic conspiracy against the Republic was strengthened today as a "precaution."

Troops were stationed inside the Ministry courtyard, and all gates to that important government building were barred.

The Surete Nationale, through which the People's Front government sought to trace and wreck the labyrinthian ramifications of the revolutionary organization, operates under the Interior Ministry.

An official, asked if the ministry were "threatened," replied:

"We are merely taking precautions."

ALL AUTOS SEARCHED

Guards also were maintained on all arteries into the capital. Every automobile and truck was stopped for examination of the papers of the operators and occupants.

More than 20 raids were made in provincial cities yesterday, but the results of most of them were undisclosed.

Paris raiders ransacked an apartment near the War Ministry and reported seizing a machine gun, a dozen rifles, 15,000 cartridges and cases of hand grenades.

Pierre Parent, a Rouen architect, arrested near Rouen, was brought to Paris under guard for inquiry into the source of a large store of arms seized in his luxurious Paris home, near The Invalides.

Surete agents said the cache included 12 sub-machine guns, one machine gun, 13,350 cartridges and 250 hand grenades.

ENGINEER QUESTIONED

Eugene Deloncle, 47-year-old engineering consultant described by Surete agents as founder and head of the "Csar"—"Le Comite Secret d'Action Revolutionaire"—spent last night in Surete headquarters in a crossfire of questions.

He was arrested yesterday and immediately subjected to hours of interrogation on the thwarted conspiracy to overthrow the republican regime to make way for a royal dictatorship.

Officials declined to give the slightest hint of possible developments based on Deloncle's statements.

Deloncle's wife was given her freedom. Her brother, Henri, a Cannes jeweler, and other persons arrested in the sweeping inquiry, including General Edouard Duseigneur, a retired former chief of staff of the air ministry, were in prison.

Two violent deaths and a disappearance were subjects of inquiry in connection with the revolutionary plot.

Sen. Pope Agrees After Italy, Russia Laws Are Compared

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—Yielding to charges that the Senate farm bill carries penalties for non-compliance "equal to those found only in Russia or Italy," its sonsors today romised modifications.

Senator Pope (D.) of Idaho, co-author of the controversial measure, said he would sponsor an amendment revising the penalty provisions, after Senators Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, and Burke (D.) of Nebraska, assailed the measure as "distatorial and unfair" to farmers who decline to join in the program.

Vandenberg and Burke centered their attack on a section of the bill that would make farmers who failed to turn over to the secretary of agriculture certain information regarding their wheat and corn plantings guilty of a misdemeanor," subject to a fine of $100.

LIKE RUSSIA OR ITALY

'Such a provision," said Burke, "is equal to those found only in Y Russia or Italy, and they should be stricken out if this country is to remain a democracy."

Declaring the bill is "so complicated that I doubt if 90 of the 96 Senators can understand it," Vandenberg said penalty provisions would "work a great unfairness to the honest farmer who is trying to comply but can't because of the complicated nature of the bill."

"If you leave these penalties as they are," he said, "honest men men may be thrown into jail, similar to what is being done in countries ruled by dictators."

The House, which was recessed today until Monday, plans to take up its own farm relief bill at that time. The House bill has just been reported in, but so far no debate on the measure has started.

NEED 38 SIGNATURES

The house bill, modeled along the lines laid down by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, is expected to meet a vigorous attack because of its compulsory features.

Five Republicans, one Democrat and a Wisconsin Progressive dissented from the majority committee report on the bill. Representative Andresen of Minnesota announced the minority would file a report on its objections, based principally on opposition to compulsory control of marketing of surpluses.

One Democrat who voted to report the bill, Representative Coffee (D.) of Nebraska, said he did so "just to get the bill on the floor," adding he "probably would vote against it on passage unless the compulsory quota features are removed."

It embraces marketing quotas and strict over-production penalties on cotton, wheat, rice, corn and tobacco.

Meanwhile, sponsors of the wage-nour bill, deadlocked in the House Rules Committe, labored untireingly but in vain over the holiday to obtain additional signatures to a petition to bring that bill to the floor. They had 180 signatures listed today but needed 38 more.

Rep. Mary T. Norton (D.), of New Jersey, chairman of the House Labor Committee and leader of the drive to bring the bill to a vote, was optimistic of getting the measure to the floor within at least two weeks.

RANKIN IN CHALLENGE

A phase of the administration recovery program—extension of "concessions" to induce the utilities to spend up to 1500 millions on extensions and replacements—today drew fire of the House power bloc.

Chairman of the bloc, Rep. Rankin (D) of Mississippi, in a statement said the "utilities" talk of spending 1,000 million dollars for improvements is all bunk."

He proposed they reduce their rates 1000 million dollars instead to "releave overburdened consumers."

Purpose of the industry's overtures, he charged, was to "destroy" the Tennessee Valley authority yardstick and "wreck" the administration's power program.

House to Speed Tax Revision

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—Spurred by President Roosevelt's statement today that he is in favor of tax revision as soon as Congress can get at it, congressional leaders today drove ahead at a faster pace for modification of the capital gains and corporate surplus levies.

House leaders heretofore have been cool to attempted revision before the regular January session, but after Mr. Roosevelt's statement, Chairman Vinson of the ways and means tax sub-committee announced he had no objection to tax action in the present special session.

He was doubtful, however, that it could be accomplished before Christmas because of the time required to frame a general bill.

Ways and Means Chairman Doughton added his word that business may expect helpful tax revision.

Cheaper Dollar Drive Opens In Senate

Leaders Aim to Hoist The Prices of U. S. Commodities

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—With business again receding, currency expansion forces in the Senate, led by Senator Elmer Thomas (D.) of Oklahoma, today launched a new drive to cheapen the dollar with a view to hoisting commodity prices.

Having been successful in forcing passage of the Thomas amendment in 1934, giving President Roosevelt broad power to alter the gold content of the dollar and to issue currency, the "reflation bloc" believes the hour has struck to swing into action, Thomas said.

SEE INDUSTRIAL BOOM

Following a conference of leaders in the bi-partisan bloc, including Senator Smith (D.) of South Carolina, the first step in the new campaign was submission by Thomas of a minority report on the farm bill, advocating stabilization of the dollar at a cheaper level.

The farm bill as written would provide only "half a loaf" for the farmers—control of surpluses—whereas a cheaper dollar in terms of commodities would start prices upward and factory wheels humming full blast, in Thomas' opinion.

The Federal Reserve Board would be delegated comprehensive powers of a monetary authority to cheapen the dollar and stabilize it at the 1929 level of purchasing power, under the current Thomas amendment.

BRIDGES PLANS FIGHT

Thomas' move, however, faced serious opposition, led by Senator H. Styles Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire.

Bridges called for immediate repeal of emergency power given President Roosevelt in 1933 to issue up to 3000 million dollars in green backs, as "one means of restoring the confidence" of business in the administration.

In a letter to Sen. Robert F. Wagner, (D.) of New York, chairman of the Senate committee on banking and currency, Bridges declared that as long as the authority to issue the greenbacks, though never used, remained on the statute books, it constituted a threat of "greenbackism."

Bridges declared that the act, known as the Thomas inflation amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act, was being used by inflationists to "delude people into a belief that in the printing press lies the salvation of the debtor."

President Seeks Tax Revision

attention to recent revival by his critics of the statement Roosevelt made in Charleston, S. C., in the fall of 1935, to the effect, "we planned it that way." Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg (R.) of Michigan in a radio address earlier this week demanded to know why the President was not saying that now.

BACKS BUSINESS DRIVE

Mr. Roosevelt said that from the outset of his administration through the fall of 1935, the government had been concentrating on two things—the stimulation of business as much as possible, and the restoration of values.

That certainly was planned, he said, and business was being stimulated and values were being pushed up.

Inquiries about the collapse of the Nine-Power conference at Brussels and possible future action this government might take to help terminate the Sino-Japanese conflict, elicited from the President only the statement that "we are going to keep on trying."

In response to a specific question, he said he had not heard of any suggestion that the United States offer its individual services as a mediator between Japan and China.

Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped to leave Washington tomorrow night for Florida, being gone nine days.

Hit-Run Theory In Mother's Road Death

New Theory Probed In Hyde Park Mystery

Police today dropped the theory f murder and turned their search o a hit-and-run driver for a soution to the death of Mrs. Eva lichetti, 35, Hyde Park mother, hose battered form was found on etropolitan avenue, Hyde Park.

The second theory came with a eport of Medical Examiner Timthy Leary that the woman had een run over by a truck or autoobile. She died at City Hospital f a broken back shortly after she as found on the roadway.

In reconstructing the crime, poice pictured a fear or drink-crazed river, who first halted to take the voman to a hospital and then itched her body to the road when e believed her dead.

The belief rested in the fact that er hat, shoes and pocketbook vere not found within a 300-foot adius and that the body was found n a spot about two miles from er home.

The woman's husband and her wo daughters, Louise, 14, and Eveyn, 11, were awakened by police to earn of the tragedy.

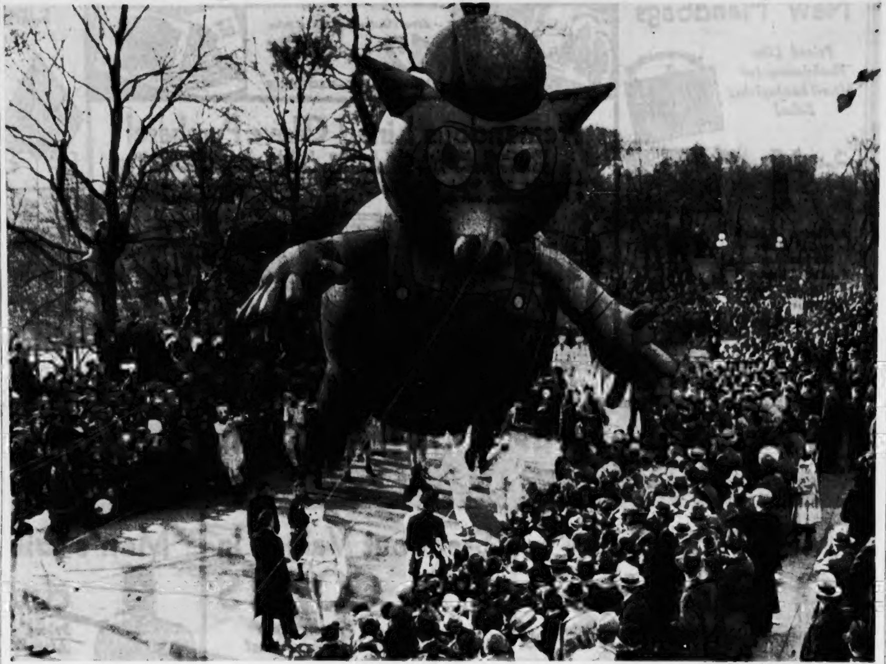
State Police have been asked to heck on all garages for a damaged nachine, while police of the Hyde Park station were sent throughout he district looking for broken glass or other evidence which may indicate the accident scene.

2 Hurt, 3 Escape As Sedan Crashes

Two persons were sent to Boston ity Hospital with slight injuries nd three others escaped when the outhful driver of a sedan swerved uddenly to avoid a dog on Larange street, West Roxbury, early oday. The auto jumped the curbtone, smashed into a street sign, nd overturned.

John E. Sexton, Jr., 19, and John Condron, 26, both of Washington treet, West Roxbury, were taken to Boston City Hospital by West Roxbury police. Three other occupants John Bernazzani, and Catherine and Helen Heustis, all also of West Roxbury, escaped injury.

This 'Wee' Pig Went to Market as Children Squealed



Boston Evening American Photo

As thousands of children squealed and screamed in delight, this helium-filled "Little Pig" floated along in the annual parade, sponsored by the Jordan Marsh Company, that heralded the arrival of Santason for a month's visit to that store. The annual colorful spectacle was declared the most entertaining on record and drew nearly a million people, the largest number ever to witness the event.

Santason Parade Hailed by Million

Rousing Reception By Record Throng of Old and Young Mark Jordan's Spectacle

Santason, young son of Santa Claus, began a month's stay today in Boston following a tumultuous reception parade in his honor witnessed by nearly a million gleeful spectators of all ages.

The smiling heir of St. Nick set up headquarters on the second floor of the Jordan Marsh Company, sponsors of the parade, where he will remain to greet Boston children on behalf of his famous father until Christmas.

A tremendous holiday crowd jammed the downtown area yesterday to witness the colorful demonstration which marked his arrival here after an airplane journey from the North Pole.

It was a parade seldom equalled —or even approached—for variety, entertainment and the sheer spirit of revelry that seemed to fill both young and old alike as the 5000 marchers filed past in fantastic array.

CLOWNS BRING SQUEALS

Towering as high as 120 feet in the air, huge helium-filled balloons representing Mickey Mouse, the Big Bad Wolf and other characters beloved by children highlighted the procession.

Multi-colored costumes of innumerable clowns mingled with the brilliant uniforms of numerous bands, grotesques, floats and other attractions arranged by Jordan Marsh to delight the squealing youngsters.

Featuring the parade was the story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs told in seven picturesque floats, which will be on view at the Jordan Marsh store during the pre-Christmas period.

Crowds were packed 20 deep along the route, policed by harassed but smiling officers, as Marshal John B. Cadigan of the Jordan Marsh company led the parade past Governor Hurley's reviewing stand and before another at City Hall. At the latter spot, Maurice J. Tobin and his two children saluted the marchers.

LANDS IN PLANE

Santason arrived from Cleveland on the last leg of the trip at 11 a. m. in his plane, the Northwind II, which landed in the Charles river basin. A Metropolitan Police launch sped him to the Union Boat Club landing, where a reception committee of Boston children greeted him.

The committee, to whom Santason presented special gifts, was composed of Carmella Leguidici, 8, and Joseph Krupwick, 7, from the Wall street center of the Elizabeth Peabody Settlement House, and Catherine Larcome, 10, and her brother, Harold, 7, from the Home for Destitute Catholic children.

The guest of honor, riding on a special float, was greeted by continuous cheers from excited, bright-eyed children all along the route as his float passed.

Windsors Attend Holiday Services

PARIS, Nov. 26—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor attended Thanksgiving services at the American Quai D'Orsay Church. They were guests of United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The pastor, the Rev. Clayton E. Williams, suggested it would be particularly appropriate for the Windsors to attend because "the first Americans to celebrate Thanksgiving were English."

20,000 Expected at Huge Beano for Basket Fund

Committees have been formed in Worcester, Marlboro, Norwood, Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill to aid in "putting over" the gigantic beano party at the Boston Garden on Saturday night, December 11.

The reports being received from these centers by General Chairman James F. O'Rourke, chief ranger of St. Augustine's Court, M. C. O. F., indicate a banner gathering for the greatest single beano party ever arranged in the country.

Here in Boston a ticket committee headed by Charles F. Dwyer, Albert J. Cass, Frederick Neafsey and G. C. Clark started to work yesterday and the response to their efforts clearly indicate an intense interest in the party locally.

BASKET FUND TO SHARE

The Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund is to receive a percentage of the receipts of the party and it is hoped by Chairman O'Rourke that this will be a record-breaking contribution to this fund.

To properly handle so great a crowd at a single beano party Chairman O'Rourke is perfecting plans for the presence in the building that night of a great body of volunteer workers who will check the games and see that all winners are properly recognized once the magic call "beano" resounds. The calling of the numbers will be done by one of the best callers in the state.

CROWD EXPECTED

From the Boston Garden word has been received that under present plans close to 20,000 people will be seated in the structure on the night of the party.

Central headquarters of the committee have been located in rooms 278 and 379 at the Parker House with sub-headquarters in various outlying sections, including the Bancroft Hotel in Worcester. Mayor Sullivan of Worcester has evinced a keen interest in the party and has expressed a willingness to co-operate with the committee.

DiStasios Back In Death House

Once again today Frank and Anthony DiStasio—father and son —trudged the dread path from Cherry Hill in State Prison to the death house where, in the week beginning December 5, they are scheduled to die in the electric chair.

For the father it was his fourth arrival in the death house and for the son the third.

Departure of the pair from the Cherry Hill section left Edward P. Simpson as the only occupant there of the special cells for condemned men waiting to be moved the next step toward eternity.

They entered the death house by the rear door and passed through the execution chamber with its covered and screened chair.

As in their previous occupancies of the death house together, the son, Anthony, was placed in Cell No. 1, nearest the execution chamber, indicating that he would be first to die. His father was placed in the adjoining cell, No. 2.

While in the death house they may order anything in the way of food and tobacco that they wish, but Simpson remains on regular prison fare until he, too, takes a walk across the yard.

Quintet Trapped In Store Face 200 at Lineup

One Still Insists He Was Only Looking For Turkeys

Before Police Commissioner Timilty and 200 detectives and police officers, five men trapped in the basement of Rhodes Brothers provision store in Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, were paraded today in the police headquarters showup.

Even his four alleged companions giggled under the bright lights when one of the prisoners, Joseph Ghelia of West Seventh street, South Boston, solemnly told police inquisitors that he had gone into the market "looking for turkeys." He said it was his car the quintet used.

Another of the five, Walter J. Barrett, 33, of Kenwood street, Dorchester, refused to answer any police questions "on instructions by counsel," although police reminded him that he had talked with no attorney since his arrest yesterday.

A third, Anthony Peno, 30, of Kennebec street, Dorchester, declared his mind was "in a fog" and he could not remember anything.

The fourth man, Samuel Granada, 34, of Brooklyn, admitted having served time in Sing Sing, Dannemora, Comstock and Auburn prisons, all in New York State.

George O'Brien, 26, of Pleasant street, Dorchester, the fifth man, said he was picked up by the other four at 2:30 p. m. yesterday in Uphams Corner, Dorchester, after he had told one of the group he needed money.

At conclusion of the showup, Back Bay police sent two cruiser cars, a patrol wagon and a motorcycle officer, all armed with revolvers and shotguns, to return the five to Back Bay police station.

Thirty police captured the five in the store basement after a free-for-all battle during which some of the quintet were knocked unconscious.

With excitement gripping the neighborhood, 1500 spectators watched police march out their captives, with hands held high in surrender.

Blue Law Cafe Music Ban Off

Amusements to Come Under Recent Rules

Boston's blue law squabble over music and amusement on Sundays in cafes and restaurants ended today when Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley instructed the licensing division of the mayor's office to return to the old system used before the blue law was invoked recently.

Under this system, practiced until someone invoked the ancient blue law, applications for Sunday amusement licenses will be received weekly by the licensing division and then passed on to the State Department of Public Safety for approval.

At the state department today it was said licenses would be approved as usual, provided they conformed to the law—as always has been required.

The ancient blue law, therefore, is apparently outmoded.

Seek Life Boats Of Lost Freighter

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (INS)—All ships in the vicinity of Tortuga Island, West Indies, and the windward passage were asked today to keep on the lookout for boats or rafts from the British freighter Nollington Court, believed sunk in a rain squall.

The call for assistance was flashed to Mackay Radio here by the steamer Chargres which reported she had taken 18 of the Nollington Court's crew aboard, leaving seven men on the stricken ship.

Fireman Injured At Lawrence Blaze

LAWRENCE, Nov. 26—One fireman was injured and damage estimated at $25,000 resulted today when a general alarm blaze gutted historic St. Mary's Auditorium, Haverhill street landmark.

The injured firefighter was Joseph Murphy, attached to Engine Company 9, who was severely cut on the right arm when struck by falling glass. He was taken to Lawrence General Hospital.

Sheehan Named To Rid Revere Of Racketeers

Hurley Orders War on Crime; Foley Plans Grand Jury Quiz

the Fields Corner station, Captain Sheehan left for police headquarters, where he conferred briefly with Commissioner Timilty and Superintendent Edward W. Fallon.

PICKS TWO AIDES

Accompanied by Commissioner Timilty, Captain Sheehan soon departed for the courthouse where the two went into a conference with District Attorney Foley.

Captain Sheehan said the nucleus of his squad, which he said he had not selected as yet, would be the "racket-busting" pair, Sergeants Joseph F. Condon of the Milk street station and William H. Owen of the Fields Corner station.

Both officers were associated with Captain Sheehan in his successful "drive against crime" in Boston. Among others expected to be picked are Sergeant William Long and Special Officer William Jennings, both of whom were also part of the captain's Boston "untouchable squad."

Captain Sheehan indicated that Sergeants Condon and Owen would start working with him immediately, and that the others would not be named until he and his two chief lieutenants had a true picture of the "Revere situation."

"CLEAN UP AT ANY COST!"

During his conference with District Attorney Foley, Captain Sheehan was told, it was learned, to "consider yourself the holder of dictatorial powers."

"Request any legal or any man-power aid you need," the district attorney was understood to have told Captain heehan.

"Don't let expense stand in your way. You have the power to do anything you want—but clean up Revere!" District Attorney Foley told Captain heehan in effect.

A police stenographer and personal stenographer were assigned to Captain heehan and also a photographer to take whatever pictures may be deemed necessary.

While Captain Sheehan's plans were as yet incomplete, it was learned by the Boston Evening American that his immediate steps included:

A talk with the Rev. E. Ambrose Jenkins of Revere, a bitter foe of racket conditions in that city.

A conference with officers of the Revere Vigilantes, an organization bent on cleaning up the city of "crime and corruption."

INVADING EAST BOSTON

An "invasion" of East Boston, with an augmented squad, to wipe out Revere racketters who have extended their number pool and horse race operations into that section of Boston.

An "invasion" of Revere to "question everybody."

While Captain Sheehan's assignment to the beach resort city "rocked" the city, Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere and Police Chief Edward J. Tighe, over whose department Captain Sheehan has the "upper hand," declared they had not been informed of Governor Hurley's move but would "co-operate in every way possible."

Mayor O'Brien told the Boston Evening American:

"I have not been in communication with or have I heard in any way from Governor Hurley, District Attorney Foley or Public Safety Commissioner Kirk.

MAYOR PLEDGES AID

"The first information that I had about the ordering of Captain Sheehan and Boston police officers into Revere was when reporters called me.

"However, if those officials feel that Captain Sheehan and the Boston police should come in here, I am not opposed to it and I shall direct members of the Revere police department to give them the fullest cooperation.

"When I talked with Chief Tighe on the afternoon of Gaeta's murder I told him that if he thought it was necessary to obtain assistance of the state police, I would not be opposed to such a move. I left that to his judgment.

"I think he felt that his department could handle the situation itself."

"I have not seen or heard from Captain Sheehan as yet. The only information I have is what you fellows have told me.

PLEDGES POLICE AID

"If Captain Sheehan comes into Revere with Boston police officers, I shall cooperate with him in every way and I shall order my officers to cooperate with Captain Sheehan and his officers in every way possible."

The statements of the mayor and the police chief came as police activity in Revere in connection with the murder of Gaeta, slain outside a Shirley avenue cafe by one of three men with whom he quarreled, was at a standstill.

Last Wednesday, the day following Gaeta's slaying, the Rev. Mr. Jenkins, with whom Captain Sheehan plans to confer, said he would demand Governor Hurley put an end to gangland rule in Revere.

While failing to take this action immediately, the minister, heading the Revere Vigilantes, went ahead with plans of his own to clean up the city with a "picked squad" of three officers.

Two of these officers, it was learned, were Lieutenant Carroll Davis and Detective Thomas T. O'Hara.

The Rev. Mr. Jenkins revealed his plans, stating the Vigilantes planned daily tours of the city in their clean-up drive.

FIND REVERE ORDERLY

"We're going to ask Mayor O'Brien to assign them under the direction of our committee, for we want to have them available when it is necessary to use them," he said.

"Two other members of the vigilantes and myself made an entire tour of Revere which kept us out until 2:15 o'clock this morning," he continued.

"We were pleased to find that law and order once more prevails in Revere. All the gambling establishments have been closed. The number pools are not operating. Drinking places, except in one instance, were closed at the legal hour.

"It just proves that the law can be enforced by Revere police but it shouldn't be necessary to have a murder or a major crime committed before laws are enforced.

"After the state police raids in February this city was closed as tight as a drum for six weeks and it will be closed as tight as a drum for six weeks or two months now.

TO NAME THIRD MAN

"As a result of our trip last night we find that it would not be necessary at this time to have a special police detail to break up the gangs and stop crime in Revere.

"That does not mean we will postpone our plan to have such a detail assigned to us and to be ready when we need them."

The minister said the third officer would be selected at a meeting Monday night.

Lieutenant Davis still carries scars from previous attempts to clean out gangster hangouts in the past. The most serious are those he has carried since 1932 after injuries he suffered in a raid kept him between life and death for a time at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett.

The body of Gaeta, World War veteran and reputed "good fellow," lay in state today at headquarters of Revere Post, American Legion, of which he was once vice-commander.

PAY OFFICIAL TRIBUTE

At the same time, the city of Revere paid official tribute to the slain racketeer by flying flags half-staffed on all public buildings, including city hall and police headquarters.

Public officials pointed out that Gaeta was eligible for the honor under an ordinance designed to honor all war heroes at the time of their death.

It is expected that city officials, who knew him as a war hero, and Greater Boston gangsters, who knew him as an associate, would rub elbows tomorrow at his funeral services.

A solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Anthony's Church, Revere street, at 10 o'clock. Full military honors will be accorded the slain gambling king by his comrades of Revere Post.

Meanwhile, Revere police had despaired of the man wanted for the murder surrendering, as had been anticipated for the last 48 hours.

Investigators were told reliably that he now has fled to New York on advice of friends.

It was pointed out that the police have three witnesses under guard who declare they positively identify the man who fired four shots into Gaeta's body in front of a Shirley street restaurant.

LED TO GAETA'S DEATH

Thus far, all tips as to the hide-out of the sought gangster have proved unfruitful, police said. The latest sent police to an East Boston house, where he was supposed to visit early today. He did not appear during a two-hour surveillance.

Rev. Mr. Jenkins today admitted for the first time that it was his organization which conferred with State Police Commissioner Paul Kirk over conditions in Revere. He said that a few days later state police staged the raids which showed the city to be running wide-open.

Ironically enough, the raids led indirectly to Gaeta's death. At that time Gaeta was but the front man, operating horse race rooms for a syndicate which included the man police accuse as his murderer.

With the raids, the gambling rooms closed until the state police action blew over but when they reopened, they opened under the sponsorship of Louis Gaeta, with the old gang frozen out.

All Set to Drive Gangsters Out of Revere

COMMISSIONER TIMILTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY FOLEY CAPTAIN SHEEHAN

Wholesale cleanup of Revere has begun! Given "unlimited power, Captain James T. Sheehan, right, of Fields Corner station and former Boston police "crime-buster," was on the job soon after Governor Hurley assigned him to head a squad to "take over" Revere. He is shown with District Attorney William J. Foley, center, who called the conference resulting in Captain Sheehan's appointment, and Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty, left, who attended the meeting at the State House.

Trunks Held By Uncle Sam

Socialite Boones Had Declared Only $175

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—The socially and financially well-to-do James R. Herbert Boones, of New York today without 31 of the 37 pieces of baggage they took ashore yesterday from the Europa.

Customs officials said they were examining the 31 trunks and bags to test the Boones' declaration of less than $175 worth of jewelry and other foreign-bought goods acquired during a nine-months stays in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Boone—he a descendant of Cecil Calvert, Lord Baltimore, and Pocahontas, and she heiress to $4,318,851 of the estate of her grand-uncle, J. Dundas Lippincott of Philadelphia—were questioned for five hours at the pier by Customs agents, who released them but held their baggage. Some jewelry worn by Boone was held for further appraisal.

Admiral Patton Dies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Rear Admiral Raymond S. Patton, 54, government chartmaker, is dead here today. He was engaged in charting coasts of the United States mainland, and island possessions.

Sheehan Noted for His Boston 'Crime Busting'

Vigorous, honest and relentless, Captain James T. Sheehan of the Fields Corner station, crime-buster de luxe, is once again Boston's answer to the challenge of gangdom.

In less than 10 years three police commissioners have called upon Captain Sheehan to clean up rackets and organized crime.

Friend of Chief G-Man Edgar Hoover and responsible for the grooming of many G-men for crime investigation, Sheehan is recognized as the most efficient police officer in the state.

Sheehan, former head of the Boston police department's "untouchable squad," swings into action with his own picked squad.

Beginning as a special officer in the East Dedham street station, Sheehan, quick-thinking and a bitter foe of dishonesty in his department, switched to Back Bay headquarters, then to temporary head of the detective bureau. His work was so efficient there that he was made head of the Bureau of Records.

Former Police Commissioner McSweeney, in a determined move to scatter underworld leaders, appointed Captain Sheehan as inspector of divisions last year to clean up the racket situation in Roxbury.

Conducting a relentless war, which lasted 10 months, he destroyed illicit gambling enterprises in Roxbury, the same kind of a task he has been assigned to in Revere.

Sheehan is the most feared man in the department.

Racketeers have knocked at his door time and time again and failed. Politicians have tried to maneuver him, often attempted to blast him out of his position. And they failed, too.

Sheehan was graduated from the special crime school conducted by Chief G-Man Hoover in 1935, and his certificate of approval was personally presented to him by U. S. Attorney General Homer Cummings.

Chief Tighe Tells Of Death Suspect

Breaking his silence for the first time since the murder of Louis Gaeta, RRevere "gambling king," last Tuesday, Police Chief Edward J. Tighe of Revere today granted the following interview with a Boston Evening American reporter.

The interview was given before Governor Hurley ordered a clean-up of Revere by Boston police under the supervision of Captain James T. Sheehan of the Fields Corner Station, who is former head of the Boston "racket-busting and untouchables squad."

CHIEF E. J. TIGHE
Tells His Story

Q—Do you know who killed Gaeta? A—We want a well-known Revere racketeer for questioning. We have been searching for him since the shooting. On the afternoon of the shooting, after talking to several witnesses, I sent out an eight-state teletype alarm for his apprehension.

Q—Did any of the witnesses actually see the shooting? A—Three of them did and they can identify the man who pulled the trigger.

Q—Have you broadcast the automobile registration of the machine used in the shooting? A—No. We want an — sedan whose registration number is —. We also want the owner of the car.

Q—Who is the owner? A—I can't say at this time. The car, however, has not been seen since the day of the shooting.

Q—What do you think was the motive for the murder? A—I think the shooting was done in anger on the spur o' the moment during a quarrel. I don't know what the quarrel was about."

Chief Tighe, in response to questions, made the following denials:

That he knew of Gaeta's number pool and horse race activities in Revere.

That he knew the shooting was the result of Gaeta's alleged dealings with racketeers.

That he had heard Gaeta had threatened the operator of a Revere gambling spot to close up.

That the operator defiantly refused to close up.

That Gaeta had been lead out of the gambling house by another man following a furious quarrel with the owner.

Death Takes Arthur J. Crowley

Son of Late Police Head Succumbs to Pneumonia

ARTHUR J. CROWLEY

Arthur J. Crowley, Suffolk County court officer, son of the late police superintendent and popular devotee of sports, died early today at Carney Hospital, South Boston.

Crowley, who numbered among his close friends Babe Ruth of baseball fame; Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champions and many others in the realm of sport, succumbed to pneumonia after an illness of two weeks.

Funeral services will be on Monday at 9 a. m. in St. Williams church, Dorchester.

His fiancee, Miss Edith Fiori, was at his bedside until 1:30 a. m. When she left Crowley had apparently rallied and seemed to be resting comfortably.

TURN FOR WORSE

He is survived by a brother, Harry Crowley, with whom he lived; two uncles, John and Fire Captain Daniel F., and Detective Paul J. Crowley, of the police department, a cousin.

He made his home at 49 Bakersfield street, Dorchester, where he had lived many years with his father, Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley.

Last rites of the Catholic Church were administered last Sunday night and many of his personal friends in the priesthood had visited him frequently since.

The turn for the worse came late during the night and death claimed him at 4:20 a. m. today.

BORN IN DORCHESTER

Crowley was born 44 years ago in Dorchester and attended Boston Latin School for a time but was graduated from English High School.

Even then he was widely sought after as a companion for his jovial disposition, his talent as an entertainer at the piano and his general love of life.

He went in heavy for dramatics during his high school days but also played football and baseball, starting a love for sport which he held all through his days.

After high school he did a few turns on a vaudeville circuit with a piano act, but on February 1, 1917, was appointed a court officer. The war interrupted here and he served in the navy, returning to become a court officer again.

TRIBUTES FROM STARS

Although interested both in police and correctional work, he had chosen the latter because of a fear that a police career might set him down as a success only because of his father's high position.

As funeral services were being arranged today, telegrams and floral tributes poured in at Carney Hospital and at the Crowley home in Bakersfield street, where he lived with the surviving brother, Harry A. Crowley, salesman.

Among others, telegrams of condolence were received from Babe Ruth, Joe Cronin, Boo Quinn, Charlie Ruffing, Tris Speaker and many more ball players.

Churches Ask Aid For War Victims

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—A united Christmas appeal for funds for war sufferers is being issued to 125,000 clergymen throughout the country by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Under the title "A Christian Witness to a World at War" the appeal asks "a united, practical testimony of Christian sympathy" for the relief of children and other civilian sufferers in China and Spain, and for Christian German refugees.

Historic Castle Burns

HYTHE, Kent, Nov. 26 (AP)—Fire seriously damaged the upper rooms of Saltwood Castle today. It was in Saltwood that the murderers of Thomas A'Becket slept the night before they rode to Canterbury to slay him.

Plan Services Monday For Fr. Kiley

Gloucester Pastor Formerly Served In Concord

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 26—Solemn pontifical mass of requiem will be celebrated Monday for Rev. Myles D. Kiley, 73, I. P. P. of St. Ann's Church and former parish priest in Concord, who died here yesterday.

The celebrant will be his brother, the Most Rev. Moses E. Kiley, bishop of Trenton, N. J. The deacon will be the Rev. John J. McGarry and the sub-deacon will be the Rev. Alfred J. McDonald. The Rev. John R. McCool will be archpriest and the Rev. Miles J. McSweeney will deliver the eulogy.

JOSEPH F. STICKNEY

Funeral services are being planned for Patrolman Joseph F. Stickney, 67, of Salem, who died yesterday at Chelsea Naval Hospital after a brief illness. He had been a policeman since 1900.

He fought in the battle of San Juan Hill during the Spanish-American War.

HILDA T. NALCHAJIAN

Mrs. Hilda T. Nalchajian, wife of Dr. Dikran D. Nalchajian, 5 Nichols road, Chelsea, will be buried in Woodlawn Cemetery today. Services will take place at 2 p. m. in the First Congregational Church, County road, Chelsea. She was born in Germany and came to the United States as a young girl.

MRS. MINNIE HAUMAN

Funeral rites for Mrs. Minnie Squire (Sullivan) Hauman, 76, of Revere and Lexington, one of the oldest members of the Professional Women's Club in Boston and widow of George Hauman, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Woodlawn Cemetery Chapel, Everett. She had lived many years in Revere before moving recently to Lexington, where she died.

JOSEPHINE M. EVANS

Mrs. Josephine M. Evans, 56, of Wilmington, will be buried today at West Newbury. She was the widow of Charles M. Evans, former president of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce. The funeral services will be held at the Park Avenue Congregational Church, Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Evans died at the Winchester Hospital Wednesday. She was a member of the Arlington Women's, the Wilmington Women's and the Arlington Heights Study Clubs.

Girl Is Witness In Hospital Suit

WORCESTER, Nov. 26—Helen Galonek, 30, of Southbridge, formerly of Brookline, the central figure in a manhunt and fatal shooting on August 9, 1931, was in district court today as a witness in a suit brought by the city of Worcester against the town of Southbridge.

The suit concerns the bill Helen contracted while she was a patient in Worcester General Hospital, suffering from injuries inflicted when the car in which she was fleeing from police with Robert J. Mahoney of Dorchester crashed into a tree.

Mahoney was wanted by police for a holdup in which he shot and wounded State Trooper George Doring.

The chase, which started in South Sudbury, ended in Spencer, with Mahoney's car hitting the tree, injuring the girl.

Mahoney was later shot to death. Miss Salonek was acquitted of a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Judge Albert T. Wall took the present case under advisement.

Doctor's Report Refutes Lowell Girl's 'Miracle'

LOWELL, Nov. 26—Dr. Leon D. Sullivan, the attending physician, said today he has forwarded a report to Cardinal O'Connell, stating belief that no miracle has occurred to cure 16-year-old Lorraine Frechette of 122 Dracut street.

Last Tuesday a report said the girl, a sufferer from chronic arthritis since April, had been cured at Ste Therese's Church, Dracut, and had walked from the church, her first walking since stricken.

"That was not the first time she walked," said Dr. Sullivan today. "A week ago last Saturday, Lorraine walked through the house with my assistance.

"It was only a question of time until she got sufficient confidence to walk by herself. She is far from cured and it will require at least another year before she is recovered."

"As I understand miracles," he declared, "she should be completely cured, but she is not.

"Her hands are still stiff and she can turn her head only in one direction. She is unable to get up from a sitting position or to seat herself because the spine is still stiff."

17 Seamen Safe On Rescue Tug

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 26 (AP)—Tropical Radio was advised today the 17 seamen remaining aboard the British freighter Nollington Court, in distress off Haiti, had been rescued, but that the vessel was a total loss.

Previously, the freighter Chagres had rescued 18 of the crew, but feared the remaining 17 had perished when the sinking Nollington Court vanished during the night.

A message from the tug Killereg, relayed by the steamer City of Manchester, said:

"Tug Killereg took remaining 17 crew from Nollington Court.

Darning Kept Phone 'Busy'

NORTH BAY, Ont., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—Telephones can be used for other things besides talking.

Seems that recently subscribers on a rural line near here complained of one telephone being used all the time. Only clue was that everyone on the line said they could hear a clock ticking.

An inspector went to investigate. He visited each home on the line. Finally he entered a house where an elderly woman lived alone. The mystery was solved.

She used the telephone receiver as a "darning egg" in mending sox.

MacDonald Rites In Westminster

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Funeral services for James Ramsay MacDonald, son of a poor Scottish farmer who forged the British labor movement and lived to count the late King George V among his friends, were held today in the somber dignity of Westminster Abbey.

The Duke of Gloucester, representing his brother, King George VI, headed the host of notables, who mourned the former British prime minister. MacDonald died Nov. 9 on his way to South America for a rest. He was 71 years old.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

WHEN YOU READ the Florida entries at Hialeah and Tropical Park the name of the Shamrock Stables will carry a familiar ring . . . that will mean the invasion by William Scully, the angel of Boston's professional footbal team, of the racing game . . . Scully has bought four horses, Occidental, Hogan's Folly, Brush Past and a jumper by the name of Bodkin, which also runs on the flat.

The colorful successor to the material George Marshall begins to size up as quite a gent . . . He guaranteed his disappointed Shamrocks the mass sum of $5000 to journey to Los Angeles and meet the Bulldogs . . . But orders were sent to the box office to divvy the Boston end of the purse between the players . . . The game played to 18,000 persons, and the Boston portion of the gross proved to be only $7500.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Emil Coulon 3d, will be the name of the Thanksgiving Eve addition to the hotel man's family . . . The score is now three girls and a boy . . . The slain Revere racketeer, Louis Gaeta, first attracted the attention of the underworld in 1928 when he ran a lone dollar into more than $10,000 at a Revere dice game . . . Sally Curley White, wife of the former city censor, is convalescing in Florida . . . Twenty years ago the 101st Infantry had turkey and potatoes, but no cranberry sauce, for Thanksgiving . . . Practical jokers in his own band gave Joe Cabellero's wooden leg a "hot foot" . . . The leg was in flames in a hurry.

Dimples Reed, appearing in a Boston nightclub currently, is being courted by a Cape Cod Mr. Big . . . Billy Payne returns to the Penthouse show Monday night . . . The Famous Door strings along with the policy of three shows a night, beginning Monday . . . Many of the clubs are expected to do the same, with the Mayfair's announcement already made.

Teddy Baxter, the South Boston lawyer, will be feted at the Statler Monday. He'll run for State Senator next election . . . "You Can't Take It With You" is in rehearsal in London, with at all British cast.

CHATTER:

Lew Conrad, the Cocoanut Grove singing band-leader, is listening to records of Chinese music. He thinks it can be swung . . . McCarthy Kaplan, the Roxbury newspaperman, and Charlotte Finn will declare intentions of matrimony shortly.

Bruce Macfarlane, the actor, visited with his mother, who was Alice Gentle, the Chicago Opera Company "Carmen," at the Hotel Brunswick yesterday . . . Bruce played the lead in "Sailor Beware," and "Behind Red Lights" . . . He's set now for the lead in Sam Grisman's production of "Tortilla Flat," the novel by John Steinbeck which preceded "Of Mice and Men."

The annual Boston College "Big Game" Dance will take place tonight at the Statler.

RKO 'Stage Door' Film Tops in Screen Fare

By PEGGY DOYLE

If you liked the stage play, "Stage Door," you'll dote on Hollywood's screen transcription of it with Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers so outdistancing themselves dramatically they seem like two utterly different girls.

This Keith-Memorial package of entertainment is pure platinum and cause for genuine thanksgiving.

The Kaufman-Ferber stage hit, you'll remember, gave the bird to Hollywood and all its talent-suicidal works. Screen star Joan Bennett, who played the Hepburn role during the play's tenancy at the Shubert, lent her soprano to the lambasting the films took for the debasement of the drama.

* * *

The screen version of "Stage Door," reversing the charges, blames an inaccessible Broadway producer, who has plenty of time for trifling and none at all for aspiring Cornells and Hayeses, for the Footlights Club heartbreaks.

It is as sharp and smooth and witty a script as you'll be entertained by this or next year, and it is the work of Morrie Ryskind and Anthony Veiller. They have retained the inviting title and the New York locale but they have revamped, reupholstered and revitalized the play to such an extent that Playwrights Kaufman and Ferber may be surprised to find their brainchild's screen success completely overshadowing its really impressive stage triumphs.

On the Keith-Memorial screen, Miss Hepburn has been given a Park avenue background. She is one of the stage-struck maidens at the Footlights Club, where life is as eventful as the menu is unchanging.

Her roommate is the blonde bombshell, Miss Rogers. She, Gail Patrick, Lucille Ball, Eve Arden, Margaret Early and others of the Footlights membership are all sufficiently gifted conversationally to be perfectly at home in the company of "The Women"—if you know what we mean. You'll enjoy every syllable of it, boys and girls.

* * *

Katie Hepburn, who hasn't been in the critics' or fans' good-books for some time now, covers herself with glory, particularly in the play-within-a-play sequence in which she is called upon to revive "The Lake," in which her talents were completely submerged on Broadway a couple of years back.

Ginger Rogers, erstwhile celluloid dancing partner of Fred Astaire, is a revelation as the wise-cracking opportunist, Jean Maitland. Adolphe Menjou, as the big Broadway producer, who airs Gail Patrick for Ginger and Ginger for the Hepburn, is superb. Andrea Leeds, as the girl voted to be the club's best actress who can't get another stage job, gives a sensitive performance that should send her places. That grand character actress, Constance Collier, adds laurels to her verdant crown in the role of an ex-tragedy queen who won't admit she's through.

Gregory La Cava's direction is inspired and the photography tops. All in all, RKO-Radio's "Stage Door" is the retort perfect to the belittling Hollywood suffered at the hands of George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber in their smart play.

"Prescription for Romance," with Wendy Barrie and Kent Taylor, is the co-feature.

'Loves Me, Loves Me---'

William Powell tries the age-old questionnaire in "Double Wedding," new film headlining the screen bill at Loew's State and Orpheum, while Myrna Loy looks on.

Opera Star Wins Top Honors On Boston's Vaudeville Bill

Golden-voiced Marjorie Gainsworth, Chicago Civic Opera company prima donna who has recently signed a Hollywood contract, is the program's best argument for attending the RKO-Boston stage show this week.

Lovely to look at, she is also possessed of one of the stage's finest voices.

Boys and girls (the grown-up variety) who love a parade, particularly a Santason parade, warmly applauded Miss Gainsworth at yesterday's opening holiday show until she responded graciously to two curtain calls.

She opened her brief recital with a cleverly arranged medley of popular hits and classic opera arias. The Italian street song from "Naughty Marietta" and "Indian Love Call" were favorites with the audience.

Frank ("Gift of Gab") Gaby presided as master of ceremonies and doubled in brassy double-talk with a dummy that will never displace Charlie McCarthy in our affections. The rhythmic dancers, Gower and Jeannie, here following a long and successful engagement at the Los Angeles Cocoanut Grove, are attractive and talented youngsters. Jack Williams' tap-dancing is also something to give your attention to.

Old-time favorite Professor Lamberti, who plays at rather than on his xylophone, was another who received an enthusiastic welcome from his many friends in the house. His suggestion that the audience "request songs and then see if I play 'em" always gets a hand, but he got a really big hand when he actually played his specialty, "Sweet Mystery of Life."

Marion Belett and the English Brothers are a threesome who know how to throw dignity to the four winds and make an audience like it. The Five Jansleys, who do tumbling a la springboard, have something there.

Claire Trevor is the "Big Town Girl" of the feature picture of the same name; She is a distinctive screen personality and you'll enjoy her adventures.

"Double Wedding," bracketted with "Dark Journey," on the double-feature holiday bill at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, is as nutty as a Thanksgiving fruit-cake — but not nearly so tasty.

Its stars are those irresistible smoothies, Myrna Loy and William Powell. Remember them (who could EVER forget them!) in "The Thin Man?" Instead of silken, they are called upon to be durable in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Double Wedding," which positively reeks with clowning and slapstick.

Miss Loy is a humorless, dominating business-woman and Powell, a too-too whimsical artist. Now, I ask you ! ! ! Adrian, who usually does right by our screen Nells, has dressed the usually lovely Loy up to her stern business-woman portrayal and it must be said that she never looked less alluring.

Powell's costume is equally disheartening—a raccoon coat, beret and empty pockets. It's enough to make Leo, the lion, roar to high heaven. It's hardly believable that these two suave celluloid cosmopolites are happy in this unaccustomed mood and tense.

Believe it or not, in the final shot they are shown, battered and bruised, on the floor, thanks to their ruffian-wedding guests, their faces polka-dotted with meringue, also thanks to their guests.

But you may like all this, so excuse it, please. Briefly, Myrna is the elder, managing sister of pretty Florence Rice. Before her death, their mother had chosen shy and awkward John Beal as Florence's future husband.

The two youngsters object, but entre nous, to big sister's managing ways and it takes Bill Powell, vagabond artist, to really stand up to Myrna. Time marches on purty slowly as footage goes but eventually Bill and Myrna admit it's love they're after.

Conrad Veidt and the dazzling English beauty, Vivien Leigh, indulge in an absorbing game of spy-chases-spy in "Dark Journey." The background is Stockholm, a neutral capital infested with spies during the last years of the World War.

'Ebb Tide,' Met Screen Hit, Stirring Drama

Dublin's Barry Fitzgerald, Vienna's Oscar Homolka, Hollywood's Technicolor and Boston's James Hogan are principally responsible for "Ebb Tide," Paramount's stirring and unusual color picture now showing on the Metropolitan screen.

Hal LeRoy, Ziegfeld dancing star, and the Disappearing Water Ballet featuring Lottie Mayer's 12 Hollywood dancing, diving beauties, head the super-special holiday week stage show.

"Ebb Tide" offers some of the most striking color backgrounds Technicolor has yet provided. Particularly effective are the sea and sky sequences.

Fitzgerald, of the celebrated Abbey Players, has the edge on Homolka, it seems to this reviewer. Fitzgerald's sly cockney is expert characterization. There is an electric quality about his performance that is lacking in the considered technique of Homolka, famed European stage and screen star. The two provide an interesting contrast in characterizations that are anything but run-of-the-mill.

Frances Farmer and Ray Milland, take care of the picture's romantic angle more than adequately.

Homolka, Fitzgerald and Milland are South Sea Island beach-combers. Homolka, a captain who has lost his ship, is abruptly delegated to take a visiting pestilence ship from the shores of the island it endangers.

The captain of the ship, which carries a cargo of champagne, has died. His daughter, Frances Farmer, is a ship's passenger. The beachcombers have plotted to sail the ship to Peru, instead of its destination, Australia, intending to sell ship and cargo. Homolka's weakness, liquor, gets him. Supplies give out, and the ship is almost lost in a typhoon.

Milland takes charge, sailing the ship to a small island ruled by Lloyd Nolan, a sadistic, half-mad pearl trader. Nolan kills Fitzgerald and Homolka and Milland and the captain's daughter are headed for happiness.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26—Someone started the gossip that Jeanette MacDonald was none too happy over Ilona Massey's movie career. Personally we put as much stock in this as we did in the old time publicity warfare of Gloria Swanson and Pola Negri.

Maybe it was a prelude to the announcement that La Massey, who is said to have a really glorious singing voice, will be co-starred in "Balalaika" with Nelson Eddy. [illegible] the Russian [illegible]

Hold everything—the Quintuplets speak English in their next picture. For the past six months an elocutionist has been working with the Quins preparing them for their dialogue debut in their next Twentieth Century Fox opera now titled "Mother Knows Best." This script by Boris Ingster and Milton Sperling has been held in abeyance for eight months.

Darryl Zanuck postponed making it last summer because the little girls could prattle just a little French and no English at all, and it was no longer a novelty to see them just toddling around. The title "Mother Knows Best" was borrowed from that old picture made by Madge Bellamy with a different story, of course.

"Lost Horizon," Director Frank Capra's memorable film masterpiece, is now being shown at popular prices at the Hub.

One of the most arresting pictures ever made, "Lost Horizon," adapted for the screen from James Hilton's best-selling novel, was road-showed here with spectacular success. It stars that splendid actor, Ronald Colman, and its impressive supporting cast is headed by H. B. Warner, Edward Everett Horton, Jane Wyatt, Sam Jaffe, Margo, John Howard, Thomas Mitchell and Isabel Jewell.

It is a fantastic story of mystic [illegible] Tibet, and throughout the illusion of being in faraway Tibet is retained. Probably this picture reaches its photographic high and the photography is magnificent in the snow scenes. A breath-taking "views" in a Chinese revolution and an airplane crash in the midst of the towering isolation of great snow mountains are scenic triumphs.

Colman, as Robert Conway, empire-builder who longs for peace of spirit and briefly finds it in the hidden valley of Shangri-La, gives a perfect characterization.

The companion picture, "Mr. Boggs Steps Out," stars Stuart Erwin as the Grade A chump whom nobody's fool. The fetching Toby Wing and Helen Chandler are the blondes in his life. Tula Marsha and Otis Harlan are the less pulchritudinous members of the cast of this Grand National picture.

Naval Officers, Gobs See Selves in Warner Film

Special to The Boston Evening American

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 26.—Before a critical audience "Submarine D-1," a Warner Brothers Cosmopolitan Service picture based on activities of the United States Navy's undersea craft, was given its world premiere here in the Fox Theater.

Lured by the subject of the picture as well as by the personal appearance of Wayne Morris, romantic star of the production, Doris Weston, his leading lady, and Mary Maguire, Warner's Australian importation, San Diego's navy and marine forces sent huge delegations to attend the premiere.

The audience jammed the Fox Theater far beyond its seating capacity. High ranking navy officers headed by Admiral Sinclair Gannon, commandant of the Eleventh Naval District, San Diego, and Vice Admiral J. F. Horne, commandant of the North Island naval air station, were enthusiastic in their praise of the spectacular picture.

The film stars were Pat O'Brien and George Brent in addition to Morris and Miss Weston. The navy [illegible] its praise of the picture's technical perfection and thrilling underwater shots involving a collision between a cruiser and a submarine, and spectacular rescue scenes.

One high ranking officer after watching the film said:

"It was difficult to believe we were seeing a motion picture. I felt more as if I were experiencing an actual rescue."

Among the audience was the entire crew of 78 from the submarine Dolphin which was used in the picture through the cooperation of the Navy Department with Warner Brothers studio.

Numerous members of the crew, from gobs to staff officers, thrilled at seeing themselves in a movie for the first time. They were actors in many scenes showing surface operations of submarines, although professional performers were used in all other scenes.

San Diego donning gala raiment and bringing out all available searchlights for the occasion substituted for Hollywood for the premiere because much of the picture was photographed in this vicinity.

Morris, Miss Newton and Miss Maguire [illegible] fastest rising young male star took time out from his current film work to make the trip.

The stars returned to Hollywood immediately after their appearance and a reception in their honor in the El Cortez Hotel.

Hearst Magazine Bonds Called

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Hearst Magazines, Inc., today announced the calling of all remaining unpaid portions of its bond issue.

This bond issue in the amount of $11,000,000, bearing six per cent interest, was brought out in 1927. It has been retired at the rate of $1,000,000 annually.

The last payment would have become due on March 1, 1938, but the directors of Hearst Magazines have decided to call these bonds on January 5, thus anticipating the final payment. Hearst Magazines, Inc., is completing a highly profitable year.

Youth, 21, Held Without Bail In Slaying

Pleads Not Guilty To Killing Charge In North Adams

NORTH ADAMS, Nov. 26—Twenty-one-year-old Louis Chenaille, charged with the jealous slaying of his reputed rival, Leo Lincourt, 23, pleaded "not guilty" when he was arraigned in district court on a first degree murder charge here today.

He was held for the January grand jury without bail.

Only the bravery of the woman's son, Frederick, 14, who struck down the alleged slayer as he attempted to turn his weapon on Mrs. Berthiaume saved her life, according to police.

Lincourt, unemployed mill hand, lost his life because of his gallantry, police said, when he escorted Mrs. Berthiaume to her home after she had complained that Chenaille had threatened her during the dance. The dead man's wife, to whom he has been married less than a year, is expecting a child shortly.

The accused killer, according to Police Chief Michael W. Conlon, admitted that he fired one shot "before everything went blank."

Police declared that Chenaille, who has been courting Mrs. Berthiaume for more than three years, went to her home and managed to gain entrance before she arrived with Lincourt. The two children [illegible].

RELATED THREATS

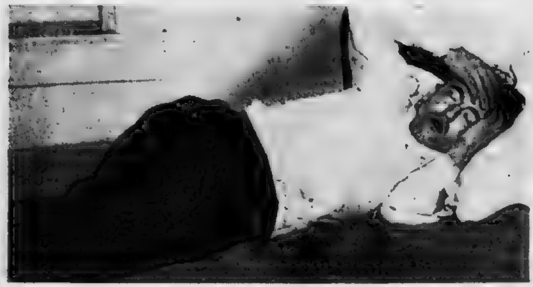
[illegible] Mrs. [illegible] went to police headquarters [illegible] they were told to [illegible] back if trouble developed.

[illegible] the woman's [illegible]. As they entered the kitchen [illegible] alleged slayer stepped out from behind a door and fired at Lincourt. The shot missed and Lincourt stopped to pick up a chair to defend himself. As he did so, according to police, Chenaille pulled the trigger repeatedly [illegible] man [illegible] him.

Shot through the heart [illegible] later [illegible] Lincourt ran [illegible] the door and down a flight of steps before collapsing on the second floor landing.

Meanwhile, Chenaille pursued Mrs. Berthiaume who fled into the bathroom. As he did, Frederick, awakened by the shots, seized a [illegible] and [illegible] head [illegible] he dropped the gun and [illegible].

Murder Defendant Sleeps in Cell



Hands pressed to head, Louis Chenaille, 21-year-old North Adams youth, sleeps fitfully in his police cell, where he is held for arraignment on a murder charge today. Chenaille allegedly killed Leo Lincourt, 23, in a fit of jealous rage when the latter escorted Mrs. Mathilda Berthiaume, mother of two children, home after alleged threats made by Chenaille against her.

Here is the body of Leo Lincourt on floor landing, where he collapsed after being shot through the heart, allegedly by a jealous youth. Lincourt's wife was soon to have become a mother.

Always Keep Body Uniformly Warm

This is the tenth of a series of twelve articles by Dr. Bundesen, head of Chicago's health department and distinguished authority on public health. If you are a housewife, watch for tomorrow's article. It will be of special interest to you.

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

You have the problem of going into a warm office, say, with a temperature of 70 degrees, then going out into the cold when the temperature is often as low as 10 degrees, back into the warm office and then out into the cold again.

This [illegible] change in temperature [illegible] condition [illegible] body [illegible]. Therefore [illegible] make all [illegible] during the day so that your body will remain as uniformly warm as possible.

If you ride in a street car or [illegible] overcoat [illegible] warm. [illegible]

[illegible] plenty of fresh air.

RUBBERS PREVENT COLDS

If the weather should get warm, unbutton your coat so that you do not get too warm. When you get out of the car [illegible] button up your coat and keep warm until you get into the office. Then take your coat off immediately. No matter how short a time you will be there it is a wise precaution to take off your coat.

Salesmen who have had any experience know that it is comfortable to wear rubbers regardless of how many times a day they have to take them off and put them on. Anyone who has called on the trade knows how miserable a day can be if the feet once get wet and cold. But more important than comfort is the fact that rubbers keep the feet dry and prevent the cold which often follows cold, wet feet.

Don't make the mistake so often made by salesmen of eating lunch at irregular times of the day. Regularity of health habits is one of the secrets of good defense against infections. Try to take plenty of time to eat.

If you have been hitting the selling line a long time you know what a heavy lunch does to you. The first customer you call on after lunch may have to tell you to keep awake. A light lunch is wise. The blood of the body is not then being used to help digest a heavy meal and you feel fit during the afternoon instead of tired and sleepy.

ALWAYS KEEP FIT

Now that does not mean that you should not eat a meal. If you take too little food at noon you may find that late in the afternoon you are [illegible] tired and sometimes a little dizzy. That is just as bad as eating too much for lunch. Meat, potatoes, milk and a small dish of [illegible] heavy dessert makes a simple [illegible] meal that will give you the energy you need without being a burden.

You must be especially careful to keep fit, to keep your resistance up to a high level, because you come in contact with so many people every day. The chances are that during the winter months some one with whom you talk will have a cold.

Unless you live carefully, that means you may be laid up in bed for a time. Go to bed early, do not overeat, take some vitamin D preparation, avoid constipation, be regular in your habits, take a sufficient amount of bulk every day such as cabbage and carrots or whole-wheat bread. Do not expose yourself to bad weather unnecessarily. Keep warmly clad [illegible]

TREAT ALL COLDS

If you [illegible] and have a slight rawness of the [illegible] the first sign [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] In that case you should have a complete check-over by a physician to find out if anything is wrong [illegible].

Watch for tomorrow's article on "If You Are a Housewife."

Post-Game Riots Injure 4 High School Pupils

Chelsea Win Over Everett Precedes Many Clashes

Rioting after two high school Thanksgiving Day games today had resulted in injury to four students.

The injured students, all members of the Amesbury High School band, were cut by flying glass after disgruntled Newburyport rooters had bombarded their bus with rocks following Amesbury's 21 to 0 victory.

More widespread disorders occurred in Chelsea and Everett where 300 students engaged in a series of sporadic encounters after Chelsea had won a 6 to 0 game to defeat its rival for the first time in 30 years.

The battles started when jubilant Chelsea fans overpowered Everett police and ripped up the goal posts at the conclusion of the game.

Seeking retaliation, a group of Everett students, according to police, broke into the new Chelsea stadium last night and removed the goal posts there. Three Everett youths, caught as they bore their trophys along the street, were arrested. They were later released after a severe lecture.

Meanwhile 300 aroused Chelsea students followed another group of Everett youths to that town where the other set of posts had been taken. They were met by a jeering crowd of 200 Everett students and a battle royal ensued.

An unusual angle was furnished when Everett students hurled rocks and piles of refuse at the home of their own coach, Dennis A. Gilden, of High street. Dispersed by police, the students explained they were not assaulting Gilden who was not at home but wished to present him with the posts.

"The conclusion is inescapable," the report stated, "that these knives and weapons could not have come into possession of the prisoners except through gross carelessness or collusion on the part of the personnel."

Ross Ransom Bill Found, Hunt Pushed

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (AP)—Discovery that a $10 bill passed re[illegible] $50,000 ransom paid [illegible] Charles S. Ross [illegible] fresh impetus today to the search for the abductors of the [illegible] retired Chicago manufacturer.

It was the sixth ransom bill to make its appearance since the kidnaping two months ago.

U. S. Relief Costs Cut by $152,416,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Federal, state and local relief costs in the first nine months of this year dropped $152,416,000 below those of the corresponding period of last year, the Social Security Board has reported.

Relief expenditures through September of this year were $1,565,191,[illegible]. This compares with $1,7[illegible] through the same month of [illegible]6.

Girl's Father Shoots Suitor

Then Kills Self at the Church Door

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 26 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Rose Musto, who worked hard in a factory and saved for that happy day next spring when she was to wed young George Vaccaro, wept today over her father's bier and prayed that her sweetheart might survive the bullets from the gun that killed her parent.

Enraged by his daughter's love for the youth, Detective Captain Hugh Martin said, 50-year-old Antonio Musto shot the boy in the neck and killed himself yesterday in front of a crowd of worshipers leaving St. Anthony's Roman Catholic church.

Lyon on Third Honeymoon

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Nov. 26—Captain Harry W. Lyon, noted aerial navigator, today began his third honeymoon. He was married here yesterday to Thelma Bradbury of South Paris a few days after his second marriage was terminated by a Superior Court judge.

Lyon, who flew with the late Kingsbury Smith, English aviator, on his daring Pacific flight to the Philippines, and his second wife were divorced by Judge George L. Emery at the November session of the Superior Court.

Judge Emery made the decree final several days ago, according to Lyon's counsel, E. Walker Abbott. A cash settlement was reported to have been made in place of alimony.

Vets Will Honor Capt. Joyce

Quartermaster-Adjutant Henry V. O'Day of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has requested Governor Hurley and Mayor Mansfield to issue executive orders to the effect that flags on all state and municipal buildings be placed at half staff tomorrow in memory of the late Captain Walter I. Joyce, former honorary commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Joyce, who died November 24 in the Bronx, N. Y., at the age of 75, was a native of Franklin.

He was responsible for making "The Star Spangled Banner" the national anthem.

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

I can't get much of a humorous kick out of Sinclair Lewis' list of the "best known" names in America, and I find considerable difficulty trying to link it up to his thesis that "America's glorification of big business and salesmanship is as [illegible] certain precepts of Fascist and Communist nations." It just doesn't seem to make any particular sense.

Robert E. Rogers

I doubt if Charlie McCarthy and Mickey Mouse tell anything important about the American temper or the American dream, the less so perhaps now that Mickey Mouse has become an international comedian enjoyed as much in Europe and South America as in Hollywood itself.

And what Charlie McCarthy reveals about us I simply cannot guess except that Mr. Bergen is a very clever fellow at having given a new twist to the old dreary ventriloquist racket.

Why does Mr. Lewis pick on Clark Gable any more than on any other good looking leading man? Tyrone Power for instance or the new Jon Hall? The fact that he is universally popular in the films tells us nothing about ourselves as a nation or a culture which any equally popular film hero abroad in France or Germany or England does not tell about the French or the English.

DiMaggio, Vallee Able, But Scarcely U. S. 'Idols'

The same, other things being equal, is true of Joe DiMaggio or Rudy Vallee. Both are good at their respective jobs, that is all. Neither is really an American idol and Mr Sinclair Lewis does ill in trying to make us believe that he really think so.

The only figures on his list who have any relevance or coherence to his theory that we glorify business and salesmanship are Bruce Barton and Dale Carnegie, and since Barton offered himself for Congress on the platform that he wishes to repeal one statute a week, he exhibited himself as so un-American that he was elected hands down.

To speak of Tom Girdler and or John L. Lewis as parallel notables in industry seems to imply that Mr Lewis really draws no distinction between the extreme examples of two permanently opposed philosophies. He lumps them together as two universally known and typically American heroes of the mob. Which is nonsense.

List Mere Indictment Of Lewis-Type Thinking

And to sum up his list as a collection of names "which would be known on the subway or at the corner grocery store" is not, as he seems to think "an indictment of American democracy." It is rather an indictment of Sinclair Lewis' kind of mind. Nothing more.

I had thought that Mr. Lewis was getting away from the kind of intolerance he exhibited when he pilloried "the man who knew Coolidge," back in the days when Mr Coolidge was alive

That piece of small-town caricature was much like his "Elmer Gantry," untruthful, distorted, exaggerated and eminently unfair. I always held that sort of thing to be due to the Mencken influence on him. But it seems to have lasted

The best explanation I have ever seen of Sinclair Lewis' mind is that he is an involuted idealist who took to social caricature as a protest because the world he lives in, and particularly the America he lives in, is not as lovely as he would like it to be

Trace of Utopian In Author's Makeup

There is more than a trace of the Utopian in him. The fact that he names his first son (by his first wife) Wells Lewis, after the famous H G who was so recently among us would seem to bear out the probability of that explanation.

And I have somewhere at home an elaborate and (presumably) complete bibliography, which traces his literary progress from the early days when he wrote for the Yale Lit to the slightly later days when he wrote for various trade journals and commercial magazines

What is interesting about that record is that in his beginnings he was a sloppy (not to say soupy) romanticist in the best tradition of the eighteen-nineties. How he worked out from that to "The Job" and "Main Street" and "Babbitt" I have never quite been able to make out

Penthouse Party on Dec. 5 Draws Air And Stage Stars

Thanksgiving Day has come and gone!

In the homes of thousands throughout Greater Boston it was a day of rejoicing, of feasting, of thankfulness that they had the means with which to feast and rejoice a day of hope that things even will be better before they are worse.

But in countless other homes, some of them perhaps only a few blocks from those of the more fortunate there was no such feasting, no such rejoicing.

It was hard to be thankful in misery and in want and without ever sufficient food to feed the children.

SEND IN YOUR BIT

If your family was numbered among the fortunate ones, you are now looking forward to Christmas—just five weeks from tomorrow—but in those other those luckless homes the prospect is cheerless and grim.

There will be no more happiness there than on Thanksgiving Day unless you with more of the world's goods give aid

And there are three ways in which you can aid the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund which now is in its 25th year of philanthropy.

You can contribute cash to the Basket Fund, sending it to or leaving it at the Basket Fund office 13 Otis street, Boston.

You can take the names and addresses of one or more destitute families from the Chrismtas Basket Editor at this same address and furnish the baskets direct

Or you can have fun in charity's aid at gala entertainments now coming up in the interest of the Basket Fund

The first of these programmed is the big Basket Fund party at Tom Maren's Penthouse atop the Hotel Bradford on Sunday night, Dec. 5—the first show in the cause of easing heartaches and filling empty stomachs on Christmas day

STARS TO ENTERTAIN

In the stellar show you will hear Frank Ward and his rhythm of the Dawn orchestra and you will see and hear, among others, the Ten Penthouse Adorables, Irene Holland and Aileen Barry, dance specialists; Alma Bray, fascinating aerial trapeze girl and her breathtaking surprise; Joy Arden charming danseuse Tom Foran and the Tiffany Sisters and many others

Robert N Appleton managing director of the Bradford, has promised to turn his entire staff over to the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund for that large evening

Here is a letter from a Newtonville mother in a family of 10—a typical family

"Could you please send us a Christmas basket. We would be very grateful for it. We have a large family of 8 children and myself and my husband.

"My husband was working on WPA but has been laid off now and things for the children look pretty gloomy for Christmas.

"I would like to see them happy at Christmas, the same as other children will be. As for myself and husband, we would not mind so much.

"My children need warm underwear and stockings, also winter coats, but there is no way of getting them. I only hope they will not get cold and sick on me. I pray for that much every day and night and I know God grants my prayers."

Send in your contributions to the Basket Fund NOW—TODAY Send them, or bring them in to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor 13 Otis street Boston

In connection with applications by families for baskets—which should be addressed the same way—applicants are instructed to obtain the endorsement of their priest, minister, rabbi, children's teacher or family doctor.

Applicants should also write their names and addresses plainly and they should be sure to include the number of persons in the family This is most important

Special One-Day Vote Registration

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

Remember the scissors grinder who used to travel from door to door, pushing his big sharpening stone and ringing his bell?

We usually had quite a lot of work for him, at my house, and he would sit out front and pedal away at his machine while half a dozen children would gather round him, thinking that it would be fine to be a scissors grinder.

ANN MARSTERS

The scissors man of today has changed quite a lot, as a type. Instead of being youngish and plump, he is, as a rule, an elderly man who rings no bells except those of the back doors on his regular routes. He calls himself a knife sharpener and believes that every household needs his services about once a month.

The one we talked to said that husbands are rather sensitive about knife sharpening—because they feel that they ought to sharpen the knives themselves. And he said too (quite understandably, from his point of view) that husbands do more harm than good to the knives when they attempt to sharpen them. His own wheel, he explained, is made of a stuff which can't possibly harm the edge.

When their husbands are at home, lots of wives tell him that their knives don't need sharpening. But he goes back a few days later, when the husband is out, and usually does quite a business.

Women drive harder bargains and are stingy with tips, while men never argue about his price and tip generously—even though knife sharpeners trouble their conscience.

Thanksgiving Woman's Job, Presents Wearying Preparation

Did you have a nice Thanksgiving? After a little reflection we've come to the conclusion that Thanksgiving is definitely a man's day—not a woman's.

In the average American family it means the undeniably difficult and wearying task of preparing, or directing the preparation of, the Thanksgiving dinner. It takes days to get ready for it and all day long to get it over with.

We wonder if that famous lady, Sarah Josepha Hale, fully realized what she was letting women in for when she coaxed Abraham Lincoln into proclaiming Thanksgiving a national holiday

We hope this doesn't give anyone the wrong impression. Personally we love Thanksgiving and everything about it. And I suppose all women do—even those who make their own squash pies.

REASONABLE GIRL

I think one should be practical
In weaving dreams and wishes;
I never wish for silly things
The while I wash the dishes.

I do not wish for star-dust
To scatter in my hair,
I do not wish to own outright
The whole world's fair.

I do not wish for six white mares
To draw me in a carriage . . .
I only wish a millionaire
Would ask my hand in marriage.

Boston Boy Invents New Type of Marionette

A Boston boy named Arthur Irving has modeled some remarkable marionettes out of a special kind of rubber compound which he himself has invented. He calls them "humanettes" and they are likenesses of various movie stars. (He has an especially gorgeous one of Joan Crawford.)

But now that he's made them, he doesn't know quite what to do with them—although he has thought of giving marionette shows with his movie star models playing the leads

UNBEATEN H. C. 5-2 CHOICE TO DOWN B. C.

AUSTEN LAKE

Saga of Hardihood; B. C.-H. C. Fans Brave the Elements

DON'T YOU THINK IT IS ABOUT TIME that somebody credited the herosim of the football crowds who give their all to the last vocal chord, instead of lavishing the glory on the players? And don't you think that the red badge of courage should go to the loyal legions of Holy Cross and Boston College who go trooping year after year out to the cold, or damp, or sunless slopes of Fenway Park at the risk of permanent goose pimples, busted plumbing and ice-cubes in their arteries?

AUSTEN LAKE

They have been coming for years, and here they come again, with bed quilts, flannel vests and something in thermos jars to sit in the most capricious weather of a freakish climate. The games have been good, of course, and the fellowship cordial, so the crowds have enjoyed rooting their teams home with torso-squirmings which are fit to unhook their spines or put permanent waves in their necks. It is a compulsory pilgrimage, once a year, which not one of the coonskin kids, or their luscious female companions, would wish to miss

There have been B. C.-H. C. football games when snowflakes fell as large as popcorn fritters or fine as celestial dandruff. And others when it hailed heavenly tapioca. And some when showers melted hat brims and drenched female finery or when boreal blasts whistled up masculine pant legs or froze feminine marrow.

But every so often, as in 1933, a tarrying summer swishes its [illegible] feathers over the scene and brings a warm sun to kiss the crowd and a day that suggests Miami at the height of the tourist season with honeysuckle scents and the drowsing of belated bees. That hasn't happened often

Still, come shivers, heat prickles or soakings the faithful martyrs have stayed till the field judge piped all hands to downtown comforts, home suppers or waiting trains

Surprise In Every Package

THE B. C.-H. C. LEGIONS HAVE TAKEN IT for many years and like it, and their games always have the double charm of being unpredictable both as to a collision between conflicting ambition and the whimsies of the seaboard.

I think last year's game was a fair sample of this double surprise. That was the one where Gil Dobie sat forming little lachrymose icicles on his chin from his tearful dribbles while Holy Cross jammed over two touchdowns on the first twelve plays of the game. The question seemed to be less one of "Who?" than "How much?" with the customers curing their shivers with nips, pecks and sniffs from their medical kits—which were essential to the day. So the score between the halves stood H. C. 12, B. C. 0.

But the B. C. boys lit a burner under themselves in the second half and banged out a pair of touchdowns, the last of which came at the end of the game with the clock finger almost pointing to zero and the crowd beating itself by hysteria. So B. C. won by 13 to 12.

I think it was three years ago when it rained. It didn't rain just pennies, but it rained quarter and half dollars in a torrent which would have paid the National debt, if in actual silver. And that was the one where H. C. belted out two touchdowns that came while the crowd was clogged in the approaches and trying to find parking spaces. So that gives you an idea of the kind of surprises which come in these packages.

B. C. Bogged Down

ON THIS YEAR'S RECORD HOLY CROSS sums up to better figures, which, of course, is what everybody said last year. Still, Holy Cross, like Yale before the Harvard game, is unbeaten and has pushed around some pretty big fellows like Georgetown, Colgate, Brown and Georgia and earned scoreless ties with Temple and Carnegie.

But something has unaccountably curdled in B. C.'s system and its early October promise has dwindled into November disillusion. For this was expected to be the year in which the team would come to glory under Gilmour Dobie and the one in which a great set of juniors and sophomores were to bid for National rating. It didn't come off, due, some say, to antiquated plays and, others say, to a general unhappiness among the athletes from brusque and unsympathetic handling. Football hasn't seemed fun at B. C., and it certainly wasn't fun when it took that licking from B. U., which hitherto it has regarded as a kind of inept city-cousin with overlarge ambitions.

Morale is vital in football. Harvard morale, on a frame of Harlow's play-perfection, beat Yale. And B. C. morale beat Holy Cross a year ago. So, if B. C. enters tomorrow's game without the spiritual incentive, its number is already up. Still, I have never seen a B. C. football team in 15 years of watching these games, which didn't rise from its ashes against Holy Cross—or vice versa. And, whatever their gripes, I think you will find that the kids will shed their sulks and put bones and gristle into this one.

The history of this series shows that the games often go by contraries and with the party of the second part whistling up a head of steam and puffing to miracles. Off hand one can dig out such memory gems as John Freitas' 50 yard pass to Ed Furbush in 1933 which brought an underrated B. C. team home 13 to 9. And that 1931 charity game at the Harvard stadium which hasn't yet ended officially, because the crowd swarmed on the field before the final whistle and wouldn't go back. Holy Cross, as the lesser party, won that one on Phil O'Connell's 56 yard run.

Still, on the evidence offered, Holy Cross should win tomorrow by two or more touchdowns. I wouldn't bet on it.

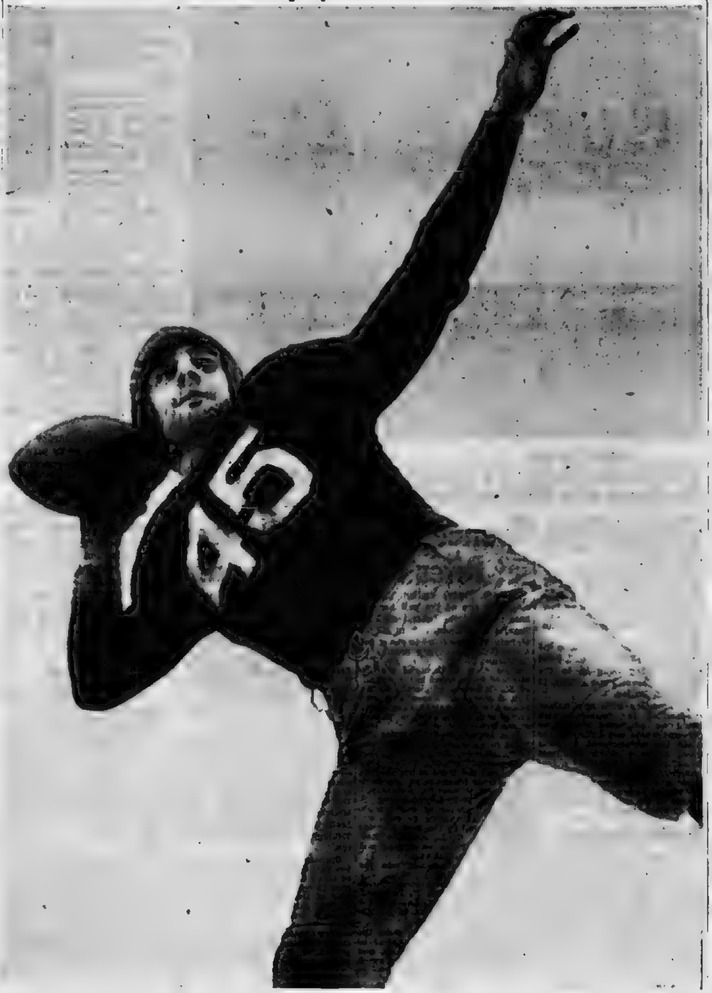
Bomber Ready for Crusader Attack



Ira Jivelekian, Boston College speed merchant, who carries the mail exceptionally well and can also fill in very nicely as a passer when needed, has fully recovered from his knee injury and will be ready for Holy Cross tomorrow. If the Eagle blockers can get Ira out in the open, there is going to be grief in the Holy Cross cheering section.

Missouri 0, Kansas 0

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 26 (INS)—Missouri and Kansas battled to a scoreless tie before 22,000 homecoming fans. The two traditional rivals, who have met on the gridiron for 46 times, see-sawed in midfield throughout most of the game.

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 26—New England harriers fare poorly in the nine-mile Berwick marathon run won by Bob Rainkine of Preston, Ont., for the fifth straight year in the record smashing time of 47 16 8.

Johnny Kelley of Arlington was fifth, Leslie Pawson of Pawtucket was sixth and Hawk Zamparelli of Medford eighth.

Eino Petti finished second, Bob Gregory third and Bob Morrison fourth.

Maryland, 8 to 0

BALTIMORE, Nov. 26 (INS)—Scoring a safety in the first period and a touchdown in the third Maryland wound up its football season with eight victories against two defeats by turning back the Washington and Lee Generals, 8 to 0, before 10,000.

Cahill's Forwards Feared by Eagles

Dobie's Boys Weak Against Passes All Year—Figure They Can Stop Osmanski—25,000 to See Game

By JOE CASHMAN

Three football months of tears and torment for Boston College and of triumphs and ties for Holy Cross become history at Fenway Park tomorrow when these ancient Jesuit rivals enter another New England grid campaign in their 36th traditional tilt.

The prevailing odds—most one-sided in years—are 5 to 2 that the climax will sweeten the Crusaders cup of joy and add gall to the Eagles' goblet of gloom.

In short, the purple-clad pigskin party from Worcester is the hottest favorite in the post-war history of the series.

'Tis not surprising.

The B. C. team, starting out with high and seemingly warranted hopes of going through undefeated comes up to its objective with a record marred by setbacks at the hands of Boston University, Detroit and North Carolina State and by a scoreless tie with Temple.

B. C.'S CHANCES

The Holy Cross outfit, lightly regarded by its own coaches as well as its critics back in September, finds itself on the eve of its major melee with a clean slate, tied twice but unbeaten.

Yet considering only the final results of the past performances of the rivals this season, Dr. Eddie Anderson's assassins from Mount St. James should slaughter Gloom, Gil Dobie's darlings from University Heights, before an expected crowd of 25,000 on the morrow.

But there are other facts and figures which make the 5 to 2 price on the Crusaders appear ridiculous.

One is the frequency with which startling upsets can and do happen on the grid. Only last Saturday for example the three safest wagers of the day seemed to be that Navy would beat Princeton, B. C. would lick B. U. and Yale would edge Harvard, yet the Tigers, Terriers and Crimson triumphed decisively.

Another is the comparison of the rivals' showings against common foes.

Holy Cross, playing at home, beat Western Maryland 8 to 0 in a game which found the Green Terrors piling up [illegible] first downs and a gain of [illegible] yards to three first downs and 141 yards gained by the Purple.

The Eagles on the other hand went down to Western Maryland to beat the same eleven 27 to 0 in a game which saw them pile up 19 first downs and gain 445 yards while holding Dick Harlow's old charges to five first downs and 113 yards gained.

Both Jesuit outfits were held to a scoreless tie by Temple, but again the statistics are all in favor of the Maroon and Gold.

B. C. ripped off eight first downs and picked up 144 yards against the Owls, who made six first downs and gained 128 yards.

At Worcester, the Warner pupils reeled off ten first downs good for 104 yards while the Crusaders had to be content with four first downs and a gain of 85 yards.

So there's every reason for the Eagles to be confident they have a fighting chance of winning out and not a single excuse for the Crusaders to expect a breeze.

And it's as likely as not that the customers will witness a game as thrilling as last year's encounter, wherein the Purple ran up a 13 to 0 lead in the first half only to have the Eagles stage a last-half surge which carried them to a 14 to 13 win.

Holy Cross will call on Bullet Bill Osmanski, sensational line plunging back, and Ronnie Cahill, scintillating passer, to bear the brunt of the attack.

The Eagles have never faced either. Osmanski, a junior, was confined to the sidelines by injuries in the 1936 classic while Cahill is playing his first year of varsity football.

CIGNETTI STARTS

Osmanski, a real triple threat and one of the [illegible] and most powerful [illegible] in the East, is the more famous of the two, but it is young Cahill who is the more feared by B. C.

The Heights heroes don't think even an Osmanski can gain consistently [illegible] their strong forward wall, but they know from bitter experience that Cahill will be a deadly [illegible] having been [illegible] [illegible] with the Holy Cross [illegible].

The Eagles will start a backfield [illegible] [illegible] Pete [illegible] and [illegible].

For the most part B. C. has stuck to old-fashioned running plays for offense this fall. Passing has been one of their big handicaps. [illegible] into [illegible] against Detroit, North Carolina State and Boston University.

Yet, reliable reports have it that Dobie has instructed his charges to break out in a rash of aerials on the morrow.

Cavanaro, Hall, Robichaud, Dalton Lend Class to 118-Pound Division In Hearst N. E. Amateur Finals

Bolvin, Norris Box in 112-Pound Class

Any fear that was held out earlier in the year that the professionals had depleted the ranks of the amateurs since last winter are rapidly being dissipated by the quality of fighting talent shown in the William Randolph Hearst All America championships.

Many of the finest amateurs in New England turned pro since winning the spangles at last year's All Americas. They've made good, too.

The worry was then that the new crop which would come along fast enough would be too inexperienced to battle the best of the [illegible] from other parts of the country who must be met during the course of the All America Eastern and Grand National of Dec 6 and 13 respectively at Boston Garden.

THEY'RE ALL GOOD

But when the boys come back to Boston Arena Monday night for the New England championship finals fight fans will see a group of amateurs capable of holding their own with those of yesteryear.

Many of these youngsters are [illegible] tactics even in the arts of boxing and boasting terrific punching.

So that whichever of the New England crop pop out next Monday as crowns this section will have worthy representatives to rely on when the later competition follows.

Monday's finalists have surged through to this advanced stage only after [illegible] tryout [illegible] in a series of spectacular [illegible] which [illegible] a new high of [illegible] New England history.

The featherweights and bantamweights in both the open and novice competition will certainly give the fans [illegible] when they swing into action.

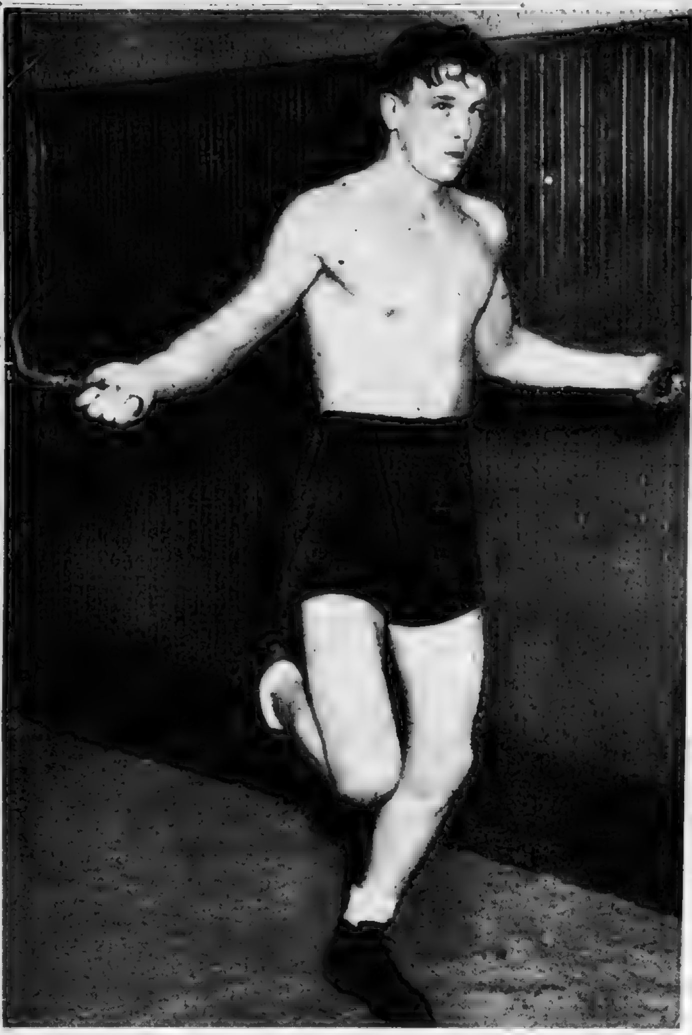
NOVICE CLASSES

There will be few [illegible] moments in the 112 open when [illegible] of Medford, Leo Bastie of [illegible], Larry B[illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] Morris of [illegible] are drawn for battle and [illegible] the [illegible] division Joe Cavanaro [illegible] Hall of East [illegible] Mike Dalton of East [illegible] and [illegible] Robichaud of [illegible].

In the novice divisions there will be but two boys in each weight. The finalists in the 112 pounds [illegible] will be Alfred Deardon of South Boston and Sebastino [illegible] of Boston and in the 118 Andrew Trozzi [illegible] and Clarence Morse of Cambridge.

In all there will be 31 bouts on Monday night's card, 24 in the open classes and 7 in the novices. Only the winners in the open weights will be selected for the Eastern [illegible].

Watch Him Monday In Hearst N. E. Finals



Larry Nagle of Roxbury, 147-pound novice, a product of Tom Kirby, former New England amateur heavyweight champion, who promises to be one of the stars of the Hearst N. E. finals amateur boxing tournament at the Arena Monday evening. Nagle is the best looking amateur to bob up in many years.

McCoy Stopped In 2nd Round By Lenglet

Down Three Times Before Referee Calls Halt

By JACK CONWAY

MONTREAL, Nov. 26—Al McCoy, New England heavyweight champion, was knocked out in the second round of his bout with Andre Lenglet of France before 10,000 persons in the Forum in one of the most startling upsets in the history of the Canadian ring.

Lenglet, after receiving a terrific licking in the first round, nailed McCoy with a swinging right hand punch on the point of the jaw halfway through the second round.

Al took the count of nine, and appeared to be in fair condition when he regained his feet. A few seconds later another right to the jaw dropped McCoy for a count of nine.

15 SECONDS TO GO

When the New England champion got up for the second time his eyes were glassy and his knees shaky. The lanky Lenglet rushed forward, crashed another right to the jaw and McCoy went down for the third time.

At the count of four while McCoy was trying to get to his right knee, referee Sullivan stepped in and halted the contest. I thought the referee used good judgment.

There were only 15 seconds of the second round to go at the time, but if McCoy had been able to have regained his feet he might have been hurt by another savage right.

As a result of his success in the first round McCoy made the mistake of risking an exchange of blows with the big and powerful Lenglet.

Lenglet, six feet one inch tall and weighing 2[illegible] pounds, had all of the physical advantages in his favor. McCoy weighed 185 pounds and looked small in comparison to Lenglet.

OVERCONFIDENT

Despite the physical advantages in favor of Lenglet, McCoy swarmed all over the slow moving Frenchman in the first round.

The Frenchman sagged on one occasion as McCoy drove him into a corner under a volley of punches.

McCoy got a bit over confident as a result of his success in the first round. In the second session he left his corner determined to score a knockout if possible.

Al waded in close quarters and drove lefts and rights to the head. Lenglet retreated to the ropes and McCoy cut loose with an overhand right for the jaw which was wide.

McCoy reached Lenglet's jaw with a left hook and the Frenchman went into a shell.

FORGETS TO DUCK

McCoy moved back and cocked his right on his shoulder. As Lenglet came forward, Al started to let drive with a left hook for the jaw, and as he did Lenglet wound his right down around his waist and let it fly for Al's jaw.

McCoy was walking in at the time and the punch landed flush on his jaw. McCoy dropped to the canvas and took the count of nine. He swayed away when he regained his feet and his eyes looked clear.

Lenglet rushed at the New England champion without any regard for boxing styles. He wound up his right hand and let it fly. Once more the punch landed flush on McCoy's jaw and Al went down for the count of nine.

McCoy was in poor condition when he resumed boxing and tried to go on the defensive. The powerful Lenglet crowded him back, unleashed another wild right and sent it to McCoy's jaw.

As McCoy hit the canvas it was evident he was in poor condition. He rolled over on his face and then started to get to one knee.

At the count of four while McCoy was trying to get up Referee Sullivan stepped in and halted the [illegible] declaring Lenglet the winner.

WARRENTON WINS

Lenglet's victory was unpopular with the crowd and the Frenchman was booed as he left the ring.

After being given first aid treatment in his corner McCoy went to his dressing room with the cheers of the crowd in his ears.

Jim Freeman, McCoy's manager, is under suspension in Montreal and had to watch the bout from a ringside seat.

Bill Henderson had charge of McCoy's corner.

Other than a black eye and a bruised left shoulder McCoy does not carry any marks from the bout.

He was naturally downcast following his defeat, but declared he wanted to fight Lenglet again and asserted he felt he could defeat him.

Tiger Warrenton outpointed George Bonin in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Califoria Must Invite Pitt to Pasadena If Latter Closes With Win Over Duke

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26 (INS)—California's delay in announcing the identity of its Rose Bowl opponent can mean only that California is waiting to see what happens to Pitt in its game with Duke tomorrow.

If Pitt wins as Pitt figures to do, you can expect an announcement confirming the selection of the Panthers for the New Year's Day game.

Pitt is the logical choice and any other barring the one which would give unbeaten, untied Santa Clara a chance to get on the Rose Bowl gravy, would be a disappointment to those who want California matched with the best available team.

California will let Pacific Coast football down if it fails to pick Pitt.

The Panthers, you will recall, gave the Coast an awful black eye last year when they whipped Washington in the Rose Bowl by a score of 21 to 0.

That black eye will remain, unless California does something to banish it.

The one thing California can do is to get Pitt back in the Rose Bowl and do unto the Panthers what the Panthers did unto Washington last New Year's Day. The chance of California [illegible] with the [illegible].

If California [illegible] the [illegible] California [illegible] prestige [illegible] Washington [illegible] and [illegible] Bowl [illegible] suffer from [illegible] charges that [illegible] to try [illegible] with some [illegible].

If they are selected this time the Panthers will be [illegible] the Rose Bowl [illegible] the fifth time. Only one coast team, Stanford, with seven Rose Bowl trips to its credit, can exceed Pitt's probable [illegible].

But one fact [illegible] weighs all objections [illegible] raised against Pitt. Pitt is the strongest team among the [illegible] Bowl [illegible] and [illegible] football [illegible].

Alabama's 9 to 7 victory over Vanderbilt was not impressive enough to warrant the selection of the Crimson Tide which, like Pitt, has been to the Rose Bowl four times.

Russo Wins at Garden

Paul Russo of Chicago, challenged all the way by Bob Sal of Paterson, N. J., captured the 30-lap midget automobile race feature event at the Garden, before a gathering of 7000.

Ernie Gesell, outdoor champion, was third.

George Ford Star Of Battery Win

A [illegible] Harvard [illegible] the [illegible] Battery A [illegible] its first [illegible] years over First [illegible] at Tech Field. The [illegible] was 12 [illegible].

George Ford, Harvard varsity [illegible] scored the first [illegible] for the battery in the [illegible] and was [illegible] setting up [illegible] in the third period.

Ford smashed 12 yards off tackle for the first score.

Kramer Picks H. C., Pitt. and Army

By MURRAY KRAMER

The [illegible] down [illegible] on New England college football tomorrow [illegible] the only local game carded is the Boston College-Holy Cross tilt and this annual Jesuit clash is expected to lure 25,000 fans.

Even though the Eagles have lost three games and the Crusaders none, you can't get better than 10 to 8, for those Eagles have a habit of upsetting the dope in this objective clash . . . the big question in the minds of many is whether the Eagles can come back in a week after being defeated by Boston University . . . personally we feel they won't . . . Holy Cross is waiting for this affair and doesn't intend to lose it as it did last year . . . it will be a tight defensive game with very little scoring and I'm casting a ballot for the Crusaders.

Down at Duke's sunken stadium where the top row is on the level with the campus, 35,000 will be present to make up an overflow crowd just to see if that Pittsburgh team is as great as everybody believes . . . Duke can win this one, but on a past performance basis, you must go to Pitt . . . any team that can travel through a bruising schedule against teams such as Notre Dame, Nebraska, Duquesne, Fordham, Carnegie Tech and others with an undefeated record cannot be cast aside . . . If Pitt should beat Duke, it will be very difficult for California to ignore the Smoky City crew when it selects a Rose Bowl foe . . . a win will give the Panthers top rating in the nation.

Philadelphia will be the site of the most colorful classic of all, the 38th renewal of the Army-Navy clash . . . there will be 104,211 people [illegible] the [illegible] Navy [illegible] from Princeton puts the [illegible] big right tackle gives Army a slight edge.

Out in California, Southern Cal. plays host to Notre Dame . . . a few years back this clash was generally for the national title . . . now it's just another inter-sectional game.

Notre Dame is a slight favorite but we like Southern California. The Trojans rested last Saturday and are primed for this big windup . . . Notre Dame has had Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Army and Northwestern in a row . . . the boys from South Bend are pretty well tired and somewhat battered . . . they could win this one, all things being equal, but in view of the circumstances we are leaning to Southern California.

Nebraska has every intention of clinching the Big Six title for another year by defeating Kansas State . . . The Staters are a much different club from the one which opened the season by losing to Boston College . . . this green team has come along fast and will give Nebraska quite a struggle, although the Corn Huskers should come out on top.

Over in New York, grid fans have their choice between the intra-city clash, Fordham-N. Y. U., or the inter-sectional game, Columbia-Stanford . . . The Rams must beat the Violets to remain in the running for the Rose Bowl bid . . . last year New York University came through with a terrific upset and downed the Rams . . . it is extremely doubtful whether they can repeat. Columbia also pulled quite an upset last year in beating the Cardinals, 7 to 0 . . . this has been a disastrous year for the Lions, and it looks like a victory for the Californians.

New England Finals In All-America | Stirring Battles Expected Monday

By JACK CONWAY

THERE SHOULD be 32 sensational bouts in the New England finals of the Hearst All-America boxing tournament which will be held at the Arena on Monday night under the direction of the Irish American A. A.

Mr. Boston

The boxers who will compete have come through winners in four blistering trial tournaments. They have proved they have what it takes under bitter fire in the ring, and they will now strive for the highest possible honors among New England boxers.

The competition in the All-America bouts has been superior this year to the brilliant shows that were offered a year ago. This is due to the fact the boxers in the various classes have been more evenly matched. No one youngster has had an easy time winning.

Each of the 32 boxers who will battle in the open classes on Monday night as well as those carefree youngsters who will compete in the novice classes have won their ring spurs under fire. They have proved they have that little extra drive that enables a boxer to win in a stirring finish.

The boxers who will be crowned New England All-America champions on Monday night will be worthy representatives of this section of the country to send into the All-Eastern finals at the Garden on December 6. In the All-Eastern finals, the victors in the open classes on Monday night will oppose the leading simon pure punch flingers from New York, Albany, Syracuse, Baltimore and Washington.

I look for a capacity crowd when the All-America boxers sweep in action at the Arena on Monday night. The huge seating capacity of the Arena will enable the Irish American A. A. to care for 12,000 persons.

The advance sale has been particularly heavy for this show as the fans are eager to see the ring action. The price of tickets is 55 cents and $1.10. This popular price scale has made a decided hit with the fans.

I wouldn't miss Monday night's show for anything.

Boston College's Final Chance

BOSTON COLLEGE will receive its final opportunity to get some consolation out of the 1937 football season when it clashes with Holy Cross at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

The dope says Holy Cross will win but this has been a season in which the dope has often run for Sweeney.

The dope favored Yale over Harvard, but the final score was 13 to 6 in favor of the Crimson.

If Boston College can get clicking tomorrow and do some of the things I believe the team is capable of doing, its supporters can at least give one healthy cheer before they close out their football season.

Holy Cross will come to Boston undefeated for the season, and it does not intend to permit the Eagles to rise up from their disappointing season and mar their record with a setback.

The Holy Cross eleven has plenty of flash and power. When it gets rolling on high, it is a difficult team to stop.

Holy Cross does not intend to leave its supporters down.

Random Shots at Target

THE ARMY should win from the Navy at Philadelphia tomorrow . . . This game will be a sellout despite the fact neither the Navy nor the Army have top teams this year.

Bob McLeod, the new Dartmouth captain, is the equal of Clint Frank as a back, according to Dick Harlow of Harvard . . . Hutchinson, Dartmouth sophomore, should be an improved player next year . . . This youngster is a natural football player, and one of the most difficult men in college football to stop once he gets past the line of scrimmage.

The Harvard football election will take place early next month . . . Andy Callahan of Lawrence has started training, and would like to get a crack at Ralph Zannelli . . . The latter has been dodging Callahan for a year . . . Callahan is a puncher, and might knock Zannelli out.

George (Dazzler) Clark, Scottish heavyweight wrestler, continues to shoot darts at Everett Marshall, the Billy Sandow entry, who is recognized as world's champion in most parts of the United States . . . Clark would give Marshall the kind of test mat fans would like to see him receive.

Dick Maloney and Tony Shucco are taking things easy in the country . . . Both will be ready for the ring wars with three weeks of training.

B. C. to Hold Grid Dinner Dance

In anticipation of a football victory over Holy Cross on Saturday, the Boston College Alumni Association will celebrate tonight at the Hotel Statler with a dinner dance.

This annual affair, outstanding Catholic social function of the fall season, will be participated in not only by the alumni of the college but also by the newly formed alumnae of Boston College, under the leadership of Dr. Alice M. Kerrigan and various women's Catholic clubs of Greater Boston.

Larry Thornton, '28, and Tom Marty, '27, Boston College celebrities of the musical and theatrical world, will help to liven up the festivities.

Gerald Coughlin, '23, president of the alumni, Francis J. Roland, '01, vice president, and John Gill, executive secretary, are in charge of the affair.

Harridge Looks For Banner Season

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (AP)—Baseball is ready to take a fresh toehold and slam out one of its greatest seasons, William Harridge predicted today.

The American League president, while declining to disclose exact statistics, said that the 1937 American League season showed a "handsome" increase in attendance over 1936 and that all signs point to baseball in general—minor and major circuits—enjoying a bumper season next year.

"The American League," President Harridge said, "showed an increase of better than 1,000,000 in attendance in 1937 over the 1935 season's attendance mark, and the splendid turnouts this past season, even with New York making a runaway of the 'race,' indicates that the national game is heading toward a boom era.

MINOR SEASON SUCCESSFUL

"The National Association of Minor Leagues had a great season, and reports from our promotion department say that more high schools and colleges adopted baseball this year than ever before. Interest in the sport, especially among grade and high schools and small colleges, is steadily increasing."

Harridge said he considered the 1937 attendance "remarkable" in view of the way New York outdistanced the field.

"The Yankees," he said, "went into first place June 10 and won easily, yet the attendance held up to the end of the season. The attendance this year, up to and including games played Labor Day, exceeded the total attendance of the entire 1936 season, so the attendance this past season during the three final weeks was 'velvet.'"

N. L. RACE BEST

The junior circuit president conceded the National League race was more exciting than the American, but was convinced the American League had an edge when it came to "color" and drawing power.

"The Chicago White Sox, whether in the title running or not, always put on a real show," he continued. "Detroit, which led the circuit in attendance, always is a big drawing card and the Yankees pack them in. The race wasn't so good last year but we had enough entertaining ball clubs to offset the lack of title competition."

Calumet Dick Back in Town

By the Associated Press

Calumet Dick performed one of 1937 racing's most astonishing feats yesterday when he came back after nearly a month of inactivity to outgallop Masked General and Mucho Gusto in the 23d Thanksgiving Handicap at Bowie. The five-year-old son of Gallant Fox was cut down in the Washington Handicap at Laurel and has been away from the races for almost a month. But he came back to take the lead on the last turn from Mucho Gusto, the early pacemaker, and ran a fine race down the stretch. Burning Star, the favorite, was a well beaten sixth.

Esposa, of William Ziegler's stable, has been named for the $50,000 Widener challenge cup at Miami but it is not yet known definitely whether she will accompany the other 11 thoroughbreds of the stable to Miami after the close of the eastern season.

Charlie Kurtsinger will remain at his home in Louisville, Ky., until after Christmas. Big Heat Charlie will ride for H. P. Headley and may give a call to the Coldstream stud whose horses are handled by Bert Mitchell.

Toronto and its suburbs leads all Canadian cities in race track betting. More than half of all the race track betting in Canada took place in Ontario Province and more money was wagered in Toronto than in all provinces except Ontario in the past season. In all Canada the amount wagered was $22,275,787. Of this $13,635,000 was bet at Ontario tracks and $8,965,959 at Toronto tracks.

Bill De Correvont in Final Showing

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (AP)—Young America takes the gridiron at Soldiers Field tomorrow.

Two high school teams will play before 80,000, but what actually will draw this remarkably big crowd is one youngster whose exploits with a football this season have made him nationally famous.

He is William de Correvont, who is observing his 19th birthday anniversary today and who will celebrate his biggest moment tomorrow when he leads his suburban Austin High School teammates against St. Leo High for the Chicago prep championship. It will be the last game of his high school career.

A crowd of 80,000 for a high school game is a very remarkable tribute to a boy. The receipts will go to Mayor Edward F. Kelly's charity Christmas fund to feed the poor.

Autoist Crashes Fence at Court

LOWELL, Nov. 26—Some autoists have little respect for the dignity of the law. One driver openly flaunted his disregard some time early yesterday morning by crashing into the iron fence around the county court house in Gorham street.

The fence was smashed and officers found a large quantity of broken glass and scrap metal, which convinced them that the auto did not get away scot-free. Inspectors today visited all local garages and repair shops looking for a car which might have been left for repairing to it front end.

Filling Station Change Is Stolen

LOWELL, Nov. 26—Police are investigating a break which was made early yesterday morning in a filling station at Chelmsford and Westford streets. Patrolman William Brennan was trying doors on his beat about 2 o'clock yesterday morning when he found the station door unlocked.

Inspector Andrew W. Hunter learned from clerks that some small change had been taken from the cash drawer. The doors had been locked at 11 o'clock Wednesday night, clerks said.

Dukes 14, Detroit 7

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 26 (INS)—The Duquesne eleven completed an in-and-out football season with a mighty offensive in the last half of a thrilling game and upset the detroit Titans, 14 to 7.

Parents to Study School Budget

NEWBURYPORT, Nov. 26—School budgets will be discussed by Superintendent of Schools Charles R. Thibadeau and a study group from the High School Parent-Teacher Association next Tuesday. The conference was requested by the association, members of which are showing a great interest in the budget that will be drawn up for the operation of the schools next year.

At present the association is making a drive for a complete music program in the schools. There has been none for several years, since the retirement of Miss Elizabeth Carr Adams, music director for many years. In the interests of economy no successor was chosen by the school committee and for this reason the musical education of Newburyport school children has been neglected.

Nicketaris Elected Lynn English Leader

Angelo Nicketaris, a junior, was elected captain of the 1938 Lynn English football team today by the unanimous vote of his mates.

Angelo scored the winning touchdown against Lynn Classical yesterday when he caught a pass heaved by Ray Bessom. "Nicky" plays right end for the English gridders.

Van Raust Elected Cornell Captain

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26 (AP)—Alfred Van Ranst, 200-pound tackle from Brooklyn, was the captain-elect of the 1938 Cornell football team today. He was elected after the team's victory over Pennsylvania yesterday.

13 Teams Remain In Undefeated Column

By the Associated Press

Thirteen teams remained in the nation's select set of undefeated and untied elevens today after the Thanksgiving fireworks ended, with all but two finished their regular campaigning for the year.

Four of them, headed by Alabama's bowl-bidding Crimson Tide, cleared the last hurdle during the holiday campaigning, leaving only Hardin Simmons, which meets Howard Payne December 4, and Santa Clara, which tangles with Gonzaga Sunday, still showing incomplete schedules.

Alabama's 9-7 win over Vanderbilt yesterday skyrocketed the Tide to the head of the pack, with nine straight victories and 225 points scored, leading both Cape Girardeau Teachers of Missouri and Cornell of Iowa, each with nine wins, but far fewer points.

Cape Girardeau finished up with an easy victory over Missouri Mines to continue among the top-flight. Cornell had completed its schedule a week earlier.

ARKANSAS TOPS LIST

Probably the most astonishing record was that presented by Arkansas State Teachers, with the highest point total of all—337—in eight games, the last of which was a 34-0 triumph over Henderson State yesterday.

Also finishing up on Thanksgiving was Colorado's undefeated Rocky Mountain Conference champions. Whizzer White and company clouted Denver 34-7 for its eighth straight win and a total of 248 points.

Defensively, Lafayette had the best record among the undefeateds, with only six points scored against the Maroon in eight games.

Anne G Best Bet At Bowie Track

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections for fast track.)
BEST BET—ANNE G, SIXTH RACE

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 26—George McMitchell's Anne G., winner of three straight starts at the current session and victorious in all her last four starts, moves up only a trifle on the claiming ladder, and should experience little difficulty in keeping her brilliant record intact in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth race here tomorrow.

Anne G picked up 117 pounds and plodded a mile and one-sixteenth in 1 50 3-5, to win as her rider pleased from Inactive and others in last race. She sheds three pounds in actual weight and easily shapes up as the day's safest hazard.

FIRST—Hirsch Entry, Equerry, Sir Golden

Max Hirsch, who trains one of this country's largest public stables, will hold an all powerful hand in the day's opener, that is, if he elects to send Longchamp Farms' SHOULDER ARMS, Mrs. P. Corning's ON THE DOT and C. T. Grayson's JUBAL JUNIOR postwards. SHOULDER ARMS is the only one of the above mentioned trio that has never faced the barrier in active competition, but he has shown well enough in trials to warrant the belief that he may be a runner above the ordinary. ON THE DOT finished bangup seconds in his last two starts at Empire City, while JUBAL JUNIOR was a corking third in his Laurel final.

SECOND—Sun Antioch, Silent Shot, Rowes Crump

SUN ANTIOCH was placed much too highly in his Pimlico final and that effort should be tossed into the ashcan. In front of that race, the A. J. Abel colorbearer finished a corking second to Building Trades over a muddy track and needs only to duplicate that splendid performance to head less capable rivals such as he faces in the second. SILENT SHOT, third to Anne G. in last race, shapes up slightly better than ROWES CRUMP.

THIRD—Xandra, Zembla, Lassies Mary

XANDRA, which loves the local racing strip, drubbed Copper Tube and others over this same route the other day, but was disqualified for fouling. On that splendid performance, Watt Elliott's charge looks the part of a blazing cinch to head platers such as oppose her in the third. ZEMBLA, runner up to Ann G in last race, figures next best in what appears to be strictly a two-horse race. LASSIES MARY hardly looms capable of drubbing the top pair, but she figures to experience little difficulty in snaring the show award.

FOURTH—Great Haste, Mucho Gusto, Rainland

Despite stepping up considerably on the class ladder, GREAT HASTE, an easy winner of two starts at the current session, merits a standout figure over shifty sprinters listed to perform in the W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap. MUCHO GUSTO, third to Calumet Dick in the Thanksgiving Day Handicap and runnerup to Clingendaal in previous races, is really the class, but hardly looms capable of spotting the top selection 10 pounds in actual weight. RAINLAND was made entirely too much use of in chasing Clingendaal the other day and folded like an accordion in the stretch drive.

FIFTH—High Velocity, Merry Maker, Careful Miss

Dropping five pounds in actual weight, HIGH VELOCITY, a sterling second to MERRY MAKER in last race, holds an excellent chance of making the accounting in the fifth, a mile and seventy yards affair for Class C performers. MERRY MAKER, which finished two full lengths in advance of the top selection in above mentioned race, has a weight shift of seven pounds against his chances, but figures very close. CAREFUL MISS, a distant third to the top pair last time, again shapes up next best.

SIXTH—Anne G, Ashen, Light Chatter

If anything halts ANNE G's winning streak, it will probably be ASHEN. The latter did not do at all badly in finishing third to San Antico and Brilliant Light in last race. LIGHT CHATTER, a distant second to the top selection in last race, shapes up clearly next best.

SEVENTH—Copper Tube, Brilliant Light, Corum

COPPER TUBE stepped a mile and furlong in 1 57 1-5 to win as his rider pleased from Hammel and that sort only a few days back. The Medway colorbearer moves up a long ways on the claiming ladder in the seventh, but there's no telling just how good he may be. BRILLIANT LIGHT, a distant second to San Antioca in last race, looms all over the probable favorite and main danger. CORUM drops weight and shapes up as a wake-up possibility.

Move to Oust McLaughry At Brown

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 26 (INS)—Out of the same mouths that uttered cheers yesterday for the moulder of a famous "iron man" eleven, there came today murmurs of discontent presaging an early departure of Desmond A. "Tuss" McLaughry from the Brown University football coaching scene.

A group of younger Brown graduates have under consideration for presentation within a few weeks to the Brown athletic committee, the names of six prominent coaches, any one of whom may become McLaughry's successor.

Numbered among the six were Earl Neale, Yale backfield coach, and Gus Dorais, present coach at Detroit University.

Although Brown wound up its season with a 7-6 Thanksgiving Day victory over Rutgers, losses to Harvard and Yale have occurred with regularity since 1933, and Dartmouth has riddled the Bruin line with defeats for three seasons running.

This year, Brown won five of its nine games. All the wins, save the 7-6 upset scored over Columbia, were at the expense of minor foes, the losses came at the hands of Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth and Holy Cross.

Thanksgiving Day Brown's lone touchdown against Rutgers came with a 95 yard run of the opening kickoff by Quarterback Frank Foster, of Saugus. Fortunately for Bruin, Irving Hall converted the extra point.

B. Tranavitch scored for the Scarlets with a 17 yard run but failed to convert. Tranavitch hung up a total of 90 points for the season. Brown lost scoring chances five times during the remainder of the game, losing one goal line fumble.

Crack Welters to Travel 10 Rounds (or Less) Monday—Furr Has Met Best in Business

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 26—Ralph "The Ripper" Zannelli, this city's proud gift to the welterweight division, meets a foe of major league caliber here Monday when he clashes with Phil Furr of Washington in a 10-round bout at the Auditorium.

RALPH ZANNELLI

Zannelli, who has been undefeated in some 32 bouts since turning professional, shaded the durable Bobby Pacho in his last start in Boston Garden.

Furr boasts an enviable record. He knocked out Steve Halaiko of Buffalo, defeated Mickey Serrian and Harry Dublinsky, dropped close decision to Bobby Pacho and Jimmy Leto and has fought welterweight champion Barney Ross as well as Ceferino Garcia.

He is rated as the outstanding welterweight to be developed in the Washington-Baltimore sector since Joe Dundee.

Harvard's Hockey Prospects Bright This Year

With bright prospects for another successful season, the Harvard varsity ice squad will buckle down to regular drill in the afternoon sessions at the Boston Garden where the team has been practicing since the first call for candidates was answered by more than 35 hopefuls.

In the second cut of the year Head Coach Joe Stubbs slashed the squad list to 18 men, including 14 forwards and four defensemen. With these players as a nucleus Stubbs hopes to lay the foundations for a first class sextet.

Six lettermen have been practicing regularly, all of whom played leading roles in the closing games with Yale last spring. Captain Traf Hicks, Jr., Johnny Mechem, Ned Cutter, Joe Patrick, Gene Emerson and Pete Stone are the "early birds" who reported before the close of the current Harvard football season.

VETERANS DUE SOON

A substantial increase in veteran material will be experienced when the following football men report to Stubbs in about two weeks after a short rest from organized athletics. Russ Allen, captain of the victorious Crimson this past season, George Roberts, Austie Harding, Ralph Pope, Charley Houghton and Win Jameson, are certain to help the Crimson cause.

These players are expected to be ready for the season's opener with M. I. T. on December 7th, but until they report and are sufficiently in form there will be no division of the squad into varsity and junior varsity sections.

Coach Clark Hodder also cut his freshman squad to 41 in preparation for the initial game with Framingham High School in about two weeks at the fourth practice session of the year at the Arena.

The schedule calls for 14 games this year, which is an increase of two over the customary program for the yearlings.

STIFF OPPOSITION

Several of these will be with some pretty stern opponents, like St. Paul's, St. Mark's and Dartmouth freshmen. The final game is with the Eli cubs.

Hodder's candidates this season are facing a difficult task if they hope to equal or better the records of past Harvard freshman teams.

In particular, the first year sextets for the past three seasons dropped only three games during that time, with the 35-36 team taking 11 straight, scoring 91 goals to their opponents 19 and finishing up with a decisive 9-1 victory over the Yale freshmen.

Last year's team lost only one game, that to the B. U. frosh (4-5) in overtime, while winning 13 and drubbing a strong Yale outfit 5-2.

Red Wings Dive Gossip in Ice Circles

Duke Eleven Waits Arrival of Pitt Machine

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—Georgia Tech doesn't appear in football's "first ten" this year but Ralph McGill, the Atlanta sports writer who knows his onions, says on days when the Engineers can make their razzle-dazzle air attack click they are one of the four best teams in the country.

Who can explain the complete collapse of the Detroit Red Wings, last year's National League hockey champions?

Lots of folks say the week's best football game will be the pitching duel between Sammy Baugh and Arnie Herber of the Green Bay Packers in Washington Sunday.

If you want to know what National League hitters think of Prexy Ford Frick's new "dead ball," just ask any of 'em.

DUKE TEAM SMART

Just eight years ago Pitt came down here to help dedicate Duke's fine new stadium . . . It turned out to be more of a funeral than a celebration for Duke . . . Jock Sutherland was a good sport and tried to hold the boys back, but the big Panthers ran as far as they wished and ran up 52 odd points on poor Jimmy DeHart's helpless Blue Devils.

It won't be that sad this time. Duke has a smart, well-coached team and is primed for its best effort of the season. . . . In fact, some of the lads are going about [illegible] Duke and seven points [illegible] they almost have it agreed [illegible] the unexpected may happen.

Pastor Favored To Whip Mann

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (INS).—By midnight tonight Bob Pastor, the ex-college man who once was the pal of a campus hero, will know more or less definitely whether turning in his New York University books to become a professional boxer was a wise choice.

He will get the answer in a 10-round bout with Nathan Mann, the son of an Italian farmer of the New Haven, Conn., sector, and the odds are 2 to 1 that Pastor will cinch a match with Tommy Farr as a step before a heavyweight title challenge.

The two hard hitting younger heavies will clash for the first time before an expected crowd of from 12,000 to 15,000 at Madison Square Garden with a knockout a possibility.

The winner will go on to the Farr match in January—and possibly to the title, while the loser, as usual, will slip back among the also rans and quite possibly into obscurity.

It will be a battle of punchers, both being sluggers with either hand, but also [illegible] of equal importance [illegible] courageous as they have proved innumerable times in their march to the positions they now hold.

$914 Average For Trotters

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (INS).—The forty-third annual Old Glory auction of light harness horses closed its books today with 226 head sold for a total of $206,[illegible], an average of $914 per horse.

Biggest sale was not in the auction, however, but off the record, when the bay filly Vesta Hanover was taken by Sep Palin for E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., for $6250. The two-year-old trotting filly champion over mile track last season was consigned to the sale by Harry Short, agent, of Columbus, O.

In the auction the bay filly Mystery Child, which was in the consignment of Walnut Hall Farm, went to Ben F. White of Lexington, Ky., for $[illegible]—top price of the concluding session.

Melrose Rates No. 1 Ranking In State

The winner—no less than eight times this season—and new champion.

Honors in the mythical state title race this year go to Melrose high school, which traveled through its schedule without a smirch on its record.

The Thanksgiving Day victory over Arlington high—the last obstacle in the Red Raiders' path—paved the way for the state title claim as Melrose came through with flying colors.

It took Melrose the entire first period to get its attack rolling in full speed, but shortly after the start of the second period there was no doubt as to the final outcome.

The Poolemen put on their razzle dazzle attack to baffle completely the Arlington team.

KIDD AND SHERIDAN

Three plays by Melrose clinched the outcome, the first of this set but a decoy. Fred Kidd, starting from his own 22, pushed through for six yards, and it was this play that set up the Arlington defense for the touchdown.

The Arlington backs, looking for line plays and tricky laterals, closed in just enough for a mighty Bill Sheridan heave to Kidd that moved the ball deep into Arlington territory.

Kidd then ripped off 21-yards to the 15 where, trapped, he lateraled to Sheridan who scored unmolested.

Melrose then pushed across another marker in the same period putting the game on ice.

Meanwhile, Brockton High continued along its undefeated road which causes complications in the awarding of the championship claim.

The only stain on the Shoe City club's record is a scoreless tie with its old jinx rival, Medford.

MALDEN TOUGH

The cry will arise that Melrose faced less capable opposition than Brockton. Brockton had New Bedford Vocational, Newton, Salem, Fitchburg, Manchester Central, Quincy and Waltham on the schedule.

Vocational could offer little opposition, Newton was not up to par, Salem had one of its poorest clubs, Quincy was undergoing a new regime, while Waltham had admittedly its poorest club in years. Leaving only Manchester Central as a measure.

On the other hand, Melrose had Malden high as a balancer to Brockton's New Hampshire rival, and also came out on top. Malden proved itself a better team than Central.

The deeper this goes the more complicated it becomes. Melrose seems entitled to the state title claim on the records.

106-YARD RUN

Honors for the longest run of the season go to Tom Corroy, Wakefield high ace back. . . . Corroy took the ball in his own end zone from a kick formation and raced 109 yards through the entire Cambridge Latin team for the touchdown.

Johnny Grigas was a bit too much for Everett to swallow . . . his 66-yard run provided the only score of the game and a long sought victory for Chelsea . . . it has been in the cards all season for an Everett loss . . . after battling to four ties while remaining unbeaten.

Twenty thousand fans saw Boston Latin knock repeatedly at the English high goal line . . . but not a score was produced . . . Johnny McHugh led Dorchester to a one sided victory over Commerce in the nightcap.

Much credit given in Medford's defeat must be given to Captain Ray Vaias and Bob Given . . . they fought endlessly for the Mystics but just lacked that bit to put their club over.

Peabody high opened its two games in three days drive with a victory over Gloucester . . . Coming from behind to tuck the game away . . . the Tanners face Erasmus Hall at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow afternoon.

BESSOM DOES IT

Ray Bessom again accounted for a Lynn English victory over its city rival, Classical . . . his last period pitch, a perfect strike, put across the winning tally.

Tony Carrao crossed up Beverly a bit in the annual tilt at Salem . . . he started tossing passes as well as doing the kicking for the Witches . . . one of his aerials almost resulted in a score.

Trojans, Irish Sign New Pact

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 26 (AP).—Southern California and Notre Dame, which meet for the 12th straight year Saturday, will continue their interesting football rivalry through 1941, Elmer Layden, athletic director and head coach of the Irish announced today.

Already scheduled to meet in 1938 and 1939, the two institutions have agreed on dates for the next two years. Notre Dame will play at Los Angeles Dec. 7, 1940, and the Trojans will return to South Bend Nov. 22, 1941.

M'Mitchell Clips Schoolboy Mark

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 26.—Leslie McMitchell, George Washington high school senior, had his ninth straight victory and a new national interscholastic cross country record to his credit today.

Coming with a rush in the last 50 yards the New York school boy passed Eddie Morgan of Philadelphia and Graham Sheppard of Ohio to break the tape in 12:53.4 for the two and a half mile course, erasing the old mark of 13:03.8.

Garden Festival Next Week Opens Winter Sports Slate

Best Skiers Extant To Show Skill Here

Snow Days are near!

Those rolling hills of New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts will soon be loaded with winter sports enthusiasts doing their share to make this coming season the greatest in history.

It's true that the flakes are still missing and that we even have football tomorrow, but your true ski and snowshoe enthusiast is already checking his old equipment and planning to replace or add new items.

But while waiting for snow, winter will show indoors at the Boston Garden, beginning next Wednesday and lasting for five days.

The third annual national winter sports exposition and ski tournament is certain to draw capacity crowds for the number of enthusiasts for skiing and other snow arts runs into thousands.

The fact that everybody can actually take part in the festivities has been responsible for the new appeal for winter sports which is sweeping New England. But since they have to wait a while they will head for the Garden to watch the masters in action.

Such ski stars as Strand Mikkelsen, Anton Lekang, Billy Pulaski, Clarence Olsen, Clem Curtis, Casey Jones, John Erickson, Kenneth Subel, James Fallis, Herb White and John Holmer have often thrilled New England gatherings but their appeal never seems to wane.

Add the international flavor of Arthur Schaffer [illegible] St. Moritz, Wendlin Hilty, Swiss ski expert, Esko Jarvinen, international ski champion from Finland, and several others, and it is little wonder that the supporters of the ski sport are Garden bound.

Oddly enough, women are as great enthusiasts as men. Realizing this the exposition will also have a fashion show which should help the style conscious sex.

New Hampshire is making plans for the greatest winter in history. Lack of snow last year wrecked [illegible] the White Mountain [illegible] practically [illegible] winter [illegible] the bonanza which probably will not appear again in years.

Department stores and sporting goods houses are already well stocked with the last word in snow clothes and equipment.

First Snow Train Scheduled for Jan. 2

According to Boston and Maine officials there will be more trains [illegible] than ever before. In seven years though the railroad authorities have found there is very little snow until the first of the year. For that reason the tentative schedule has the snow trains starting January 2. If, however, the trails should be sufficiently covered during the latter part of December there will be special New Year week-end snow train excursions out of Boston and New York for New Hampshire, Vermont and Western Massachusetts.

Maine is starting to realize the tremendous advantage of enticing ski followers and is starting to build up the sport there. For years the Pine Tree State thought only of summer activities and fall hunting, but here is a sport that is a good one for hotels, restaurants and many other businesses during the slackest months of the year.

All we need is a decent break from the snowman and the migration to the north will be on.

Whizzer White Colorado Star

Long Runs Help to Rout Denver

DENVER, Nov. 26 (INS).—Colorado University won undisputed rights to the Rocky Mountain conference football championship by handing Denver University a 34-7 rubbing.

Playing before a Thanksgiving Day crowd of 31,000 persons, the undefeated Buffaloes completely outclassed their opponent, chalking up touchdowns in the first, second and fourth quarters.

The great Byron "Whizzer" White, Colorado quarterback, climaxed the last game of his gridiron career by putting the game on ice for the Buffaloes.

White tallied the first touchdown in the first quarter when he reeled off a 52-yard run through a broken field.

He scored again the second period with a 19-yard run after putting the ball in position by a [illegible]-yard dash. He tossed a 27-yard pass to Lexington to set up the third tally.

New Mat Stars At Mechanics

A semifinal and four strong preliminaries will support Promoter Eddie Quinn's wrestling inaugural at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night.

The feature bout will send the young Greek star, Jesse James, against Paddy Mack, ex-pugilist from the Midwest.

Popular Tommy Rae of South Hadley is paired with Les Ryan, former Fordham football star, in the co-final.

George [illegible] of R[illegible] will make his debut in a preliminary. He takes on clever Tony Cursaro of Springfield.

In another prelim Joe Dempsey, rough and tough New Yorker, also will make his Mechanics Building bow against Steve Brady, of Holyoke.

The popular [illegible] brothers, Frank and Bill, will appear in the other prelims. Frank is paired with P. Rady of B[illegible] and Bill with Harry [illegible] of D[illegible].

Tarheels Win, 40-0

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 26 (INS).—The Tarheels of University of North Carolina climaxed a brilliant season here by humbling University of Virginia 40 to 0 in a Thanksgiving battle before 14,000 fans.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

NOW then, after the turkey hash repast this evening, let's consider the air activity and what's to be heard before bedtime.

Chalk up the "Hollywood Hotel" hour for one, bringing another striking picture presentation due for dialers (WEEI) and with Kay Francis in the starring "name" role.

It's to be "First Lady" as adapted from the forthcoming film which was as recently made ready from the striking New York stage play. Verree Teasdale, Louise Fazenda and Preston Foster will be brought to the microphone by Louella Parsons, the noted Boston Evening American screen critic and columnist. It is abundant with suave and smooth satire splendidly suited to the broadcasting art.

"N. F. T."

Should a boxing bout be of interest, the broadcast of what happens when Bob Pastor and Nathan Mann meet in Madison Square Garden, down New York way, is ready and waiting (WBZ) at 10 o'clock.

• • •

Opposition on the 10 o'clock schedule affords (WNAC) the eighth anniversary etherizing of the "First Nighter" feature between 10 and 10.30, with "Broken Melody" for the impression in store.

• • •

Or if some collegiate flavor finds favor while you're picking programs the "Varsity Show" might appeal (WBZ) as wafted coast to coast from the Syracuse campus, come 9 o'clock.

THIS EAR—THAT AIR

It develops that "Charlie McCarthy's" comedy lines on learning to fly in some of the recent Sunday evening broadcasts are traceable to the fact that Edgar Bergen has been taking flying lessons for the past few weeks.

Bergen does not have many spare hours for flying and probably will not solo until Christmas.

• • •

Edward Arnold, who played the lead in Lux Radio Theatre's "Come and Get It," sat on a high stool at the microphone throughout the broadcast.

Producer Cecil B. DeMille provided the stool for Arnold during the week-end rehearsals. Arnold wouldn't part with it for the broadcast.

• • •

Although he had been identified with the tune "Bob White" for months, Bing Crosby does not know the words. He arrived at the "Music Hall" rehearsal last week with the words of several of his other numbers, but not "Bob White." Johnny Scott Trotter's orchestrations did not have the words on them.

While Bing was preparing to send to the Paramount lot for the lyrics, Bob Burns came in with the news that Bing's phonograph recording of the number was in a nickel machine at a nearby restaurant. "I heard somebody playing it while I was eating," Bob said.

Bing decided it was quicker to send a stenographer equipped with several nickels to the restaurant to take down the words from the record.

COULDN'T BE CONVINCED

A young man who was unmarried got into the "Husbands and Wives" program. He winced slightly as each new marriage difficulty was mentioned.

After the program he summoned up his courage and spoke to Sedley Brown. "How do you expect young people to get married after listening to a program like that?" Brown answered: "We receive letters of thanks all the time from couples just married. They are grateful because our radio show points out the difficulties to be avoided for a happy married life."

But the young chap remained skeptical.

Mansfield's Testimonial Banquet Set

MAYOR MANSFIELD

Group of 200 Plans Dinner for Dec. 15

A testimonial banquet will be tendered Mayor Mansfield by a group of prominent Boston citizens at Hotel Statler on December 15.

Carl Dreyfus, publisher of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, is chairman of the special committee of 200 now making arrangements for the reception and dinner. Mayor-elect Tobin will be the honorary chairman.

The banquet will climax the four-year administration of Mayor Mansfield which ends on January 3.

Fr. Austin Plans Novena Here

A nine-day novena in honor of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin will open Tuesday at Ss. Peter and Paul's Church, South Boston, with Father Austin preaching.

Father Austin

Father Austin, of the Franciscan Friary of Brookline, recently returned from a mission tour of the west. He formerly was the [illegible] at St. [illegible], New York, and now is retreat master at the [illegible] Friary.

The Novena will be held twice daily at 3:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. and will include special prayers and hymns in honor of the Blessed Virgin and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

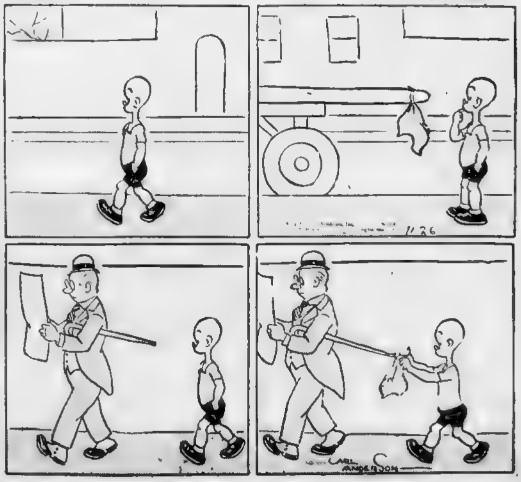
A Safety Measure



Guns Invite Crime In Peaceful Homes

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In the outskirts of New York the other night a 20-year-old wife shot her young policeman-husband dead. It was a crime of passion, as the French indulgently call it

To pretty Patricia Ryan, in love, she says, with her husband, and mother of two very young children the thought of murder has doubtless always been as abhorrent as it is to you or me.

Yet all of a sudden, after their beer drinking and their bitter quarrel, Officer Michael Ryan lay frighteningly still, and the girl who had made herself a widow found herself standing over him a smoking revolver in her hand.

In the same room the babies were awake and sobbing.

You can't clear up a tragic happening of this sort by protesting that married couples should [illegible] that they shouldn't [illegible]

A DOUBLE DANGER

But there is one thing that I wish such couples understood, however devoted to each other, however law-abiding naturally, that in [illegible] with love and firearms they are handling not one BUT TWO HIGHLY DANGEROUS EXPLOSIVES.

[illegible] me that as the weeping [illegible]-robed girl maintains the young Ryans were in love with each other Saturday night. They put the youngsters to bed [illegible] the car went out [illegible] returning stopped [illegible] Patricia says a couple glasses of beer apiece [illegible] they quarreled.

It's easy perhaps to quarrel if [illegible] jealous [illegible] in love [illegible]

[illegible] was over the [illegible]

[illegible] by the [illegible] husband [illegible] passionate [illegible] both of them [illegible]

FOR THE MOMENT LOVE WAS TURNED TO HATE.

She knew where the officer's [illegible] She reached for it and fired. That was all.

A [illegible] remorse.

Now what are these explosives I spoke of?

Love is dangerous—as well as beautiful because unless it's [illegible] it makes demands, it suffers, it retaliates, it [illegible]

In extreme cases, if you sufficiently inflame, excite and wound it love may even as in this case KILL THE VERY OBJECT OF ITS DEVOTION.

But this won't happen unless somebody is ill-advised enough to introduce a gun into the house.

My own strong feeling is that firearms are totally unnecessary as articles of domestic furnishing and if allowed at all should be kept locked up in a safe.

And while I recognize that a policeman is obliged to be armed, he also I think on removing his revolver should put it where no human being but himself can get hold of it.

If Patricia Ryan hadn't caught sight of the revolver and surrendered to the murderous impulse it aroused she and her husband would probably half an hour later, have been on good terms again, the disturbing episode all but forgotten.

TOO GREAT A PRICE

Here they were two healthy, happy young parents blessed with two fine babies. A dispute, bad feeling, a revolver too near at hand—AND TRAGEDY.

Human beings should of course, be wise and self-controlled.

They should never let either love or hate get the better of them. But until we can bring this idyllic state of things about, can't we at least urge that guns be fewer and scarcer?

Can't we implore that they shall not be left lying on table-tops in peaceful homes?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year and a half ago I had to undergo a major operation. As I was not in a position at that time to pay the fee ordinarily asked for such an operation, the doctor in charge accepted about half the usual amount and was very kind to me.

Since then I have had to return to him for consultation and several treatments for which he has not charged me at all.

I appreciate very much what he has done for me, and would like in some way, to show my appreciation. I was wondering if I could, with propriety, give him a motor rug, or perhaps you could suggest something else?

When sending the gift just what should I say in a note?

FRANCES T.

DEAR FRANCES:

Knowing as well as we all do the financial struggles of most doctors these days my advice is that you talk with him frankly about payments for these treatments that you are having now.

He will, I am sure, appreciate more your honest attempt to pay for these treatments, even though you make some straight forward arrangement with him about not paying his full fee.

He will undoubtedly appreciate a "grateful patient gift," but undoubtedly he will more appreciate payments, even though comparatively small, for your visits.

Since he has been so exceptionally kind and generous to you, you should, if at all possible, pay him something for these present and future treatments and consultations.

It will make him realize that you are an understanding person, and will I am sure, make you feel better about this situation.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

WHOM TO MARRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I tell you my [illegible] was half finished and I fully expected to marry A. in two months' time and then met another man who completely changed my feelings toward my fiance, you will think I am fickle.

A. is only five years older than I am, but seems much more than that. He has charming manners and is a fine well-educated gentleman who will always be good to his wife and see that she has everything.

At a dance I met Z. as I shall call him, and the moment we danced together it seemed all over for A. as far as I was concerned.

I've two-timed A., gone out with Z. [illegible] happy [illegible] either [illegible] It's [illegible]

I hate to hurt A. by [illegible] him how [illegible] are and [illegible] expecting [illegible] Z. I'm pretty [illegible] whole affair.

TWO TIMER.

DEAR GIRL:

You would [illegible] A man whose [illegible] other man who [illegible]

He [illegible] promising [illegible] husband and if [illegible] enough I believe [illegible] come around to my way of thinking.

Meanwhile I hope [illegible] will not marry A.

You could not make him happy [illegible] under these circumstances.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"AIR TACTICS"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When a girl has gone out a few times with a certain young man and does not want to continue doing so what would be a good way to "drop" him?

And if he asks the reason, what would be the proper reply?

JANE.

MY DEAR JANE:

You should have been a little more frank with me and given me the reason you want to break with him; whether it is just caprice or perhaps because he didn't spend enough on you, or some such thing.

If he has done something to make him unworthy of your friendship, just drop him!

But if you're doing this for some trivial reason, it would be kinder to use tact and make the process as painless as possible.

When he invites you out, make an excuse, and when he calls, just be "not at home."

If he asks why you're doing this be guided by the same discretion.

Renew Throat Loveliness

LORETTA YOUNG'S breath-taking loveliness of chin and throat line is fostered carefully as pearls of an empire's price . . . with stress on nourishing tissues, and bracing muscles through exercises quite like those which are included with the chin-strap and throat-cream find Arline Gould tells of today.

Use Rejuvenating Cream With Resculpturing Chin Strap

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU MAY FEEL 19, look 23 . . . but if your throat line tolls a knell that counts up to at least 30, you needn't bother to waste any little white lies on your birth date.

Whatever you blithely chop off in the matter of years is blazoned and proclaimed right below your sweetly lying mouth!

For when the chin-line gives way crumpling like the Yale line before Harvard . . . you may as well pack up your flying pennants of youth and retire to a snug spot beside the radio.

Or you can resort to what seems like almost sheer magic . . . a new chin strap that works together with super-sunshine charged throat cream and not only nourishes away wrinkles and crepey flabbiness, but actually forces the throat-line into a sweep of loveliness that's young as spring.

• • •

There's no use getting bitter about sagging "jowls" and muscles that have no more briskness than an old tennis ball . . . if things have reached that pass, you may need a bit more than the "fifteen minutes a day" that this startling new treatment advises.

But you'll arrive at your goal the more ecstatically happy because you'd never believed it could really happen to you!

You'd be surprised if you knew how many tender young starlets, how many brilliant women of forty who have the zest of a fulfilled twenty-five, how many other radiant creatures that are perfection in the public eye go about some small daily chore or other with a film of super-throat cream and the pretty chin strap bound lightly and comfortably around chin and head.

• • •

Anything you do during the day—whether it's sinking chin on chest as you go at Mr. Thomas Wolfe, or whether it's bending over a hot stove and a mess of chops and broccoli—gives your chin-line the chance to let-down its looking for.

Wear the strap to prevent your downbent head from forcing an unbecoming droop on you.

Wearing the strap alone—says its brilliant creator—is like trying to run your car without gas. The molding power goes hand-in-hand with the bracing, tissue-building and rejuvenating elements in the Vitamin D throat cream.

• • •

Unlike many costly arrangements, you may buy the strap and a little jar of throat cream for something like a dollar. For all further details, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Buerger's' Hits Arteries, Veins

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

DISTURBANCES in the circulation of the blood and of the circulatory organs take on many forms.

The arteries and veins of the extremities, especially of the legs, are the ones most likely to be involved.

These disturbances may be caused by hardening of the blood vessels or may be the result of varicose veins. "Buerger's disease" is often confused with these ailments.

This disease was first described by Dr. Buerger in 1908. Since then it is usually spoken of as Buerger's disease, but to the doctors is given a big name, "thromboangitis obliterans."

A "thrombus" or blood clot forms within the blood vessel. This serves as a barrier or obstruction to the normal flow of blood. With the circulation cut off, it naturally produces serious changes in the nutrition and health of the involved limb.

Strange as it may seem, the actual cause of this disease is not known. It is believed that heredity plays an important part because frequently it occurs in several members of a given family. Although any nationality may be afflicted, it is more prevalent among Russian Hebrews. Diet is supposed to have something to do with the production of the disease.

WHERE IT'S FOUND

Although the disorder may be found in any portion of the body as I said, it most frequently involves the legs. The veins become thickened and the affected part is inflamed and painful.

At first the patient may notice a peculiar numbness and spasmodic attacks of pain. In due course of time the symptoms become worse and the pain is exceedingly severe. Gangrene, death of the tissues, occurs in the extreme forms of the disease.

Make Tidbits Of Turkey Left-Overs

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

WHAT WILL be your swan song to the turkey dinner? What to do with the leftover turkey is really no problem.

If the carcass is quite well cleaned of meat it may be ready for the soup kettle at once. But you may be able to serve another attractive meal or two from the bird before it reaches the soup stage.

We know a man who always looks at the turkey carcass with a sigh and says "Just think what a grand pot of turkey and bean soup that will make."

We've some suggestions [illegible] for using up these turkey [illegible] If you haven't quite enough [illegible] for the amount called for [illegible] some of the stuffing. [illegible] filling but will add a savor [illegible]

TURKEY RAMEKINS WITH TOMATO SAUCE

2 cups ground leftover turkey, chicken or veal
2 tablespoons fat
⅓ cup stock
2 egg yolks, well beaten
1 cup milk
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon finely-chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

[illegible] baking [illegible] in a pan [illegible] 30 minutes [illegible] Unmold [illegible] with tomato [illegible] Serves 6.

TOMATO SAUCE

2 cups stewed or canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper or a dash of red pepper
3 peppercorns
Piece of bay leaf
Celery leaves
⅛ teaspoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon celery salt
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cloves
2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup sliced mushrooms

Boil the tomatoes and seasonings together for 20 minutes [illegible] through a sieve [illegible] together the fat and flour, add gradually the strained tomatoes. Simmer [illegible] minutes and [illegible] add the mushrooms.

JELLIED TURKEY WITH VEGETABLES

1 level tablespoon gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups hot turkey stock or soup
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup vegetables (cooked peas, string beans, limas or carrots)
1 pimiento or green pepper
1 cup cold roast turkey, sliced

Soak gelatin in cold water about five minutes and dissolve in hot soup or turkey stock. Add salt and stir thoroughly. Allow mixture to cool and when starting to congeal pour a thin layer of the jelly in a loaf pan, which has been rinsed in cold water. Arrange layer of vegetables on jelly, then a layer of sliced turkey, some of the jelly and continue alternately [illegible] is filled. Place in refrigerator to chill. When firm serve garnished with lettuce or cress, greens, tomato slices and olives. This dish may be prepared [illegible] at [illegible] for Sunday [illegible] supper or luncheon.

CREAMED TURKEY

2 cups diced turkey
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk or 1⅓ cups evaporated milk and 1⅓ cups turkey broth or water
Salt and pepper.

Cut turkey into ½ inch dice. Prepare a white sauce of the butter, flour, milk turkey broth, salt and pepper. Add turkey and heat thoroughly over boiling water. Serves 6. Serve in sweet potato nests or in bread cases.

BREAD BUTTERCUPS

Trim crusts from slices of fresh white bread. Brush lightly with melted butter. Press into sections of a muffin pan. Place in a moderate oven (350° F.) until toasted 10 to 20 minutes. Fill with creamed mixture of meat, fish or vegetables.

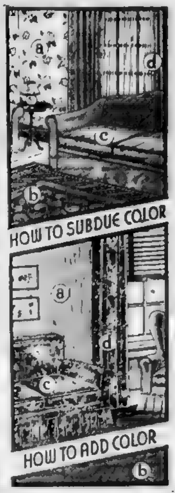
Your Color Scheme

SO your living-room isn't the charming spot you want it to be!



Then look at the four focal points: (A) the walls, (B) the rug, (C) the upholstery, (D) the curtains. See what a few inexpensive changes in color can do.

HOW TO SUBDUE COLOR

Mrs. M.'s living-room in the top sketch was a hodgepodge.

Walls, patterned in green and apricot.

Rug, floral pattern in sapphire, pink, green and gray.

Upholstery, old rose.

Curtains, blue and old rose.

So Mrs. M. made new curtains of emerald green which cleverly tied together the green of wallpaper and rug. She made a slip cover of the same color for the sofa, plain gray covers piped in green for the easy chairs.

HOW TO ADD COLOR

"Dull," said Mrs. R. of her [illegible] walls, her dark brown [illegible] upholstery and curtains. And dull they were until she [illegible] curtains and a sofa [illegible] cretonne, figured in [illegible] cinnamon brown and gold [illegible] covers of plain red, a green flower print complete a [illegible] glowing color scheme.

MADGE TO WITHDRAW MONEY

CHAPTER 465

"INDEED, I do know," I murmured, assenting to Mrs. Cosgrove's dictum that "these are dangerous days." And even as I spoke I was remembering Dicky's more strident warning, when in answer to his query, "How much does this damned thing total?"

I [illegible] him the sum that Robert Savarin had entrusted [illegible] in order to safeguard the future of Lillian and Marion.

[illegible] don't you realize the danger you run?" he had [illegible] "If anybody knew that [illegible] draw against [illegible] the victim of [illegible]

There was but one thing for me to do [illegible] and that was to ask the advice of this bank official, Mr. Winslow, whom Mrs. Cosgrove had praised so highly and [illegible] whose presence at the bank [illegible] was now inquiring.

She was back in the room in another minute, her face wearing the [illegible] expression of one who is the bearer of pleasant news.

"Mr. Winslow goes out to lunch at 12," she said, "and is back [illegible] If you get there by one, [illegible] give you two hours before [illegible] although I'm [illegible] won't need but a few minutes. And we'll have time for a [illegible] talk. You won't need to start for Kingston until noon or a [illegible] after. It's less than an hour's [illegible] traveling the way you generally do."

"WE OUGHT TO START"

"We ought to start at once," I [illegible] in order to catch him before [illegible] to lunch. You see we have [illegible] back to the farm tonight [illegible] we probably shall have to stop [illegible] New York City first."

The last words seemed to utter [illegible] without any volition of [illegible] I had suddenly remembered my charge to Samuel Brixton to go [illegible] office on this day and wait [illegible] for word from me. He had no idea of course from whom that word would come and I [illegible] not wish him to suspect [illegible] direction I had traveled to get the money I had promised him. Not even to Samuel Brixton [illegible] must come the story of the [illegible] Robert Savarin had made for Lillian Underwood and [illegible] daughter Marion.

"Then you shall start at once. We'll talk on the way."

I turned to her in protesting astonishment.

MRS. COSGROVE PLANS TO GO

"You don't mean that you're going with us to Kingston?" I said. "I couldn't put you out so."

"Did you ever hear of a country woman being put out by a [illegible] to a city, even a small one?" she countered. "Remember we are [illegible] tied any more." Her face was suddenly sad, and I guessed she was recalling the years of devoted care she had given to her mentally [illegible] brother and her equally tender attention during his last physical illness, when his mind, though restored to sanity, had been so infinitely saddened by his estrangement from Lillian.

"Then you wouldn't mind driving me down to Kingston, would you, while Edward takes Mr. Graham in our car? Then when you've finished at the bank, we can change partners and go our separate ways. Does that program appeal to you?"

"It's simply wonderful," I said, "provided you let me make two amendments."

'ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY'

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

What Has Happened:

World shaking events are close at hand when Matilda, Countess of Matresser, meets her handsome bachelor son and heir, Ronald, soon after one of his long and mysterious journeys abroad.

He chides her gently for hiring foreign servants. Sir Ronald (Lord Matresser) has but started a rest on his rich country estate when an unconscious man is found near the Great House.

Ronald's younger sister, Ann, introduces him to Mademoiselle Elisabeth Stamier, a beautiful Austrian who is her new companion. Matresser recalls seeing her before. She tells him that her noble family, like most royalty, has fallen into evil days.

That night Matresser confers with Dr. Andrews, an old family friend, who is treating the unconscious stranger. When Matresser says he won a bet that he would never reach Norfolk alive, the doctor thinks he is referring to his health.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER 4

"I would rather not, if you don't mind," his brother-in-law begged. "If I do change my mind I know I shall find everything I want in our sitting room."

"Then come along, Andrews," Matresser said, waving his hand to the doctor. "You and I will be the only dissolute ones."

A pipe a[illegible] whiskey and soda [illegible] the great house was [illegible] of ending an exciting evening [illegible] when Matresser was at home [illegible] one of the places.

"Cigar or cigarette?" his host inquired.

"I will smoke my pipe if I may," the doctor replied, producing it from his pocket. "I say, it is good to have you back again, Matresser."

"I'm not sorry to be here myself, especially as I won a three to one bet that I would never reach Norfolk alive. Say when."

A HINT OF DANGER

"Just a splash more soda, please. Thanks."

Andrews accepted his glass, lit [illegible] and presented the appearance of a man thoroughly at ease w[illegible]

"You will forgive me, won't you, Matresser," he begged "but what do you mean about that bet? I never saw a man in my life who looked fitter than you do, and you can't be more than—let me see—thirty-seven or thirty-eight. You were twenty-eight when you succeeded, weren't you?"

"That's right," Matresser ac[illegible]

"You must not take me too seriously, doctor," he went on [illegible]

"It was not exactly a matter of health. The fact of it is that I chose to interfere in a matter which my friend thought a little indiscreet and he was trying to bring me into a saner frame of mind."

"Oh, that was it, was it?"

Matresser nodded.

"I believe," Matresser continued "that I am in as perfect health as any man of my age could hope to be. It was not that at all.

"When one has led the sort of life I have, knocking about all the time in foreign countries, and there's a chance of real adventure, one is inclined to take risks which would seem appalling at home here . . .

"Anyway, you can see, I have won my bet. Here I am safe and sound and wondering whether I have forgotten how to swing a shotgun. I have carried nothing but a rifle for months."

There was a brief pause. Matresser p[illegible] a little fur[illegible] the bowl of [illegible]

"By-the-by, you are a great pal of my mother's, Andrews," he remarked. "Have you any idea why she suddenly decided that Ann needed a companion and what made her bring Mademoiselle Stamier down into this part of the world?"

The doctor smoked on in silence for several moments.

"Your mother does occasionally come to me for advice," he admitted. "On this occasion she did not. We were none of us prepared for such a visitation."

"Visitation?" Matresser quoted thoughtfully.

A HEART BREAKER

"Can't think of any other word for the moment," Andrews confessed. "She has been here a little over a year and there's not a man I know who hasn't lost his heart to her."

"Including myself," Andrews groaned.

"It's no good—I know that, all right—but for the rest of my life I shall go on thinking that she is the most beautiful creature God ever created. I'd marry her tomorrow if she'd have me."

Matresser [illegible] half-closed eyes [illegible] at his guest and [illegible] note of him.

"I should put her out of my mind, if I were you," Matresser advised.

"I have never allowed myself to put her in there," was the mournful reply.

"What I cannot make out," Matresser continued, "is why she consented to come. She strikes me as a young lady who has been used to a very different atmosphere."

"I saw you look at her when she came in," Andrews confessed.

"To tell you the truth it put a queer idea into my head. I wondered whether you had ever met her before."

"Hard to remember exactly," was the careless reply.

"One meets so many people. A month in the cities and a year or more in the wild spots of the world and you find that your memory is perforated—everything has slipped away.

"All the same you can make sure of one thing. Whether I have seen her before or not it was a great surprise to me to see her established in this household."

"Are you sure that you have never met her before?" the doctor asked point blank.

"If I had," Matresser answered, and though his voice was raised scarcely above a whisper it seemed to Andrews that an icy chill had crept into the room, "it would not suit me just at the moment to divulge the fact. Have you your car outside?"

"Of course."

"I should like to drive back with you and have a look at your patient. I should be perfectly within my province as chief magistrate for the district in asking him a few questions."

The doctor removed his pipe from his mouth. He was frankly amazed.

"Do you mean to come down with me tonight to the surgery just to interrogate this fellow?"

"Why not? It is only a few minutes' drive and the night is young. We all have our foibles, you know. I dislike strangers hanging about the place."

The doctor rose to his feet.

"If you feel that it is worth your while, I am at your service. I will fetch my coat and hat."

"You don't need to," his host replied, knocking out the ashes from his pipe.

"You will find them in your car outside the private entrance here. I made up my mind soon after dinner that I should ask you to take me for this little spin. We don't want to wake up anyone at the front."

A MYSTERY CAR

It was about a mile and a half to the doctor's house along a most typical Norfolk lane.

They had jogged along about half of the distance with only the side lights burning, when Andrews broke off in the middle of a thrilling account of the misdemeanors of a certain magistrate and, with a startled exclamation, jammed down his brakes, swung almost into the hedge on the side and blew his horn f[illegible]

"What on earth was that?" he asked.

"A car driven by a lunatic," Andrews exclaimed furiously. "Curse the fellow! Not a single light showing. Not a thing to be heard with this accursed wind blowing and he must have been traveling at 40 miles an hour.

"If I had not just managed that slight swing away we should have had him on top of us."

Matresser stood [illegible] for a moment earnestly into the pool of blackness and beyond on the right hand side to the faintly shining har[illegible]

"The fellow might go into hiding anywhere if he thinks he has done any damage," he pointed out.

"There are two lanes into the woods, you know. When you drive me back we could have a look for him."

They started back again with headlights blazing.

There was no sign of other traffic on the road, however, and the lights in the straggling village of Upper Matresser were all extinguished as the doctor brought his car to a standstill before a long house of ancient red brick fronting the street.

AT THE HOSPITAL

"The surgery entrance, if you don't mind," Andrews proposed.

"I see my housekeeper has gone to bed so that means the patient is asleep. He is in the room I call my clinic just above the surgery.

"I'll take you up there and you can have a word or two with him while I wake the constable and tell him about that car."

He led the way after a few minutes fumbling for the key through the surgery across a small oak panelled hall of irregular shape and dimensions to a flight of crazy stairs.

Arrived on the first floor, he paused to listen for a moment outside one of the rooms.

"Quite all right," he whispered, opening the door.

"Not a sound. The fellow's asleep. I gave him a mild dose of bromidia before I went out—just enough to keep him quiet."

LOSE AROUND THE MIDRIFF

By IDA JEAN KAIN

YOU can take five years off your figure by streamlining the midsection. Not only is a roll about the midriff the most obvious sign of age, but it is also the most unnecessary.

If you are willing to exercise, you can have a slim youthful figure when you are a grandmother!

...And if you won't exercise, you will find yourself slipping long before you had any intention of doing so. As a matter of fact, you start to lose your figure at about the age of twenty or whenever it is that you give up active sports.

Once a girl emerges from the "terrific teens" she is unlikely to participate in the activities that strengthen and slim muscles and contours of the midsection. Office routine and housework are certainly no help to your figure.

* * *

To keep her figure youthful the average woman must wage a constant fight against laziness, inertia and the thousand and one excuses that crop up.

Most of us lose out. We do not take the small amount of daily exercise required for health and lovely lines.

You will look and feel younger for the loss of cumbersome padding about the mid section of your figure. Begin with this waistline subtractor.

POSITION. Standing on right knee, left leg stretched straight out at the side, arms stretched high overhead.

MOVEMENT. Keeping the body and arms stretched upward, bend at the waist to the left side. As you become more supple it will be possible to greatly increase this sideward bend at the waist. Perform the exercise three times, bending to the left, then change the position and bend to the right three times. Gradually increase the number of times of performance.

* * *

The following exercise streamlines the midsection and at the same time slims down the hipline.

POSITION. Lie face downward on the floor, stretched to full extension.

MOVEMENT: Holding the arms straight out on the floor in front of the body, raise alternate legs as high in the air as possible. Keep the knees straight.

You can streamline the midsection by daily use of the leaflet "Stretch the Fat from Waistline, Ribs and Wishbone." Send a stamped addressed envelope for this leaflet.

QUESTION: Will salt rinses strengthen the gums so that they will not bleed? W. C. Brighton

ANSWER. Yes, salt is fine for firming and toning the gums. Write in again and enclose a stamped self addressed envelope for our dental care leaflet, which gives directions and a recipe for a fine mouthwash which takes care of bleeding gums, and gives other dental hygiene tips.

Novel Snow Scenes in Ballroom At Animal League Bazaar

By BETTY ALDEN

AS FAR as the committee workers for the Animal Rescue League bazaar are concerned, Old King Winter can take his time (and he undoubtedly will) about sending us enough snow to ski on . . . for they are going to build their own winter sports scenes in the Copley-Plaza ballroom for the annual fair to benefit the League, next Monday and Tuesday, November 29 and 30 . . .

MRS. L. DAVIS, JR.

The dominant feature of the decorations will be a ski slide descending from the balcony to the ballroom floor . . . Life-like dolls in full skiing regalia . . . skis, harness and all . . . will animate the scene . . . and at the end of this snow covered slope the grab box will be located . . .

To the right and left of the grabs will be tables full of toys for the children . . . Miss Rossmond Newton of Milton who is presiding over the toy table, will have a group of debs in ski togs for her salesgirls, to carry out the novel winter sports idea . . .

If it's flowers or plants you're after the logical person to look for is Mrs. Geoffrey Whitney of Milton, one of the leading lights in garden club activities hereabouts . . . It's Mrs. Whitney who has the beautiful natural pond, nestled in a miniature pine forest which always gives so much joy to garden lovers who visit her estate in the annual spring tour of Milton gardens . . . Helping her at the flower table Monday and Tuesday will be Mrs. C. Miff in Frothingham, Mrs. Charles Henderson, Mrs. John H. Cunningham, Jr., Mrs. Edward Gray, Mrs. Edward Emerson, Miss Elizabeth C. Barr, Mrs. G. Handasyde Whitney, Mrs. William M. Trest, Mrs. Paul Killiam, Mrs. Sullivan Sargent, Mrs. Frank S. White and Mrs. Daniel A. Herrick . . .

Mrs. Frederick O. Houghton will preside over the Animal Helpers Club with the assistance of Mrs. Gradiner H. Hall, Mrs. Herbert H. Hilton, Miss Martha Keyes and Mrs. Harold M. Young . . .

Committee in Charge of Basket Table

IT IS ALMOST a foregone conclusion that the basket table at the annual fair for the Animal Rescue League will be presided over by a trio of attractive girls . . . Mrs. B. Davis Crowninshield, Emily Davis and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lincoln Davis, Jr. . . . because for several years they have willingly offered to carry on this phase of the work . . . with which they are quite familiar by now . . . Mrs. Arthur Wheelwright will also help out in distributing sweet grass and all sorts of pretty baskets . . .

Gifts for the babies on your Christmas list will be found in all their appealing daintiness on Mrs. Henry Lowell Mason's table where Mrs. Frederic Galacar and Miss Marjorie Loring will take turns as salesgirls . . .

Mrs. James R. Hammond is also working diligently for the success of the fair . . . Her table will be piled high with a variety of delicious cakes and her assistants will include Elsie Brewer, Susan Hammond, Ann Houghton, Mrs. Robert Faxon, Jane Garfield and Sally Fairchild . . .

Mrs. Charles E. Ewing will be in charge of the jellies table, Miss Helen Leighton, the gifts; Mrs. Herbert D. Swift, candy; and Mrs. Arthur W. Thayer, books . . . Mrs. Robert Seller will be in charge of the table devoted to the Pine Ridge Home of Rest for Horses . . . while the Misses Storer and Mrs. J. M. B. Churchill of Cambridge will be at the household table . . . At the directors' table will be Mrs. Arthur T. Cabot, Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, Mrs. M. C. Karolik, Mrs. Daniel Stamford, Mrs. Ezra Thayer and Mrs. Gerald Street . . .

A bit of the romance of the lovely old-fashioned cotillions held in Colonial Days will be recalled at the candlelight ball which Mrs. John Nicholas Brown is giving in Providence this evening for Elizabeth Wheeler Innis, a debutante of this season . . . Miss Innis was presented to society a week ago tonight at the Agawam Hunt Club, where she was greeted by a number of her sister debs from Boston . . . Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Kinsolving and Miss Sally Kinsolving of Boston, will be guests at the candlelight ball this evening, which will be held in the John Brown House in Providence . . .

Barbara Kendall Makes Debut

AN ANTIQUE HANGING of blue damask formed the background against which Mrs. Joseph F. Kendall and her debutante daughter, Barbara, received their luncheon guests in the Balinese Room at the Hotel Somerset this afternoon . . . For this party, which marked her official bow to Boston society, Miss Kendall chose a gown of sapphire blue velvet with a hat to match . . . Her corsage was made with a large camellia in the center surrounded by red and blue pompons . . . Mrs. Kendall's dress was of black velvet with a matching hat . . . Her corsage was of white orchids . . .

The guests, mostly this season's debutantes, were seated at a large horseshoe shaped table which was decorated with tightly woven wreaths of white, yellow and blue flowers . . . Ruby Newman's musicians played incidental music throughout the luncheon . . . there was an impromptu entertainment . . . Among the invited guests were Jean Carpenter, Deborah Sprague, Phyllis Childs, Susan Storey, Helene Harlow, Jean Cullen, Nancy Sears, Jean Pratt, Harriet Butler, Jean Halladay, and Janet Pierpont . . .

Still others were Amy Ranney, Caroline Day, Betty Scudder, Betty and Peggy Firuski, Sally Mosser, Elaine Dearborn, Jean Clark, Nancy Newell, Mary Gray, Louise Fry, Nancy Stevens, Elizabeth and Emily Osborn, Ellen Harte, Katherine Franke, Josepha Richmond, Cornelia Menard, Elizabeth Cunningham, Virginia Lee Hyde, Constance Brooks, Ruth Crocker, Sylvia Van Ness, and many others . . .

Miss Kendall, who is the daughter of the late Joseph F. Kendall, graduated from the May School last June . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Cutler of Arlington street, spent the Thanksgiving holiday in Newport where they were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt of New York . . . Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt, who opened their estate Oakland Farm, in Newport for the holiday, entertained Wednesday evening with a large dinner party to celebrate Mr. Vanderbilt's thirty-sixth birthday . . . other house guests were Mrs. Cutler's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Sands and Mrs. C. Oliver O'Donnell . . . Mr. Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, and Mr. Fitz Simons, were also guests over the holiday

Make Merry at Reunion Of Emmanuel Grads

GEORGE KELEHER — GRACE MALONEY — CLAIRE O'BRIEN — HARRY ROCKETT

IN ONE OF THE MERRY FOURSOMES celebrating Thanksgiving Eve at the Emmanuel College supper dance at the Hotel Somerset were George Keleher of Woburn who escorted Grace Maloney of Belmont to the reunion and Clare O'Brien of Dorchester who was accompanied by Harry Rockett. Grace was gowned in black crepe while Clare chose a dark sheer effectively banded in diamente, very attractive with her blonde hair. It was a gay party of Emmanuel grads.

Marot Folk Plan Luncheon

Members of the Boston Marot Club of Mary [illegible] Junior College and Howe Marot School of Hartford, Conn., will hold their fall luncheon tomorrow at the Brittany Coffee Shop on Newbury street.

Mary L. Marot, head of the college, will attend the luncheon at which [illegible] Rice, president of the Boston club, will discuss plans for the year.

Among those who will attend are Brenda B[illegible], Bessie Greenwood, Helen Whittemore, Mrs. Murray F. Gardner, Frances Hall, Helen Saysinger, Mildred Shaste, Olive Sylvester and Dorothy Brackett.

Boston Chapter, P[illegible] Sorority will hold its bi-monthly meeting at the Parker House this evening. Elsa Munsterberg will speak on "Design in [illegible] Life and Art" [illegible].

Miss Munsterberg is the daughter of the late Professor Munsterberg of Harvard University and is a teacher at the Normal Art School in Boston. She is past president of the State House Women's Club.

Junior Philomatheia, Emmanuel at Dances

It was very pleasant, the grand welcome the young set gave Thanksgiving at its dance the holiday eve.

Emmanuel gathered at the Somerset and munched chicken to the accompaniment of one of Marshard's bands while the Junior Philomatheians made merry at the Chalet, transformed into a gridiron for the evening.

Emmanuel's dance marked the first official appearance of the new alumnae president, Katherine Conroy, who has what it takes to be a successful madame president. Her robin eggs blue [illegible] satin frock was quite unusual, fashioned on quaint lines, full-skirted and puffed-sleeved. Orchids and old kid jewelry were her well-chosen accessories.

Of course, to Betty Cunningham of Waltham went the credit of the evening. Bett's frock of dubonnet velvet was quite similar to the gown worn by Mrs. James McLaughlin of Woburn, the former Dorothy Groden, chairman of reservations.

Celia Gilgun of Woburn, vice president of the graduates, looked stunning in her black and gold creation, large gold coin dots trimming her black veil. Dr. John Kehoe escorted her while Celina's brother brought along Marie Mullen of Cambridge who wore a wreath of silver leaves with her silver lame. Also numbered in their party were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jackson, the latter in fuchsia taffeta combined with royal blue.

GOWN OF BLACK VELVET

The newly-engaged and recently married were there in good numbers. Margaret Brewin of Everett who's planning a February wedding to Eddie Breen of Arlington chose black velvet with rhinestones and orchids. Dot Dever, whose engagement to Dave Murphy has recently been announced, was cute in her velvet and gardenias.

The Cronins were resplendent in billowy net gowns with sparkling bodices. Lillian's was of coronation blue, a sequin ornament in her hair. Eleanor's was white, juliet cap of rhinestones her choice of headdress. Mary Smith looked exceedingly dainty in her aqua sheer with orchids as she danced about with John Morley and Connie Rasedahl chose a corner of the ballroom to practice some intricate dance steps with Helen Murphy, whose frock of black velvet was set off by a large shoulder bouquet of talisman roses.

Classes of every decade were represented. On Elizabeth Logan's shoulders rested the responsibility of representing '23 and on them also rested a white marabou cape striking with her simple white crepe. Last June's class had its president, Alice Quartz, as its delegate, an exceedingly pretty one, her raspberry moire clipping with shining clips.

• • •

MERRY GROUPS

Certain sections of the ballroom [illegible] converted into [illegible] encampments, with the [illegible] of the [illegible] family, the Henry Smiths of [illegible] fame, the Henry Eliot [illegible] corporation counsel, and the William Arthur Reillys, all present at the reunion.

Iren Ryan, who's tall and titian haired, was exceedingly attractive in her black net. The Roger Keanes entertained with champagne at their table. Alice Gallagher tucked red carnations in her hair for her date with Owen Dooley.

Mary Murphy of Arlington was smart in black trimmed with lame. Mrs. Paul Markey edged her black net with multi-colored sequins, while her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank McDonald, was equally attractive in her black crepe with the same trimmings.

PRINTED SATIN FROCK

Glimpsed: Catherine Grant, a moving light in Proparvulis Club affairs; Mrs. Vincent O'Connell in a pretty costume of printed satin and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wheeler in a billowy number of gray net.

The Chalet's identity was completely swamped beneath a deluge of college banners, goal-posts and balloons at the "Pigskin Parade," the young Philomatheians' way of celebrating the arrival of the holidays.

Virginia Fouhy was gowned in blue taffeta for her role as chairman, while her escort Bob Fulton acted as head usher at the novel party. The rest of the Fouhy family was on hand to witness Virginia's official debut into the world of club duties. Mary B[illegible] pink moire [illegible] attractive with her dark hair. Peggy's black chiffon was very striking, while Eleanor, escorted by Art Duffy, wore a tufted frock of candy striped mousseline de soie.

Also from Belmont came Edith Fitzgerald whose [illegible] moire was combined with rhinestones, while Mary Snyder, a leading light in the organization, chose pink crepe.

GAY HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Gertrude Ahearn, a very attractive figure as she did her bit of college cheering, while Mary Bannon's trailing yellow chiffon was topped by an accordion pleated orange cape.

The young college crowd was borne in holiday spirits, entering into the evening's fun in no small way. Among them were Helen Kennedy, Phyllis Cunningham, Patricia Callahan and Mary Jane Dooley, whose white satin was trimmed with lace.

Aristos Member Is Bride

At 10 o'clock yesterday in St. Peter's Church in Dorchester, Mary Meehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Meehan of Dorchester, became the bride of Frederick V. Jennings.

Mary, who has completed two years' service on the Aristos Club board, was gowned in white satin yoked in seed pearls. Her tulle veil was edged with Brussels lace, while a sheaf of white chrysanthemums completed her costume.

Her only attendant, her sister, Anne Louise, wore an [illegible] velvet gown and a juliet cap of [illegible] velvet. She carried [illegible] chrysanthemums tied with silver ribbons. William Jennings of Dorchester was his brother's best man. Ushers included James Meehan of Milton and [illegible] Jennings of Wollaston.

After breakfast and reception at the Fox and Hounds Club the couple departed on a trip to New York and Washington. Mr. Jennings, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings, is a member of the Boston Police Department.

Pre-Emptive Bidding

The bidding

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West was not strong enough to make a vulnerable overcall over South's opening bid. To bid two clubs or two diamonds would risk an enormous set.

North's bid of four spades is the standard bid in the Culbertson System for this and similar situations. The raise to four spades says in effect:

"Partner, I have excellent trump support and freakish distribution. I have less than 1½ honor tricks, and therefore have every reason to believe that we cannot make a slam. My hand is strong enough on offense to assure you a reasonably good play for your game contract, but defensively I have little strength of my own, and my length in your suit weakens your defensive strength. Therefore, I think it highly important to rob the opponents of their precious rounds of bidding."

EAST'S TROUBLE

Now consider the plight of poor East. From the bidding of North and South East can depend on finding no more than a singleton spade in his partner's hand, but there his information ends. North has confessed to defensive weakness, but South may be lying in ambush ready to pounce on a bid of five diamonds. At a contract of five diamonds East might very easily win only five or six tricks. He therefore had to pass.

Naturally, no other player could take action after North's preemptive raise to four spades. South easily made ten tricks in the play, dummy's clubs affording discards for his doubtful hearts.

Now consider what would have happened if North had failed to raise to four spades. At a lower level East would have been able to bid diamonds. Then West would have raised enthusiastically, and East-West would have reached a contract of five diamonds.

If allowed to play there they would make game and rubber with ease. Even if North and South sacrificed at five spades East-West would have collected a 200-point penalty, instead of losing game and rubber.

Joint Debut At Club Tonight

Today is one of those very busy days on which the traditional "debutante whirl" justifies its name.

Beginning with a luncheon at the Somerset's Balinese Room this season's buds went on to a tea dance at the Algonquin Club, then a change of costume before going out to The Country Club for dinner and the debut dance of Pauline Loring Tobey and Marguerite Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. George Loring Tobey, Jr., of Chestnut Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Dewey of Cambridge are giving this large affair to present their daughters. A large dinner is also being held at The Country Club before the dance.

NOVEL FEATURES

Several novel entertainment features have been arranged for the dance. Most of the members of the Harvard Instrumental Clubs will attend without their instruments. Instead of doing their usual plunk plunking on banjos and mandolins, they will steal a march on their colleagues in the Glee Club by singing a number of songs which have been specially arranged by Ruby Newman. Maestro Newman will be there in person to lead his musicians and there will also be community singing of Gilbert and Sullivan songs.

Theodore V. Masters, Jr., and Bradley Dewey, Jr., and David R. Dewey, 2d, brothers of Miss Dewey, will perform the duties of head ushers.

Among the young ladies who will go down to dinner with the ushers are Anne Mason Robinson of New York, Mary Scott of Wilmington, Del., both students at Vassar and house guests at the Deweys; Barbara Foss, Patricia Calkins, Giovanna Conrad, Helen Claflin, Mary Frost, Jane Holcombe, Polly Franks, Katherine Jackson, Angela Lang, Alice Lee, Margaret Mason, Elizabeth Morgan, Anne Morley, Amelia Payne, Nancy Peabody, Virginia Pratt, Jean Richmond, Patricia Spencer, Nancy Tucker, Sarah Brooks Upham and Margaret Verhoeff.

GRADUATES OF WINSOR

Among those in the large group of ushers are J. Sinclair Armstrong, F. Gorham Brigham, Jr., John Alberton 2nd, Edward L. Barnes, Robert [illegible] Bishop 3rd, George O. Clark, Jr., A. Barr Comstock, Jr., Edwin F. Davis, Frederick Griffin, Nelson Davis, Willard H. Griffin, John M. Hammond, James C. Hopkins, Jr., John M. S. Hutchinson of Detroit, Danforth Jackson, A. Gregor Jameson, Richard Dorr, Philip Loring Reed, Jr., Mason T. Rogers, Jr., and many others.

Both of the honored debutantes graduated from the Winsor School last June. Miss Tobey was given a tea in October by her aunt, Mrs. Harold Tobey of Jamaica Plain. Miss Dewey was presented to friends of her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Davis Rich Dewey, at a tea a week ago Monday.

Eleanor Dunning Weds in Home Ceremony

At a small home wedding this afternoon, Miss Eleanor Dunning, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Westbrook Dunning of Waban, is being married to Edmund McLaughlin, son of Mrs. D. E. McLaughlin of West Newton.

The ceremony is being performed at the home of the bride's parents, by her uncle, Rev. Morton Dunning of the Wellesley Hills Congregational Church. The house has been simply decorated with white chrysanthemums to carry out the decorative pattern in the bride's white Japanese wedding gown.

It is embroidered from shoulder to hem with fine white silk chrysanthemums and is made of silk purchased in Japan by Mrs. Dunning a quarter of a century ago. Her bridal veil of tulle falls from a coronet of orange blossoms and her bouquet is of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Benjamin Murray Lease has come on from New York to be matron of honor and the Misses Louisa Cabot Richardson of Milton and Katharine Lewis of New York are the bridesmaids.

Benjamin Murray Lease of New York is best man for his brother-in-law and due to the simplicity of the home wedding there are no ushers.

The bride, who is director of the Social Museum at Vassar College, graduated from the Choate School in Brookline and from Vassar in 1934. In 1936 she received an M. A. degree in history from Radcliffe and the following year studied at Cambridge, England, and at the Sorbonne in Paris.

The bridegroom graduated from M. I. T. in 1932 and is engaged in business in New York. Following their honeymoon the couple will make their home in Harmon-on-Hudson, New York.

Marycliff Grads Celebrate

Marycliff Academy alumnae gather for a night of dining and dancing at the Fox and Hounds Club this evening.

Mary Tatt of Arlington is chairman of the fete, a silver anniversary of the academy's founding. Eleanor Farrell of Belmont, president of the alumnae, heads the reception committee, assisted by her sister, Rita; Miriam Cunningham of Waltham, Jeannette Paradis of Somerville, Dorothy O'Neill of Cambridge and Mary Behles of Cambridge.

Also helping to make the party a successful one is a group of Arlington graduates, Eileen Kennedy, Mary and Betty O'Donoghue, Mary Maloon, Anna Donahue and Catherine Bixby.

Utility Outlook Brighter

End of Long Deadlock Promises Expansion Of Facilities

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Current discussions between President Roosevelt and utility leaders are definitely creating the impression that the long deadlock between the administration and the industry is ended. The theory of prudent investment will undoubtedly be accepted as the standard method of valuing properties and establishing rates. In return it is logical to expect cessation of government competition and attacks.

This latest Washington development is important first for the strength it will supply our general economy. Second, for the good it will do confidence. The natural problem confronting traders and investors is how to best take advantage of this turn in affairs. Purchase of utility shares is the obvious answer. The group has long been depressed and is in a good position to respond to almost any sort of encouragement. But since the implication is that utilities will expand their productive capacity then the equipment companies are decidedly attractive. Whether or not expansion comes about through a housing program or because of the natural filling of suppressed needs the equipments can't lose out. General Electric is a major beneficiary of utility orders. Westinghouse is an important supplier of heavy equipment and Allis-Chalmers derives about 20 per cent of its business from the industry. Readers, especially those who hold for the long term, might look over their lists with the idea of making switches from less likely situations.

TAX REVISION GAINS

Tax revision is gaining some powerful friends both inside and outside of Congress. Senator Harrison's conference with Joseph P. Kennedy on Wednesday impressed State Street financial circles as the real thing. It begins to look as though the leadership Washington observers felt was lacking, and would prevent fairly speedy action, is being developed and some relief from tax on undistributed corporate profits may come during the special session. At the same time the four-point legislative program which Congress was called to enact will be largely postponed.

* * *

While there is probably a good deal in the Presidential recommendations that would be beneficial to industry, trade and agriculture there is also much that is controversial. Wage and hour legislation for instance might be so drawn that costs will freeze. In such an event renewed recovery would be hobbled by slowing up the deflation under way at present.

* * *

DECLINE ENDING?

There is a growing tendency among market letter writers and various professional observers to look for the end of the decline at or close to present levels. Bearishness is spreading in the boardrooms and public selling for short accounts is consequently showing a gain. It is not yet possible to take the definite stand that the decline is over but it does seem that stock prices on the average have discounted business and trade news. And it is not a secret that weakly held accounts have been largely cleaned out. Finally a novice tape reader can detect the presence of scale down buying orders; the usual sign of insider purchases.

U. S. Expenditures Pass $3,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—Federal expenditures today soared above the $3,000,000,000 mark for the first time this fiscal year, or since July 1, according to latest Treasury statistics.

On November 23, the last day for which complete figures are available, total government expenditures were $3,005,890,210, an increase of about $200,000,000 over the same period a year ago.

Receipts so far this fiscal year amounted to $2,256,206,364, against $1,606,261,599 a year earlier.

October Deficit Reported by New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 26 (AP)—New Haven railroad operated with a deficit last month, after charges of $917,004, it was announced today.

The gross revenue for October was $6,915,197, a decrease of $282,386 under the same month in 1936. Freight revenue showed a decrease of $290,379, but passenger revenue increased $65,218.

Operating expenses for the month increased $849,469 over October last year, principally, officials said, due to the increased wage award to the non-operating and train employes, effective Aug. 1 and Oct. 1; the application of cast steel side frames to freight cars and additional roadway and equipment maintenance.

OPERATING INCOME

After expenses, taxes, equipment and joint facility rents, the report disclosed a net railway operating income of $117,506, a decrease of $1,154,183 under October, 1936.

For the first ten months of 1937, the road operated under a deficit of $5,552,145, compared with a deficit of $4,444,556 for the same period last year.

Over this same ten months' period, gross revenues showed an increase of $4,377,588. Of this, freight revenue increased $2,257,882, notwithstanding the elimination of the emergency surcharge which became effective last Jan. 1.

Passenger revenue increased $1,850,580; operating expenses increased $5,046,110, of which $2,541,925 covered maintenance expenses.

Net railway operating income for the ten months was $4,343,647, a decrease of $1,223,156 under last year.

Harvard Reports Investments

A moderate increase in the proportion of common stocks featured the June 30, 1937, statement of Harvard University's general investments. The increase—to 26.2 per cent from 25.3 per cent a year ago—was to a considerable extent explained by conversions of bonds and preferred stocks.

The book values of Harvard's general investments aggregated in excess of $133,000,000 last June 30, an increase during the year of nearly $11,000,000. The market value, of course, must inevitably show a considerable shrinkage now as compared with the end of the first half year, in view of the downward course of security markets generally in the meantime.

Harvard's bond account expanded close to $6,000,000 last year, about evenly divided as between short term and other bonds. Common stocks went up nearly $4,000,000 and preferred stocks nearly $1,800,000.

The bond purchases and sales by the university make as usual a long list, too long for publication. Among the purchases of bonds maturing after June 30, 1941, however, might be mentioned two of $1,000,000 each, viz., Consolidated Oil Corporation convertible debenture 3½s, 1951, and General Motors Acceptance Corporation debenture 3s, 1946.

The largest individual sale or call was $670,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Company debenture 5s, 1965.

Union Pacific

Union Pacific Railroad declared usual quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the common stock, payable January 3 to stock of record December 1.

Steel, Utility, Rail Shares Feature

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Leaders pushed confidently forward in the stock market today, with steel, utility and rail shares in the vanguard.

Near the close advances ranged from 1 to 7 points. Turnover, however, was moderate.

Buying sentiment was in evidence from the start and little pressure appeared to impair the upward swing. Some purchases from abroad and short covering were reported.

The expected "truce" between the Government and utilities, together with announced plans for an intensified power company building program, helped swing support to this group. Rails gained from the belief the Interstate Commerce Commission was favorable to further freight and passenger rate increases.

Active on the upside were building material issues, stimulated by prospects the government's housing program would soon be under way.

FOREIGN MARTS MIXED

Foreign markets were mixed, but American stocks held their own or were a little improved over Wednesday's New York closing prices. Bonds, including U. S. government loans, were higher. Commodities were uneven.

Prominent most of the time in the stock market advance were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Mack Truck, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, North American, United Corp., Electric Power & Light, Public Service of New Jersey, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Minneapolis-Honeywell, Johns-Manville, Lone Star Cement, American Radiator, U. S. Gypsum, Otis Elevator, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, General Electric and Allied Chemical.

Also higher were International Harvester, Deere, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Anaconda, Kennecott, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Paramount, Loew's, Allis Chalmers, Philip Morris, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corp. and Amerada.

Wall Street received with interest President Roosevelt's statement at today's press conference that he wanted tax revision as soon as Congress could get to it.

Also commanding attention was the chief executive's admonition to federal departments to speed government purchasing as an aid to business. Reports in the financial community were that the forthcoming message to Congress, as well as touching housing, might offer some aid to heavy industries and the railroads.

Ending of a strike in the Pontiac plant of Fisher Body division of General Motors was cheering news to traders.

CURRENT ITEMS

Market analysts, studying business trends, found a bit of cheer in Dun & Bradstreet's report that freezing weather had brought out, in some section, a rising volume of retail trade. This was offset to a degree, however, by a downturn in industrial centers where the current recession has resulted in increased unemployment.

Also symptomatic of the present business outlook was the report of bank clearings, showing for the second straight week a sharp drop under figures for a year ago. The total in 22 cities for the week ended November 24 was $5,283,273,000 against $6,527,449,000 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Reports from the steel trade, indicating a virtual exhaustion of inventories in a number of divisions and a slight pickup of orders, were encouraging. On the other hand advices from automobile centers indicated a downward revision of production schedules resulting from lessened consumer demand.

At the beginning of foreign exchange dealings sterling was quoted at $4.99⅝, off ⅛ of a cent. The French franc was down .00⅜ of a cent at 3.39⅞ cents.

Smaller Profit By Wamsutta

For the year ended September 30, 1937, Wamsutta Mills reports net profit after depreciation of $69,550, equal to $1.24 per share on the 55,934 shares outstanding in the hands of the public. This represents a decline from net of $156,789, equal to $2.80 per share, in the 1936 fiscal year.

Gross income was higher this past year at $2,933,439, against $2,374,035. Costs showed an even greater increase, however, especially labor cost, which was up $363,000.

As of September 30, 1937, Wamsutta Mills had current assets of $1,361,136 and current liabilities of $822,162, making net working capital $538,974 compared with $447,185 a year ago.

Weather Man Aids Retail Sales

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—The weather man recently came to the rescue of the receding consumer goods industries.

General R. E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck & Company, America's number 1 vendor of general merchandise, told me that the cold snap throughout the country in the last few days had reversed the adverse trend in retail sales.

In the forepart of the current period, sales of his company were running substantially behind the corresponding record of a year ago, but in the last week or so cold weather has expanded sales to the extent that they are now running ahead of the level a year ago. In fact, General Wood indicated that the recent improvement might possibly overcome the earlier deficit in sales, and enable his company to finish the four-week period with sales as high as last year.

To an extraordinary and unseasonal extent, retail merchants are letting their inventories run down. There is a vast nation-wide effort to become more liquid. General Wood leans to the view that inventories will be so much reduced that merchants will be back in the primary markets for goods again after the turn of the year. Merchants differ as to the extent that wholesale prices reflect current realities, but there is a widespread view that cotton textiles are now cheaply priced.

UNCERTAINTY

Business men are still paralyzed by uncertainty as to whether the country is in the midst of a four to six months' recession or an 18 to 24 months' depression. General Woods is inclined to think the slump is the former rather than the latter, and he believes that swift and decisive action by the administration can help to shorten the setback.

The mail order and department store executive indicated that the administration should promptly take a number of constructive steps concurrently. He urged the holding out of a hand of fellowship to business. He emphasized the desirability of tax revision. He stressed the importance of a compromise with the electric utilities, which would start buying of capital goods.

He spoke of the desirability of giving the railroads some increase in rates in order to encourage them to buy capital equipment, and then he indicated that housing development offered the most long-term hope. The general also thought farm legislation might help. Together with these non-monetary moves, Mr. Wood also discussed counter deflationary moves, such as desterilization, and moves to restore the excess reserves of banks.

The general thought that the economic bases for a prolonged depression were lacking, and advised taking swift ameliorative steps in order to prevent the current adverse psychology from feeding upon itself.

CURRENT RECESSION

In reviewing the causes of the current recession, the general emphasized the collapse in farm prices and the change in inventory policy. As to the latter, he pointed out that manufacturers, afraid of sitdown strikes, had encouraged customers to indulge in an extraordinary amount of forward buying of merchandise. Then after inventories were sufficiently enlarged, merchants stopped buying.

Thus, he said, manufacturing business in the first half of the year was not really as good as the statistics indicated, as some of the orders had been borrowed from the second half of the year. Likewise, the current period, he pointed out, is not quite as bad as the statistics of production indicate, because much of the work was done in the first half.

In light of existing pessimism, General Wood stressed that in recent days the public was taking more goods from his company than a year ago. In other words, consumption is holding up, though business men recognize that the country cannot prosper without activity in the non-consumer heavy goods industries also.

By taking wise and decisive remedial action, General Woods feels that the administration could reverse the adverse trend by March or April and get business volume and employment back to where it had been by May or June.

New Financing Totals $19,374,290

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—New financing this week totalled only $7,960,000, compared with $19,374,290 last week and $82,499,000 in the comparable week a year ago, a compilation by Poor's Publishing Company showed today.

While the Thanksgiving holiday shortened the week, the main influence in keeping back corporate offerings of new securities, it was said in bond circles, was the continued decline of the bond market into new low ground for the 1937 decline.

Are Too Many Showing White Feather Today?

Whole Atmosphere At Washington Less Threatening

By B. C. FORBES

Are too many industrialists unduly showing the white feather?

Are they being swayed overmuch by stock declines?

Have there not lately been very important favorable developments? For example:

Congress thus far has fulfilled even the most optimistic hopes that it would insist upon tax revision.

Congress is likewise demonstrating its determination to exercise its own deliberate judgment, its determination to cease being a pliant tail to the administration kite, its determination to pass legislation helpful to recovery.

President Roosevelt likewise has shown conciliatoriness—although how long this attitude will last is regarded as dubious by many men of affairs.

His conferences with utility, industrial and other employers testify that he is at least convinced that something has gone far wrong with his "planning," and that he is now in a mood to listen to suggestions from practical, responsible citizens.

In short, the whole atmosphere at Washington has become less threatening.

WASHINGTON'S ATTITUDE

In a sense, it was Washington's inimical attitude which was blamed most of all for the apprehension which set in early this year and which became more intensified monthly, as clearly reflected by slackened activity and by severe shrinkage in security values. Surely it would be logical to see reflected the notable change for the better in Washington's behavior.

The public's stand against labor lawlessness should also be accepted as reassuring.

State authorities have also ceased to condone usurpation of property by small groups of strikers, and seem ready hereafter to afford as much protection to wage earners who wish to work as to workmen who wish to quit.

The threat of a drastic hours and wages law has diminished. The prospect is that any legislation enacted will be mild rather than revolutionary.

Furthermore, good crops are assured.

Consumptive buying is still of normal volume.

Efforts to launch large-scale home building may shortly yield far-reaching fruit—although here also there is considerable skepticism.

Finally, hysteria has abated in stock markets, even though there is no guarantee that fresh spasms will not erupt at any moment.

INVENTORIES REDUCED

Another factor about which little is said is that abnormal inventories have been under process of reduction for months. Presumably, new ordering must shortly appear. It is hardly conceivable, for instance, that contracts for iron and steel can long continue on their recent picayune scale.

All automobile reports are not discouraging. Emerson J. Poag, of Dodge, sends this telegram:

"Our Minneapolis and St. Paul dealers, featuring a Thanksgiving special sale of used vehicles, sold 112 used cars and 7 used trucks in quick order. They enjoyed their best week since last summer. Newspaper advertising, which played a vital part, pulled exceedingly well."

From General Sales Manager C. P. Simpson of Pontiac:

"Our 4000-odd Pontiac dealers have just completed the most profitable period in the company's history, with net profits for the nine months up to October 1, 47.2 per cent above a year ago."

All in all, America's economic and political picture is no wholly without bright aspects.

Member Trades Total 22.73 P. C.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Securities Commission reported today that members of the New York Stock Exchange traded 5,567,839 shares for their own accounts during the week ended October 30.

This was 22.73 per cent of round-lot transactions on the exchange for the week.

Round-lot transactions initiated on the floor by members for their own accounts totaled 1,866,370 shares or 7.62 per cent of the total. Transactions involving 974,119 shares, or 3.98 per cent, were initiated off the floor.

Transactions of specialists totaled 2,727,350 shares, or 11.13 per cent.

The round-lot volume for the week ended October 30 was 12,246,060 shares on the Exchange, this being 9.3 per cent larger than reported on the ticker.

The New York Curb Exchange traded 795,390 shares, or 21.8 per cent of round-lot transactions on the Curb, for their own accounts.

On the Curb roundlot volume was 1,824,420 shares, exceeding by 10.1 per cent the ticker volume.

$5,000,000 Gold Shipment to France

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Treasury announced today its third export of gold to France.

A $5,000,000 shipment left for France Tuesday, making a total of $25,000,000 sent to that country this month. Another $5,000,000 of gold has been shipped to England.

Office Equipment Dip Less Than Other Trades

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—The office equipment industry has not yet felt the full force of the present depression, but a downward trend in the business is clearly developing. As in past depressions, new business in appliances has not turned down so quickly as general industrial activity, says the Standard Statistics Company in a current survey of the prospects of manufacturers of typewriters, cash registers, calculating machines, duplicating devices, bookkeeping and tabulating machines and postage meters.

Up to early November, most companies were still booking more business than a year ago, although the margin of gain was narrowing rapidly. The sales improvement of the earlier fall was barely of normal seasonal proportions. Evidently the crest of the fall sales rise was touched in October. Buyer interest has been slackening progressively during the past month, and there is every indication that bookings in November and December will fall below 1936 totals.

QUARTER SHIPMENTS

Final quarter shipments will exceed incoming business for the period because most producers entered the period with fairly heavy backlogs of unfilled orders. These, however, are fast disappearing because of the slow rate of new business and increasing cancellations.

The latter influence has been most readily apparent to date in the more expensive types of equipment, such as bookkeeping machines. It probably will affect other lines in the not distant future. The semi-capital nature of office equipment makes it distinctly vulnerable to conservative tendencies in industrial purchasing.

Despite the continuing needs of many businesses for additional office equipment to collect data for federal and state tax purposes, the present trends in general business both at home and abroad dominate current sales prospects. First quarter 1938 sales in virtually all lines are likely to be well below the volumes in the opening months of this year, when there was considerable advance ordering.

Conforming to recent experience, foreign business should hold up somewhat better than domestic. Despite unsettled political conditions, business volumes in most leading export markets have evidently not declined so precipitously as in this country.

PRICES MAINTAINED

Prices are still being well maintained in most lines, although pressure on quotations has already developed in some classifications of office furniture. It is probable that, as in the last depression, listed prices for appliances will hold relatively well during the period of slack business, but trade-in values may be increased to the detriment of realized prices if the period of low volumes is prolonged. For the immediate future, however, no major concessions are foreseen.

Present indications are that fourth-quarter profits of most companies should approximate those of a year ago. Those concerns deriving the largest share of revenues from lease rentals should better 1936 returns. The adverse effects of industrial depression should be more clearly apparent in early 1938 returns. All leading companies, nevertheless, should continue in the profit column by a safe margin.

Moxie Earnings Increase 74 P. C.

The report of The Moxie Company for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1937, shows a net profit of $56,502, after all charges except federal income and undistributed profits taxes, or 96 cents a share on the 58,399 shares of class "A" stock.

This compares with $32,389, or 55 cents a share for the previous year. During the year a dividend of 50 cents a share was paid on class "A" stock, and mortgages were reduced by $9250.

On September 30, 1937, the total current assets were $705,361, as compared with total current liabilities of $36,850, and surplus was $497,076, as compared with $484,130, a year earlier.

Frank M. Archer was elected chairman of the board of directors and general manager upon the death of his father last April.

General Investors Trust

General Investors Trust declared a dividend of 12 cents per share, payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Dec. 1.

Dealers to File Wool Protest

Boston wool dealers and Rhode Island textile manufacturers prepared today to protest trading in wool tops futures, a division of the New York Cotton Exchange, before a Senate wool investigating committee in Washington on Tuesday.

The group is working independently, with the Boston Wool Trade Association and the National Wool Trade Association taking no official part in the protest.

Those seeking a suspension of trading charge a "fictitious" market value has been set for wool tops with the result that there is an unwarranted weakness in the raw wool market.

The condition has developed, they state, because trading units and margin requirements of the market are inadequate.

First National Stores

First National Stores, Inc., declared regular quarterly common dividend of 62½ cents a share, payable January 3 to stock of record December 4.

New Farm Bill Reported Out, Says Haney

One Reason for Uncertain Business Conditions

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

Special to Boston Evening American.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—One of the reasons for the uncertain and disturbed condition of business today is the danger that a radical farm bill will be passed. For some reason or other, it seems that the "wages and hours bill" is not likely to be put through just now; but everybody seems bent upon "doing something for the farmer."

Despite our experience with the AAA, of pig-killing fame, and the fact that already we are giving hundreds of millions in subsidies to farmers, a bill has been reported out.

TELLS OF DANGERS

The plain facts are:

(1) Such farm legislation will add a very large public expenditure and postpone the balancing of the federal budget indefinitely. It would probably cost close to a billion dollars.

(2) It would inevitably lead to other steps toward regimentation and "relief." After you have protected and relieved "the farmer," you will have to protect and relieve the laborer from the resulting high cost of living.

(3) It will increase the "functions" of the federal government and fasten a more extended bureaucracy upon us.

We often speak of "the cure being worse than the disease." Well, the farm price-fixing and crop control stuff is exactly that sort of medicine.

The root idea of the New Deal is to "create purchasing power" by taking it away from one class and giving it to another; and then correcting this treatment by taking it away from the beneficiary and giving it back to the original payer.

* * *

MONEY TO FARMER

First, it is proposed to give money to "the farmer." Why? One argument that is always presented is that the farmer's purchasing power will be increased and he will thus come a profitable market for the products of city laborers.

In other words, first we fatten the farmers and then we eat him.

Second, it is proposed to give money to city laborers. Why? One reason is alleged to be that the laborers must be given more purchasing power so that they can buy farm products.

Thus, we fatten the laborers so that they will be good eating for "the farmer."

It would be just about as sensible to go to the women of the country and say, "You really create all the wealth, so we will subsidize you. The men will pay." Then we could go to the men and say, "You men are the backbone of the nation, so we will subsidize you. The women will pay."

SIMPLE AS THAT

It is as simple as that.

Anyhow, who are "the nation?" Where does "the government" get its funds? We are, al of us, part of the nation and the government has nothing to spend that it does not take out of our pockets.

Should we not remember now, that after the final crash in 1933 our nearest approach to sustained recovery came when the NRA and the AAA were ruled unconstitutional?

Should the farmers of America not reflect that when the government runs their farms they will no longer be farmers?

A group of men selling out to "the government" are bound to lose their freedom, and eventually will lose their money.

Industry Dips Below 'Normal'

First Time Since March, 1936

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Industrial production dipped below "normal" in November for the first time since March, 1936, according to informal estimates of government index numbers.

In October, the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System announced its adjusted index of industrial production fell to 103 per cent of the 1923-'25 average taken as a norm. Since October, according to understanding here, the index has dropped below 100 for the first time in more than 20 months and is almost 10 per cent below the 1923-'25 average.

In October the adjusted index, at 103, was down eight points from 111 recorded for September and 13 points under the average of 116 for first eight months of 1937, the board pointed out. In October, 1936, the index was 110, or three points higher than last month.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY,
NOVEMBER 26, 1937

The name of the star is called Wormwood and the third part of the waters became Wormwood and many men died of the waters because they became bitter.—Revelation VIII., 11.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Arthur Hopkinson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Fitchburg. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Horace F. Horton, Brockton.

The Editor Says:

UNQUESTIONABLY the mood of the American people is to stay out of aggressive overseas wars.

Yet, in spite of this overwhelming sentiment, there is a definite danger that circumstances and the temperament of leaders may again drag the American people into foreign quarrels against their own will.

The most important need of the hour is to insure against that national hazard.

In the circumstances, there is more than routine interest in the proposed constitutional amendment introduced in both houses of Congress to reserve to the people the right to vote on the question of entering war, except in cases of defense of American territory against foreign invasion.

PROPHETIC WORDS

—were uttered by Senator Capper of Kansas, as sponsor of such an amendment.

"Every man in the nation will jump to arms in case the United States is ever invaded or threatened with invasion," he said.

"But when it comes to wars overseas, the American people believe they have as much right to pass on their participation in such wars as Congress does, and I agree.

"Before the boys from Kansas or anywhere in the United States are conscripted to die in Asia's swamps or in European ditches, the people will, under this amendment, have had the chance to vote 'yes' or 'no.'"

Such an amendment would protect the American people from the risk of once more having their officials manipulated by alien propaganda.

The sordid motives of European nations, which were hidden from the American people, who were subjected to a barrage of quack idealism, were exposed by the recent revelation by the International News Service of the secret Balfour Document.

It happened once.

The proposed amendment would prevent a repetition, unless a majority of the voters specifically assent, of butting into foreign quarrels and alien adventures.

SIX MORE AIRPORTS

—for Massachusetts are recommended to the Legislature by the special recess commission after an extensive study of our aviation facilities.

"Today there is only one airport in the State on which the modern plane can land with safety," says the report. "This is, of course, the one at East Boston. But tomorrow's bigger craft is in the offing and even our solitary adequate port will need enlarging."

The commission, therefore, advocates construction of new airports in Fall River, New Bedford, Worcester, North Adams and Metropolitan Boston.

This report and its carefully considered suggestions should receive proper attention in the House and Senate. If we wish to share in the prosperity that will come with the certain development of aviation, we must have up-to-date landing fields.

We cannot, as we did with our maritime commerce, do nothing while business moves elsewhere.

OUR MAYOR-ELECT

—makes an apt distinction between doing nothing by choice and doing nothing by necessity. The first he calls "leisure"; the second, "idleness."

A visitor at the Mechanics' Building "hobby exhibition," he contended that spare time, rightly used, could in many cases banish idleness and put hundreds of unfortunate persons on the road to prosperity.

We agree. Leisure hours, if devoted to the mastery of some art or occupation in which the individual is interested, pave the way to better jobs and increased incomes. Good books cost little.

Stamp-collecting, photography, amateur astronomy—even scientific bridge playing have turned enforced idleness into profitable leisure for scores of men and women whose names appear frequently in the newspapers.

What they did others can and should do. Given the opportunity and encouragement, thousands whom we wrongly regard as "unemployables" could become self-supporting.

A CRIPPLE WALKS

—after a nine weeks' novena in a Dracut church, and ecclesiastical and scientific authorities ask "how" and "why."

The Rev. Arthur O. Mercier, pastor of the Church of St. Theresa, where the young woman's amazing recovery took place, tells us:

"The girl was carried in before the service. Helped to her feet, she suddenly walked out unaided. That is all I can say."

Physicians, whose opinion it was the girl would never walk again, profess their astonishment.

WAS IT A MIRACLE? IS THE AGE OF WONDERS STILL WITH US? CAN FAITH CONQUER PHYSICAL INFIRMITY?

No one ventures an answer, though in the words of Shakespeare's Hamlet, many people will suspect:

"There are more things in heaven and earth,
Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

How Can Industry Overtake Prosperity?

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

THOUGHTS while strolling: Our front door bell back home when pulled used to sound in the kitchen like Nino Martini! Leading parlor game thinker-uppers: Neysa McMein and Alexander Woollcott. But I'll still take conversation. Add the gallop-a-trots: Bernard Sobol.

Most unaffected of professional entertainers: Eddie Peabody, the banjoist. Gertrude Lawrence looks aquiver to go places and do things. Study in austerity: Judge Samuel Seabury. Harlem's fashion plate: Duke Ellington. And is he a dude! Ditto Simms Campbell, the artist.

The Rialto's No. 1 yarn spinner—John Golden. Kay Brush and her Sealyham. And it's about time for her to be turning in another novel. So it is.

Look-alikes: Ruby Keeler and Mrs. George Vanderbilt. Suggestion: Grover Whalen's waxed mustache under glass for one of the world's fair museums. Any magazine piece by Paul Gallico immediately gets my attention. Somehow I expect folks from Gloucester to wear oilskin slickers.

When Percy Crosby wants to relax he does an oil painting of some scene on his Virginia estate. Jack Powell, who literally beat his way around the world with a couple of drum sticks. Be fun to walk behind the monocled Jules Bache and Achmed Abdullah and drop watch crystals.

A runner-up for the late William Gillette's train mania is Lucius Beebe, gazetteer from Back Bay and a thoroughgoing city fellow. The actor Gillette, as almost everybody knows, had a complete miniature railroad encircling his vast Connecticut acres. Trains have been Beebe's secret hobby since romper days. Today when he has an afternoon off he goes to Coney to ride the toy choo-choos or take a commutation trip to some nearby Suburbia. Frequently he has entrained to Hollywood just for the ride.

Some weeks ago a publisher articled him for a book on railroads and locomotives and he spent three weeks prowling the roundhouses, yards and terminals in various parts of the country.

As precautionary measure, Harry Staton declares Beebe's bootmaker fashioned a pair of modish gaiters so he could escape if he caught a foot in the switches.

Sport writers are the only scribblers who can guess wrong most the time and not lose face. Particularly have their forecasts been cock-eyed in championship fights. So much so, shrewd Broadway gamblers list the summations and bet the other way. Schmeling was to be a pushover for Joe Louis and Tommy Farr couldn't survive three rounds with the same fighter. Max Baer was hailed as the great invincible champion. So goes a hefty list of wrong 'uns.

The sports writers saving grace has been their ability to kid themselves and never offer alibi. Almost everybody warms to those who admit they are wrong. Also, no branch of sports is so susceptible to laws of upset as boxing.

Students of men's style say the most perfectly groomed oldster in America is General John Pershing. In uniform, business suit or evening dress. He is costumed sedately, but when he appears on the street even those who may not recognize his face would turn to glance at the magnificent figure. His physique is the delight of tailors. Colonel Jacob Ruppert is also a fashion plate among the elders. And there's the octogenarian dude, Colonel Creighton Webb.

In my occasional peeks at the Brummels this winter, I find little style change from last. Some of the forward stylists are sporting the Noel Coward sleeve, a sort of puff effect around the armpits—and pretty terrible if you ask me. Those exaggerations are all right, perhaps, backed by an Olympian smile, but for the run-of-the-mine duffers they are not so Bond street.

Plain colored suits, dark gray, blue and brown, seem the mode, relieved by, well anything goes—loud shirts, ties and handkerchiefs.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Uncle Sam had better keep one hand on his watch and hold onto his shirt with the other hand when he goes into that reciprocal trade treaty parley with Great Britain. With a reputation of never having lost a war and never having won a conference, he will be lucky to get out without losing both his watch and his shirt. The British usually make a good bargain—GOOD FOR BRITAIN.

Secretary of State Hull may regard these reciprocal trade treaties as important in the liberalization of world commerce. But when he starts negotiating with the British he is going to find out they are mainly interested in winning an advantage for their country. A trade agreement that is going to be profitable to Great Britain is not going to be anything for us to crow about.

In some quarters it is argued the political significance of a trade agreement between the United States and Great Britain will overshadow its economic aspects. There is a likelihood it may be regarded as the answer of the United States to the Fascist alliance between Italy, Germany and Japan.

England is lined up with France and France with Russia. If we aren't dragged into Europe's neighborhood quarrels, it won't be because the disputants haven't tried by every hook and crook to get us in.

The very fact that another international debt payday is so near should be sufficient to make American diplomats watch their step in any dealings with European nations. Thirteen of our debtors are supposed to pay us a little over 1¼ billion dollars December 15. But they won't.

The chances are that Finland, small but honorable, is the only one that will be ready with her debt installment. The others will continue to welsh on their solemn promises to pay.

The American taxpayer pays his taxes when they are due or the tax collectors take what is due out of his hide. There is no monkey business about collecting the debts due the United States government from the American people. They aren't asked whether they are financially able to pay. But when our World War Allies renege on their debt payments we don't even speak harshly to them.

Human Side of the News

EVIDENCE accumulates that foreign countries are "ganging up" on American motion pictures. There is a new plague of tariffs, embargoes, quotas, excise taxes, censorship and restricted currency importation against our films. England, Germany, France and other countries are mobilizing vast resources and all their technical and acting talent against the American product—admittedly the best in the world.

There are direct and indirect causes. One primary cause is that we are making better pictures and gaining public approval, not only in this country but in competitive markets throughout the world.

An equally important cause is the stimulus to American trade due to American motion pictures. They have been magnificent boosters for American shoes, cosmetics, gowns and dress accessories, motor cars, furniture, rugs, draperies, handbags and almost everything that moves through the stream of world trade.

An incident reported in Argentina is typical. An American moving picture screened a garage door opening silently as a car approached, and without human aid. One of the great hidalgoes of Argentina cabled to the film company offices to learn how it was done.

When a return letter explained the uses of the "electric eye," he sent for technicians and mechanics to install the same device on his many estates. An American crew was kept busy for a long period, rigging doors for the town and country homes of many wealthy Argentinians. That is just one case of many.

Foreign film producers, who in the past have fought the competition of American films, now gain the support of their own trade, industry and shipping interests which in the past have been indifferent.

The British film act of 1927 is slated for revision within a month or two. It is expected to throw up some new and high hurdles for American films.

There is a similar situation in half a dozen countries.

In our days of "manifest destiny," when we made our first halting grow-up into imperialism, we used to say "trade follows the flag." We learned a lot at considerable expense before we began to back out of this business of empire building, and now we know it would be a lot more sensible to say that "trade follows the film."

The American film industry has stood for a wide open free-for-all in motion picture production and distribution. It has discouraged censorship and embargo against foreign films. Foreign interests have exactly the same status in our market as domestic producers.

During the year 1936 there were 235 films of foreign production shown in the United States, from 15 foreign countries. Germany, England and Italy led with, respectively, 74, 40 and 24 films.

Various of these foreign governments relieve their home film industry from all taxes, duties and other exactions which afflict our exportations. About 40 per cent of our film rentals are derived from foreign distribution. For the first eight months of this year, our film exports were valued at $2,874,000 at an annual rate of $4,300,000. In 1936, our exports for the eight-months period were $4,025,767.

These are not breath-taking figures when considered as a detail of the national economy. They are, however, dramatically revealing, as a reflex of intensifying nationalism, constricting and narrowing world trade channels, making more difficult free and enlightened interchange of world cultures as a builder of peace and an antidote to war.

March of Events

HE RAN from London to Paris! Paris believed it for a day. It mobbed Kenneth Bailey, the "hero," a British bookkeeper, for his autograph. He was cheered and wined wherever he went.

Bailey, who came into the Paris Exposition grounds in a track suit and as breathless as the original marathon runner (who dropped dead, by the way), said he ran from Bournemouth to Southampton, boarded the Queen Mary and never stopped running around her deck while she was crossing the Channel. Then he ran from Cherbourg to Paris. He said he did it for "the good of humanity and international good will."

As a matter of fact, he came all the way sitting down—by train and boat. Bailey says "humanity shouldn't believe everything it hears."

When Paris found it was all a hoax, it let out a louder laugh than ever.

That's not the only hoax that Paris laughs at—as, for instance, the grand hoax of 20 years ago when America was bamboozled into sending 2,000,000 men across seas to "make the world safe for democracy."

"Squaring the circle" is one of the insoluble problems of mathematics. The question is, simply, to find the side of a square exactly equal in area to a given circular area.

But this problem has now passed out of the realm of mathematics into that of politics and economics. The salesmen of all the new crackpot theories in the world are trying to make civil freedom and economic slavery square.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, whose whole life has been given up to fantastic agricultural and political experiments, says:

"Humanity everywhere is hungry both for a new freedom and a new discipline."

The very words freedom and discipline (unless it is SELF-discipline) which Mr. Wallace does NOT mean, are as opposed to one another as LIBERTY and TYRANNY.

You can't have the penny AND the cake. If Mr. Wallace's "humanity" wants Fascism or Communism, it must do without freedom. If it wants freedom, it must renounce Stalinism, Hitlerism, Mussolinism and Henry Wallaceism.

Remember the motto of Benjamin Franklin, a man who had no use for political circle-squarers:

"They that give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety."

"You speak of miracles," writes a reader of "MARCH OF EVENTS" from Seattle, "as if they really existed. Do you really believe they do?"

Well, if miracles no longer exist, almost all of us are still hoping for miracles.

When we get up in the morning we all, secretly, expect a miracle to happen that day. When the 'phone rings or when the letter-carrier hands us a bunch of letters we have a feverish kind of feeling that some wild dream is miraculously coming true. All stock-market speculators, sweepstakes investors, race-track gamblers and get-rich-quick suckers look for miracles.

Pathetically, every incurable person hopes for a miracle to cure him. The politicians promise us a miracle on every election day, and although the day after election is precisely the same as the day before election, we miracle-mongers are never cured of our incredulity.

Man hates humdrum natural law. He is a born believer in "short-cuts" and miracles, and no amount of disillusion can cure him.

HOW civilized is the average modern woman in her attitude toward men?

How much faith does she bring to her marriage . . . how much fair play does she give or expect?

You'd be surprised!

Recently we asked a question. Said: "SUPPOSE YOU HAD A DAUGHTER—WISHED HER TO BECOME A HAPPY WIFE AND MOTHER—HOW WOULD YOU TRAIN HER?"

An amazing question to publish in a 20th century column? Yes! You'd expect—wouldn't you?—that every reader would greet it with derision. But you'd be wrong.

For millions of modern women not only believe in trickster training for their daughters, but teach it and practice it themselves with their own husbands!

Not stupid hussies, mind you, but seemingly enlightened and intelligent women, capable housewives and mothers, serious citizens—such as the one who writes the following letter:

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"I read your letter about training young girls . . . As an ex-woman athlete, and the mother of several sons but no daughters, here's my answer.

"In spite of my own independent training, if I wished to have my daughter make a happy marriage, I'd teach her to flatter and simper and be wise to all the tricks—demanding everything, giving to her future husband as little as possible in return.

"The girl with a serious interest—either sports or business—is healthier, cleaner, more independent and self-respecting than the protected girl. And much more honest with and useful to a man.

"But Heaven help her if she tries to be frank and fair in marriage! Her husband will take all her fineness for granted. Then the first time she criticizes him . . . or exposes the fact that she is his equal . . . he will go off with some useless little 'fluff who 'understands' him. "A READER."

A dreadful letter and a pitiful one—yet that's how the average woman feels about men . . . teaches her daughter to feel about them. Thousands of such letters come to this desk. Daily, over our national back fences, air shafts and 'phones, the same message goes.

ALL MEN ARE MONSTERS, AND A GIRL MUST OUTSMART THEM . . . OR ELSE!

Here we are in the year 1937 with co-education, equal rights in industry and politics. Never had women known such privilege and power. Then why aren't they happier, more content? Why have we more broken homes than ever before?

Because this false suspicion . . . hangover of our savage days . . . still goes on. It flourishes in the pent-house and basement, trailer and mansion alike.
